Pressure limits Coast Guard's boat user fee

U.S. Congressman Collin Peterson has said that the U.S. Coast Guard, responding to public comment against a boat user's fee and political pressure, has limited the waters on which recreational boaters will be charged the new fee.

Peterson said that it appears, according to new information, that the Lake of the Woods now appears to be the only 7th District water body for which the fee would be charged. This is down from the 17 lakes earlier targeted by the Coast Guard, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The Federal Recreational Vessel fee was mandated by Congress in October of 1990 as part of the budget reconciliation package. The law directed the U.S. Coast Guard to develop rules to implement fees for boats more than 16 feet in length that use navigable waters of the United States where the Coast Guard has a presence. The rules have now been published and they are effective on July 31, 1991. It should be noted that the fees are not based on services currently received, or any future expansion of boating safety programs by the Coast Guard. None of the recreational vessel fee revenues will be returned to the State of Minnesota.

The cost of fee depends on the size of the board in addition to the state registration fee (boat license). If it is more than 16 feet but less than 20 feet long, it will cost $25 a year. If the boat is 20 feet but less than 27-feet long, it will cost $35 a year. If the boat is 27 feet but less than 40 feet long, it will cost $50 a year. If the boat is 40-feet long and more it will cost $100 a year.

There are exemptions. The following craft (regardless of size) are examples of exemptions under the Coast Guard's rule: non-motorized boats including canoes, kayaks, racing shells and sculls, sailboards (not sailboats) and rowboats; motorized foreign vessels operat*ing less than 30 days per year in the U.S. or those with a U.S. Customs Cruising permit, lifeboards and yacht tenders from larger vessels, public vessels (including those owned by state and local governments), and U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary craft displaying the operations facilities decal; craft used by a non-profit charitable organization for teaching youths boating and seamanship may be issued a set of fee exempt decals (some organizations are specifically exempt from the rule — the Boy and Girl Scouts, Sea Explorer Assn. and the YMCA — the rest must request fee exempt status from the Coast Guard before applying for the decals).

There is a two part test for determining which waters are affected in Minnesota: 1) is it a navigable water of the U.S.?, and 2) Can a 16-foot motorboat with a displacement hull navigate to tidal water (a ocean) during most of the boating season?

If the answer is yes to both questions, then the affected users need to pay the fee. In addition, the Coast Guard rule also names specific waters where the fee will be required (Lake of the Woods).

From the information received by Congressman Peterson's office, the following waters are affected in Minnesota: The Cannon River from the Mississippi river upstream to mile 0.2; Minnesota river from the Mississippi river upstream to the NSP dam below Granite Falls (mile

Road checks, TIP program net poachers

In a one-month period from May 12 to June 15, Minnesota conservation officers arrested 84 people for a variety of fishing violations during road checks. Most common offenses were possession of over-limit and illegal transportation of fish.

Conservation officers reportedly have countered poacher tactics of traveling odd hours and on out-of-the-way roadways by starting road checks at midnight or 2 a.m. and conducting them on county and gravel roads.

One such check resulted in the arrest of four non-residents with 100 bass over the limit, a violation which resulted in $2,064 in fines. At another road check in an unlikely location the first person stopped had [illegible] walleyes in possession. Conservation officers made 14 arrests for over-limit possession and fines totaled $3,546. The officers seized 300 walleyes.

In addition to the road checks, conservation officers have been assisted by sportsmen and women who call the TIP hotline to report poaching. In June the Minnesota TIP hotline (1-800-652-9093) received 71 reports on poaching which resulted in 57 arrests.

TIP offers a cash reward for information that leads to an arrest, but more than two-thirds of the people who call refuse the reward, according to the TIP office in Minneapolis. They apparently believe that stopping the poacher is sufficient reward.

Road checks and the TIP program are considered by conservation officers to be valuable tools in their battle against poachers in Minnesota.

How Does It Get Things Done?

By coordinating the efforts of every individual, or group of individuals, toward the common purpose of "Building a Better Thief River Falls."

No city was ever built by one individual. It takes the correlated efforts of many. Thief River Falls is expanding in size, in business and in good living, but it is not the result of the efforts of any single person. In fact, in these rapidly changing times, it cannot be done by a few persons. It will take the combined enthusiastic efforts of every business and professional person in Thief River Falls to maintain our position of superiority over our competitive neighbors.

What Does It Do?

The Chamber of Commerce is a working partnership of the leading business and professional people and interest of this community. While it represents business and professions, it is essentially an organization of men and women who know the wisdom of coordinating their efforts under effective leadership for the civic, industrial and commercial advancement of the area.

Where Is It?

The local office is at your disposal on Highway 59 South, but this is only one tiny spot. Your Chamber of Commerce is YOU! You will take it with you wherever you go! Who among us, when given the chance, can resist that feeling of pride in our job, our store, our factory, our profession. Yes and even our city.

There is your Chamber of Commerce!

Who Is It?

It is the farmer, the merchant, the professional, the industrialist — who makes Thief River Falls their city by living and doing business here.
It's the person on the street who says, "Aren't these new streets fine?"
It's the little boy who says, "Gee, I had fun at the new swimming pool."
It's the lady who says, "I like to shop at So and So's shop."
It's the man in the service department who says, "Sure, I've got a good job and a nice home."
IT'S ALL OF US WHO CHOOSE THIEF RIVER FALLS.

OUR FAMILIES SHOULD BE HELD TOGETHER BY FAITH

As our modern lifestyle becomes increasingly complex, it results in family members becoming less closely knit. Dad may travel in his work, or depending on world events, he may be serving in the military. Mom may have a job, or she may be an executive in a big corporation. The children's school day is often followed by sports, band practice, music or dancing lessons, a paper route, or a myriad other activities, and Mom may feel like a short order cook, trying to feed her family at different times. So where is the family "togetherness?" It's at the House of Worship, where they should go together as often as possible, and learn that they are all God's children, equally blessed by His love.

Where we love is home...home that our feet may leave, but not our hearts.
— Oliver Wendell Holmes

"...as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

A set of decals is issued for each craft. They are square in shape and about the same size as the Minnesota boat registration decals. They are valid for a calendar year (or the remaining portion) and will be color-coded to show expiration in the same sequence as the state decals (green will expire at the end of 1991). There also will be a letter (A,B,C or D) depending upon the length of the boat and fee paid. The decals will be displayed to the rear (or stern) of the Minnesota decal and must be within six inches of that decal.

Walk-in retail outlets are being planned for the distribution of the permits and collection of the fees, but fees will be collected by calling 1-800-848-2100; or, by writing U.S. RVF, P.O. Box 740169, Atlanta, GA 30321-0169 (You must include credit card information or a check payable to U.S. RVF for the total amount. Allow three to four weeks for delivery. Application forms should be available at most Coast Guard offices and stations.

Even if you only use your boat once a year, you must still pay the fee and display the decals.

The Coast Guard will also require payment of the full fee for the remainder of 1991.

Enforcement of the new permit system will be carried out by the Coast Guard, not the Department of Natural Resources or counties. The maximum fine is $5,000.

For more information call 1-800-368-5647. If you have questions or comments on the law itself, you should direct them to your U.S. Representative or Senator. There is a bill currently in Congress to repeal the Recreational Vessel fee.

Capitol Commentary

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District I

Older Minnesotans are powerful force for change. Quite a few bills affecting them became law this spring. Here is some background on a few of them.

Alternative Care Grants: The budget for this was increased by $7 million for a total of $45 million. About 1,000 more people will be added per year to the program. Premiums will be charged on a sliding scale and the cost of care is limited.

Nursing Homes: The Governor proposed at $17 million cut in Medical Assistance, but the legislature defeated that idea. Nursing homes will receive increases of more than $42 million. This is not enough to address all of the needs in this area, but the increases are meant for inflation, property payments, efficiency incentives and other programs.

Personal Needs Allowance: Nursing home residents will continue to receive a yearly COLA (cost of living) increase in the Medical Assistance personal needs allowance. Next January the monthly amount will increase from $52 to $54.

Health Insurance: There are new requirements for specialized insurance such as cancer insurance. Starting August 1, these types of policies must be guaranteed renewable or non-cancelable. They must also return, in benefits, 75 per cent of the premiums collected from a group policy, and 65 per cent from individual policies.

Medicare Supplemental Insurance: Companies are now allowed to sell Medicare supplemental policies to people under the age of 65. This will allow younger disabled medicare recipients access to individual coverage.

Community Programs: Foster Grandparents, Retired Senior Volunteer program, and the Senior Companion Program received the same level of funding as they have in the past biennium. Total state spending on these programs is $2.8 million.

Seniors Agenda for Independent Living: This is a new $3.2 million program to make lower cost alternative to nursing homes available to more people. It will establish more care giver support, congregate housing, an adult foster programs.

Nutrition: Community dining programs such as Meals-on-Wheels received an additional $200,000 in state funding.

As I said to senior citizens at county fairs recently, it was a tough session but because senior issues are a growing concern, the issues got a lot of attention.

Patricia Westman receives award

Patricia A. Westman, regional special education projects supervisor, Northwest Educational Cooperative Service unit, Thief River Falls, has been selected as one of 23 participants in the Bush Public Schools Executive Fellows program for 1991-92. This unique program is funded by a grant from the Bush Foundation to the Minnesota Association of school leadership, professional attributes and a continuing commitment to the field of Minnesota public education.

The Bush Program is designed to enhance management skills of highly motivated school executives in mid-career so they may continue to give strong leadership in the fast-changing arena of public education. Individuals participate in a series of one and two-week intensive residential sessions scheduled over a period of 18 months. This scheduling permits participants to arrange their work responsibilities with the least disruption. A two-day segment for board chairs and one for guests are included.

An important requirement of the program is to design and implement a task force project that will prove beneficial to the participant's school district or, in the case of some participants, the educational agency in which they are employed.

A mini-grant, including staff consultation time, is provided to each participant to launch this project. Some task force efforts engaged in by previous Bush Fellows include projects such as designing new accountability or evaluation systems, developing a wellness program, designing a facilities plan, a new strategic plan, or a levy referendum campaign, reorganizing a district, or introducing a major new program or process, etc.

By participating in the Bush program, Westman will have an opportunity to work with other public school executives from across the state and learn from leading resource personnel in educational administration. The faculty includes outstanding scholars, management consultants and leaders from business and government. The program began July 7, 1991, with a two-week session;

Fellows in the program come from 23 different school districts and educational agencies ranging in student population from 315 to 48,000. They represent two urban, seven suburban and 14 Greater Minnesota districts and educational agencies.

A graduate of Bemidji State University, St. Cloud State University and College of St. Thomas, Westman's past experiences include being an elementary teacher for nine years, a special education teacher for five years and a special education administrator for 16 years.

She received a Fellowship from St. Cloud State University to complete her masters degree in special education administration. She recently completed her public school licensures in administration for superintendency and any school principalship in Minnesota. Her education administration program was completed through the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul.

She is a member of Minnesota Administrators of Special Education, Minnesota Association of School Administrators, Council for Exceptional Children and Delta Kappa Gamma. She completed the Arise Training in Module 1 and presently serves on several regional and local advisory boards.

Eagles auxiliary in Thief River Falls made contributions recently to the Thief River Falls regional library and Northland hospice.

The $300 check to the local library came from the Golden Eagle fund which is a Grand Aerie charity. For donating $100 each to the Grand Aerie heart fund, cancer fund, Jimmy Durante children's fund and the Golden Eagle fund the local auxiliary qualifies for grants. For each $100 donated to the Golden Eagle fund, the fund returns $300 to be donated to a local charity that helps the elderly.

Local auxiliaries receive the grants from the order's memorial foundation in appreciation of their support of the senior citizens-oriented Golden Eagle fund, which the foundation administers. Each year at the Grand Aerie and auxiliary convention a display is shown of library gift presentation news pictures sent in during the current year.

Funds donated to the regional library are to be used to purchase books for the elderly and visually handicapped.

The auxiliary's only money-making means are the suppers, bake sales, craft sales, calendar sales and similar functions it conducts. It does not benefit from the charitable gambling functions at the Eagles club rooms. The local auxiliary also participates in the local cancer fund campaign.

Kay Nelson, secretary of the Thief River Falls Eagles auxiliary and district president for the 1990-91 year, also presented the Northland Hospice program with a check for $50 from the district Eagles auxiliaries.

The district is comprised of Eagles auxiliary units in Thief River Falls, Warroad, Roseau, Hallock, Karlstad, Detroit Lakes, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Perham. It meets monthly except for December, May, June and July. Kay is presently serving as the junior past president.

Each auxiliary donates money to the district and, after all expenses have been paid, most of the balance is donated back to the local auxiliaries for the charity of their choice. Thief River Falls auxiliary voted to donate its share to the hospice program.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota July 31, 1941

From The Times Files of Fifty Years Ago

Fair Revue Cast Entertains Lions

"At the Lions club luncheon Wednesday noon in the Palm Garden cafe, W. E. Dahlquist, in behalf of the fair board, presented Randolph Avery, co-producer and master of ceremonies of the 'Step-Lively' revue appearing at the county fair this evening in the first of three performances. Mr Avery introduced the Perry Twins, members of the cast, who supplied a clever clog dance, and Bob White in a series of impersonations."

City Council Buys Second Fire Unit

"Fire fighting equipment of the Thief River Falls fire department will be augmented shortly as the result of the purchase of a second smaller unit by the city council Friday evening at an adjourned meeting. The unit selected was an American-LaFrance pumper of 500-gallon capacity, mounted on a 95-horse-power Ford chassis. The bid was in the amount of $3,430 delivered, with delivery promised in approximately 90 days."

Filtration Plant Sets Record Of 806,400 Gallons In Day

"The city filtration plant set an all-time record for its twenty-year history when, during the 24 hours ending at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning it pumped a total of 806,400 gallons of water, with the pumps operating continously for 23 hours. The huge volume, due largely to the demand created by the extremely hot weather accompanied by lawn sprinkling throughout the city compares with an average consumption of under 500,000 gallons a day and with the former record mark of 720,000 gallons established in the summer of 1936."

Low Prices For Children At Fair

"To make it as inexpensive as possible for children to get full enjoyment from the Pennington county fair now under way, the fair board announced today that at a cost of five cents a ride children will be admitted to the fourteen riding devices offered by the Dee Lang shows on the midway this afternoon and Friday afternoon. In addition, children will admitted to the bleachers for the grandstand show the remaining three afternoons of the fair on payment of a fee of fifteen cents."

490 Lbs. Aluminum Collected Here

"Just ten pounds short of an even 500 pounds was the gross weight of the scrap aluminum collected in Pennington county during the past week in connection with the national campaign to salvage as much of the useful metal as possible for the national defense program, it was announced today by Major Gustav Schibred, chairman of the county defense council, which conducted the local drive.

"The metal collected here is being transported free of charge by the Midnight Express truck lines to the concentration point in St. Paul. There it will be sold under the supervision of the procurement division of the U.S. Treasury department, which will receive instructions from the Office of Production Management as to the smelter to which the scrap is to be shipped.

"Payment for the metal will be made by the smelter to the federal government at the maximum price set by the federal office of price administration."

From The Editorial Page

"We are not going to take sides in the argument about keeping the boys in camp more than a year. There is justification for the complaint of those who argue that a year was the promised limit of service. There also is justification for the appeal of those who are trying to build an army that much of our past effort will have been wasted if the period of service is terminated at the close of the year. In behalf of those who have ideas about building an army, it might be said that the promises of politicians never were meant to be taken seriously. In behalf of the politicians, it might be argued that there being no immediate need for a large army, and not enough equipment to properly arm one if we did need it, the army builders might concentrate temporarily on the more efficient training of smaller units with the idea of adding men as they become equipped to handle them."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Polk County, Minnesota August 5, 1891

From Newspaper Files of One Hundred Years Ago

Daily Mail for St. Hilaire

"Mr. W. S. McGinnis, Ass't. Supt. of the Railway mail service, was here last Friday in response to the petition for a daily mail circulated here some time ago. Mr. McGinnis spent some time looking up the business done by the post office here and decided that we were entitled to a daily service. He informed us that he would recommend that a stage line be put on between here and Crookston to carry the mail Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, the contract with the railroad company for carrying the mail three days a week to remain the same as heretofore. The post office department will advertise for bids for doing the work as soon as it can be properly arranged. The stage will leave here for Crookston at 10 a.m. arriving there at 4 p.m. and it will leave Crookston at 8:30 a.m. arriving here at 2 p.m. three times a week. We learn that the same service will also be put on for Fosston and McIntosh."

From the Editorial Page

"We will have a daily mail but no thanks are due to the Great Northern who have opposed the matter at every turn. They could give us a daily train at an additional expense of fifty dollars a week which would be more than made up by the extra passenger traffic, but accommodation don't seem to be in their line. A little good healthy opposition is what is needed badly."

Doni Loeslie crowned Miss Thief River Falls Saturday

And the winner is.......contestant number seven.....Doni Loeslie! Proper degree of shock is registered on the face of Doni Loeslie of Warren as she is crowned Miss Thief River Falls 1991-92 Saturday evening in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Candidate Tammy Johanning looks on at left as Tami Wahl, Miss Thief River Falls 1990-91, places the crown on the head of her successor.

Doni Doreen Loeslie, 21, daughter of Donavon and Glorianne Loeslie of Warren, won the title of Miss Thief River Falls 1991-92 at the annual Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant Saturday evening, August 3, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

A 1989 Warren high school graduate who will be a junior at Concordia college in Moorhead this fall, Doni won the on-stage personality (evening gown) and talent divisions of the competition. Her talent number was a lyrical jazz dance to the song "Soft on Me" from the musical "The Fabulous Baker Boys."

Doni succeeds Tami Wahl of Greenbush who was first runner-up at the 1990 pageant and assumed the Miss Thief River Falls title when Stacie Hansen gave it up to be married. Tami represented Thief River Falls at the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin in June.

First runner-up was Michelle Bergeron of Argyle, who also won the personal interview division and was one of three candidates who tied for the Miss Congeniality award. Michelle, 22, is the daughter of Gary and Colleen Bergeron of Argyle and a 1988 graduate of Argyle high school. She is working on a nursing degree at the Thief River Falls Technical college and Northland Community college. Her talent number was a vocal solo.

Second runner-up was Stephanie Perreault, 19, daughter of Francis and Ann Perreault of Red Lake Falls. She will be in her second year at Northland Community college this fall and plans to transfer next year to a four-year college to earn her degree in special education with an emphasis in music. She presented a vocal solo for her pageant talent number.

Also a division winner was Lynnae Broten, 19, daughter of Ron and Mary Broten of Thief River Falls, who won the swimsuit division award. She was also a co-winner of the Miss Congeniality award with Michelle Bergeron of Argyle and Heather Olson, 18, daughter of Myles and Susan Olson of Thief River Falls.

Other contestants were Laura Wygant, 19, daughter of Tom and Sallie Wygant of Warroad; Heather Westlund, 20, daughter of Armand and Donna Westlund of Strathcona; and Tammy Johanning, 19, daughter of Arlene Johanning of Thief River Falls and Bob Johanning of Plummer.

As winner of the Miss Thief River Falls title, Doni Loeslie will receive a $750 scholarship from the sponsoring Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, a $100 scholarship from Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793, $1,200 travel and expense allowance for activities related to her title, a silver jewelry box, hand-crafted walnut keepsake box, a dictionary from Northwest Regional library and interest on a million dollars at prime rate for one day, compliments of Northern State bank and Norwest bank. Two TRF businesses in seat belt challenge

Arctco, Inc. and Northwest Medical Center participate in national awards program emphasizing seat belt use for safety

Arctco and Northwest Medical Center have challenged each other to a contest. The two Thief River Falls companies are participating in a national safety belt awards program.

Arctco and Northwest Medical Center have challenged each other to a contest to see who has the highest safety belt compliance record among employees of the two Thief River Falls companies. Each has over 100 employees, which qualifies them to participate in a national program.

The stakes in the contest involves two weekends of free usage of two snowmobiles vs. two weekends at the Best Western. The stakes as far as safety is concerned are much richer according to law enforcement officials.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said the challenge is actually part of what is called the 70 per cent plus award from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. If after two surveys either company records a seat belt usage of over 70 per cent among its employees, the company qualifies for an award from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The program was created in support of President Bush's goal to achieve 70 per cent national safety belt use by 1992. The benefits of participation are numerous. Lives will be saved, employees will act as a role model for others and the company will be recognized for its efforts.

Monday morning, Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, Pennington County Sheriff Bob Wold and Capt. Lynn Daniels of the Minnesota State Patrol, met with Mike Parker, personnel director of Northwest Medical Center, and Melba Landley, personnel director of Arctco, to formalize the challenge.

The challenge comes at a time when seat belt laws in Minnesota have changed. The fine for failure to use seat belts has increased to $25. The law enforcement officials who met Monday morning said they intend to tell their officers to "vigorously enforce" the seat belt law. So for employees of Arctco and Northwest Medical Center, the challenge comes at a time when it will be in their best interest to participate in the challenge by buckling up. Program organizers, however, believe it may save lives, and that's more important than helping individuals avoid fines.

Parker said he plans to increase awareness at the hospital by putting up a sign at the parking lot, running a video in the cafeteria which encourages seat belt use, writing a story about the program in the company newsletter, and discussing the program with department supervisors.

Landley said she plans to encourage participation by sending out notices with employee pay checks, putting up signs in the parking lot, showing a video during lunch breaks, writing a story for the company newsletter, and meeting with company supervisors.

Two surveys will be taken during the contest. The first was taken Monday. The second and final survey will be taken on August 26. Following an announcement of the winner a drawing will be held to see who will win the prizes being offered by the companies.

Law enforcement officials believe, however, that everyone will come out a winner.

Two types of races were held last weekend, an oval race and a drag race.

The sanctioned race for watercross snowmobiles was held Saturday and Sunday and included two types of races, an oval course and a drag race. This snowmobile sank while trying to return to LaFava Park beach area after a drag race. A pontoon boat with a winch was used to pull sunken snowmobiles to the surface.

Tillage clinic August 20

Tillage clinic will be held Tuesday, August 20, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Northwest Experiment station in Crookston. The clinic will feature working demonstrations of the latest in tillage equipment, including an experimental tillage implement.

Extension and soil conservation service specialists will be on hand to discuss production implications of increased residue. Topics will range from residue measurement to tillage and weed control and nutrient transfer. Farmers will be able to talk first-hand with specialists about small grain tan spot.

Beginning at 1:30 p.m. visitation tours to research plots will be conducted by the experiment station staff.

Eleven soil and water conservation districts in northwestern Minnesota are among co-sponsors of the clinic. Others are the Minnesota extension service, Soil Conservation service, Northwest and West Central Initiative Funds and the Northwest Experiment station.

"Farmers will be able to measure and compare residue amounts left by a variety of tillage methods," states Gary Lee, manager of the East Polk soil and water conservation district, one of the co-sponsors.

"The clinic will help farmers reach the 30 per cent residue amounts needed for erosion control, plus discuss crop management techniques needed when working with increased residue."

School District gets funds

School District 564 at Thief River Falls will receive $110,425 in low interest loans from the Minnesota Department of Public Service for energy improvements in school buildings.

The loan funds will be used to install a pool air-handling unit, convert to efficient light fixtures, replace a boiler burner and complete other conservation measures at Lincoln senior high, Franklin middle school and Washington elementary school.

Identified in a recent energy audit as cost-effective improvements, these measures are expected to reduce the district's energy bill by $20, 393 in the first year.

"Saving energy is one of the surest ways to save money, which is especially important for our schools," states Kris Sanda, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Public Service.

"As budgets get tighter, it becomes more of a challenge to find ways to meet the needs of our students. Making energy improvements will allow schools to use money for programs rather than for fuel bills."

With interest rates as low as four per cent, the loans are available to all Minnesota school districts for making energy-saving capital improvements that have a simple pay-back of 10 years or less.

Dear Readers,
In our mobile society, many persons move to new locations for employment, health, or retirement. Others may have both summer and winter residences, distances apart. If they have definite ideas about burial location and details of the funeral service, this can be formalized by a prearrangement. We invite you to inquire about prearrangement of a funeral with Larry Belmont at Belmont Funeral Home.
Respectfully,

Behm is new coordinator

David Behm, current conservation programs specialist for the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources, has been hired as the board's new coordinator for the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Reserve program.

The RIM program is a land retirement program which pays landowners for returning eligible lands to their natural habitat. The 1991 legislature appropriated more than $8 million in funding for the program, about $6.6 million of which is targeted for wetlands restoration and $1.9 million of which is for other eligible lands, with an emphasis on sensitive ground water areas and riparian lands.

Before the 1991 appropriation, funding for the program had been steadily declining since it began in 1986.

"With the support of the legislature, I'm confident that the RIM Reserve program will continue to protect Minnesota's soil and water resources," Behm said. "I hope to expand on the program's successful record."

Behm, 31, replaces Wayne Edgerton, who left the position in early May to accept a position at the state Department of Natural Resources. Behm officially began his new tasks July 17.

Since the RIM Reserve program was established in 1986, about 36,000 acres have been enrolled under about 104 permanent and long-term easements. Eligible categories under the program include wetland restoration, sensitive ground water areas, riparian areas, riparian pastured hillsides and marginal ag land. The program is administered locally by soil and water conservation districts.

11-year-old ends treasure hunt Saturday

Eleven-year-old Joshua Curfman found the yellow tag designating the Jaycee Summerfest treasure shortly after 6 p.m. Saturday to claim the $100 cash prize.

Son of Tom and Julie Rambeck of Thief River Falls, Joshua was looking for the treasure Saturday in Elks park with his mother and her friend, Kim Tunheim.

According to Julie, Joshua found the tag in a clump of bushes where a person could walk inside near the riverwalk and the river in the lower area of Elks park. She said that she and Kim had been looking for the treasure earlier in the week and had been joined by Joshua on Saturday. They had determined from the clues given that Elks park would be the place to look.

Kermit Genereux, treasure hunt chairman, said that he had issued 12 clues—two clues a day—beginning Monday, July 29, prior to the treasure being found.

"No Declare" lane at customs near Pembina

American travelers to the Canadian province of Manitoba can expect more convenient border crossing service with the recent opening of a 'No Declare' express lane at Canada customs at the terminus of I-29 near Pembina, ND.

The new "wait reduction" program is expressly designed for American visitors with nothing to declare to customs. The Canadian government wants to reduce congestion from line-ups at the border during peak periods of traffic from I-29 into Manitoba and make it more convenient for visitors to enter the country.

The service officially started Thursday, August 1.

Tourism is Manitoba's third largest industry and the international boundary crossing at Emerson, Manitoba, is the busiest port of entry between Ontario and Alberta.

Eric Stefanson, Manitoba's minister of tourism, said the province devotes a lot of effort and money inviting Americans to visit the province and the new express lane "is a strong signal to our U.S. neighbors that we welcome them and want to make traveling here as easy and enjoyable as possible."

Speaking Of . . .

by Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . An Outdoor Pool

I really would like to see Thief River Falls have an outdoor swimming pool. I can think of lots of reasons why we should have one.

– First of all, even though most of my children are pretty much grown up now, I remember how it was when they were smaller. They would have loved to have a place to swim where:

(1) The water was clean;

(2) The pool was not already filled to capacity whenever they decided to go swimming;

(3) They didn't have to spend their entire week's allowance for one hour in the water.

– Second of all, I would have loved to have a place they could swim where:

(1) I didn't have to worry that they would come home with itches, rashes, athlete's foot and ear infections, and I wouldn't have to pay the doctor bills;

(2) I didn't have to worry that they would drown because of too many children and not enough competent lifeguards;

(3) They could spend the day outdoors in the sunshine with their friends instead of inside a building breathing damp chlorine air;

(4) I didn't have to shell out a fortune every time they wanted to go swimming and had already spent their allowances yesterday.

– Third, this city needs more recreational places where families can bring their children to do fun things. Playgrounds and picnic areas are all well and good and used a lot, but we could use something more. A swimming pool would give parents a chance to do something with their children, and, from the looks of the police reports we read every week, more of those types of family activities are sadly needed around here:

– Speaking of police reports, an outdoor pool would give the teenagers and pre-teens a place to go for good, clean fun (no pun intended). To be honest, this town needs a whole lot more places for underage kids to do legal fun things instead of the illegal "fun" things a lot of them appear to be doing now.

– An outdoor pool would be an added attraction for out of town visitors, and we all know how much the local stores need out of town shoppers, don't we? There are too many stores closing or hurting for business since Grand Forks and Fargo have taken away the Sunday shoppers. If this town wants to draw people, it better get busy and have some attractions for those Canadian families who are so vital to the area economy. An outdoor pool would be a good beginning, but just a beginning, mind you.

– An outdoor pool would be an ideal place to bring our out of town summer company. We want and need areas where we can spend time with people who come to visit us and where children will have something to do while parents are chatting. What better place than one where we can enjoy the northwestern Minnesota summer sun and fresh air?

Reading the story about the outdoor swimming pool in the Northern Watch, it sounds as though we might have enough money to start building a pool right now. I don't know how others feel about it, but I don't think it is necessary that the swimming pool be such a "Cadillac" of a place.

How about starting things off with something more sensible, like a "Ford" or a "Chevy" pool, or even one of those economical, Fuel-saving "compact models"? Save some money and add some special "Cadillac" features after a while, just like sensible, budget-conscious folks do. After all, how many people can afford a "Cadillac" the first time around?

Yes, the pool should be large enough to accommodate quite a few people, but it does not have to be an elaborate, fancy place. The main thing here is the pool, then put some deck chairs and picnic benches around, have a simple concession stand and lots of trash receptacles and it will be fine. It might be a good idea to build the pool in a place where there is plenty of space though, so additional fun things can be added at a later date. Who knows, maybe, if everything is handled well, the pool will generate enough revenue all by itself to add some fancy things like the lap swimming, diving, plunge slide, zero depth and wading pools, grass sunbathing, volleyball court, wet sand modeling area, children's play area and flume slide in a few years. Say, why not get two birds with one stone and build by a children's playground and picnic area while you're at it? That would take care of the grass sunbathing, too.

Making the Thief River Falls pool bigger and better doesn't win any points. If we are thinking this is a pool-building contest, we've already lost. Thief River Falls has waited for several years and watched smaller area towns raise funds for, build and enjoy their outdoor swimming pools. I'd rather see us have a more ordinary pool and enjoy it than to have no pool at all for anyone to enjoy. Wouldn't you?

Sara Radniecki

MSU awards Sara Radniecki honors award

Sara Radniecki, a 1991 graduate of Oklee high school, has been awarded an honors apprenticeship scholarship to study at Moorhead State University.

The honors apprentice program gives top students scholarship help, hands-on career training and a head start on academic studies. Students in the top five per cent of their high school graduating class and ACT scores receive scholarships covering full tuition and fees, renewable for three years.

An eight-hour-per-week 'apprenticeship' is tied to the scholarship. It's basically a mentoring process where students work and study closely with faculty or administrators in an area of interest to them.

Some of this year's apprenticeships include: Mass communications apprentices training as associate producers of Campus News, aired weekly on public television. Apprentices in computer science are trained as 'Super users' and troubleshooters. Theatre apprentices are learning to be house managers and eventually producers. Music apprentices are staffing ensembles. Biology apprentices are staffing ensembles. Biology apprentices are assisting faculty in primary research.

Sara, who is interested in studying engineering, will be doing her internship this fall with MSU's chemistry department. She will also receive a volleyball scholarship at MSU.

Accidents still leading cause of death in MN

Accidents are the leading cause of death to people through age 37 and the fourth leading cause of death among people of all ages, according to Ralph Church, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

The department of public safety released its summary of motor vehicle crash facts for 1990 recently. Church pointed out in his introductory letter that accidents are the leading cause of death to people through age 37 and the fourth leading cause of death among people of all ages. Traffic crashes, he said, are by far the leading cause of accidental death. Hundreds of people die each year and thousands are injured in Minnesota alone. The economic loss due to crashes in the state in 1990 exceeded $700 million.

Despite the sobering statistics, Church explained that great improvements have been made during the last two decades. In 1971, there were 1,024 traffic fatalities. Last year there were 568. In 1971, the fatality rate per hundred million vehicle miles traveled was 4.38. Last year it was 1.47, the lowest it has ever been.

Charges pending following incident at local bar

Several charges are pending against a St. Hilaire man following an incident early Friday morning which began in the Rusty Nail.

According to the police report, which was received at 12:12 a.m. August 2, a disturbance was reported at the Rusty Nail. When police responded they discovered the subject walking east on Third street yelling and swearing. The subject was stopped and asked to get in the squad car. They went back to the bar where they talked to bar personnel. Personnel at the bar said the subject caused a disturbance and was asked to leave. He then allegedly made threats against the personnel. At that time the subject in the squad car became irate and began punching and kicking the cage and window in the squad car. He also allegedly made threats against the bar owner from the squad car. He then kicked out the rear passenger window of the squad car. He allegedly remained disorderly following his arrest, allegedly making threats to officers.

Charges of two counts of terroristic threats, criminal damage to property, attempted escape from custody, and possession of a small amount of marijuana, are pending against 29-year-old Rodney Nissen of St. Hilaire.

Road projects start in area Wednesday

Safety improvements will begin in Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake counties about Wednesday of this week, according to Todd Broadwell, project engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation in Thief River Falls.

Work includes extension of box culverts and regrading on both sides of the road along with removal of guardrail to provide for safe movement of today's larger agricultural equipment. Broadwell said the projects will improve safety of the motoring public.

The contractor plans starting one and one-half miles north of Stephen on highway 75 and working south, with other project locations being near Argyle, St. Hilaire and Brooks. Projects will be done without closing the roads but motorists may expect to encounter temporary lane closures with flagpersons at the sites. Broadwell asked that drivers be patient and alert while driving through project sites.

Riley Brothers Construction, Inc., from Morris is the prime contractor on the $457,958 project series. Ron Bumann is the project inspector for Mn/DOT.

For the past 100 years agriculture has played an important role in Pennington county. In the top photo shown here, a typical farm is pictured with the house at right, a barn at the left and two sheds, one with a sod roof at the center. A horse-drawn buggy can be seen near the house and farm wagon in front of the barn. A sled on runners sits in front of a large barrel just to the left of the center sheds and a horse-drawn binder is barely visible just to the right of the barn. The picture was probably taken in the very early 1900's. The middle photo shows the use of a threshing machine in approximately the 1920's being run by the tractor on the left. Grain from the horse drawn bundle wagons is being pitched into the threshing machine and a grain wagon is parked at the back right. A metal drum is shown at the front, which probably held gasoline to fuel the tractors. In the bottom photo a group of Pennington county residents are shown visiting the winter shows in Crookston, probably in the late 1920's or early 1930's. The photographs are being printed courtesy of the Pennington County Historical society. If anyone has additional information about these pictures, please call Donna Myhrer at 681-5767 or 964-5245.

Legion Bombers win District 9-A Crown

Forced to a do-or-die playoff final by Red Lake Falls Sunday, the American Legion Bombers baseball team from Thief River Falls held on for a 9-8 win to claim the District 9-A Tier II title at Ada.

Thief River Falls is one of eight finalists remaining in the state and will now advance to a play-off game against Nashwauk-Keewatin tonight (Tuesday) at 7:30 p.m. at Grand Rapids. Winner of that game will be part of a four-team state final Saturday and Sunday in Mankato.

Coach Wayne Rahlf said he expects his team to be up for the game tonight, coming off a district tournament where the Bombers played major league defense, committing only three errors in five games.

"We have also been hitting the ball," Rahlf said, calling attention to the 21 hits the Bombers had in the two final tournament games against Red Lake Falls. Overall on the season Thief River Falls held a 6-5 edge in all games played against its southern rivals.

Although optimistic about his team's chances tonight, Rahlf said it has been a successful season already, capped by winning the District 9-A tournament. All players on the Bombers team are 16-year-olds, he said, while other teams have been playing 17-year-olds and even a few 18-year-old players. Thief River Falls takes a 41-17-1 record into the state playoff at Grand Rapids.

After a tournament-opening round win over the Moorhead Vets 13-9 last Thursday, Thief River Falls defeated New York Mills 5-2 in the second round Friday.

On Saturday they banged out 16 hits to hand Red Lake Falls its first loss in the winner's bracket of the double-elimination tournament 12-3. Red Lake Falls came back with a victory over Frazee in the loser's bracket Saturday to earn another shot at undefeated Thief River Falls.

This time Red Lake Falls turned the tables and shut out Thief River Falls 2-0 in a well-pitched, errorless game, forcing a final game for the district championship—each team having one loss.

In the title game, Red Lake Falls was the home team and took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. Thief River Falls came back with a single run in the second and five in the third for a 6-2 lead, but Red Lake Falls closed to 6-4 with two runs in the bottom of the third. Thief River Falls stretched the lead to 8-4 with two more runs in the fourth but Red Lake Falls answered that challenge with three runs in the bottom of the inning to trail by only one run.

Neither team scored in the fifth and sixth innings, but Thief River Falls scored what proved to be the winning run in the top of the seventh. Wade Evenson singled with one out and held at first when the Red Lake Falls shortstop made a diving catch on a pop-up in short left field for the second out: Jeremy Tallum's double put runners on second and third and Evenson later raced across the plate on a passed ball.

Marc Haugen, who has developed into Rahlf's "closer" this season, opened the bottom of the seventh in relief of Rick Ostby, trying to protect the two-run lead. He struck out the first two Red Lake Falls batters, then gave up four successive bases on balls, forcing in the eighth Red Lake Falls run. With the bases loaded he struck out the next batter to preserve the victory. Ostby walked three and struck out three in the first six innings.

Jeremy Olson earned a complete game victory over New York Mills in the second game of the tournament, striking out five and walking only two in the route-going performance.

Rick Ostby paced the hitting attack with a 4-for-4 effort, collecting two singles, a double and a triple. He just missed hitting for the cycle as his bases loaded fly ball bid for a home run came down just short of the fence. Runners had to hold anticipating a catch and could advance only one base, restricting Ostby to a single.

In the winner's bracket victory over Red Lake Falls Saturday, Thief River Falls clubbed Red Lake Falls pitchers for 16 hits and scored in four of the six innings when they came to bat.

Kevin Erickson pitched the first four and one-third innings, leaving with a 6-3 lead and the bases loaded with one out in the top of the fifth inning. Marc Haugen earned the save with two and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief, striking out five of the eight batters he retired. Erickson had one strikeout.

Jeremy Tallum also went the distance in a hard luck losing effort for Thief River Falls, giving up only six hits and three walks while striking out five. Neither team committed an error.

Boys high school basketball ...

Brekke to coach TRF

Activities director Lee Alger said he has recommended that Steve Brekke be named as the Thief River Falls boys high school basketball coach for the 1991-92 season.

Alger's recommendation goes before School Board 564 officials for final approval.

Brekke, who played high school basketball in Warren and college basketball at the University of North Dakota, comes to Thief River Falls after serving as an assistant coach at Tri-County High School in Karlstad.

"He comes highly recommended," said Alger.

Brekke would succeed Tom Hunt, who stepped down from the Thief River Falls boys high school basketball position last spring.

It was reported earlier that Sally Wiltse will moved up from the role of freshman coach to served as head coach of the Thief River Falls girls basketball program next winter, succeeding Tom Schafer. Like Hunt, Schafer resigned from his coaching duties after the 1990-91 season.

Nancy Shumacher consultant for Pennington County from Environmental Consulting and Technology, Inc. reviewed with the County Board her concerns on the Capital Assistance Compost Grant Application she has completed for Pennington County. The first presentation to the Office of Waste Managements Solid Waste Advisory Committee is scheduled for this Friday July 12th. Nancy Schumacher will attend along with Rick Nordhagen. Commissioner Swanson also indicated he would attend the meeting. The main concerns which will be outlined in a letter from the Office of Waste Management will include the need for a Solid Waste/Recycling Officer. This is also going to hold up the approval of the Solid Waste Plan. The County Board then discussed the need for a Solid Waste Officer and the possibility of combining this position with another position in the County. Commissioner Koop moved, seconded by Commissioner Murphy that the Pennington County Board appoint a current County employee or hire a Solid Waste/Recycling coordinator by January 1st, 1992. This employee may have additional duties assigned to them. Motion carried with Commissioner Penning voting nay.

County Attorney Olin made a recommendation to the County Board to reject all bids for the Skid Steer Loader that were submitted at the last County Board Meeting. Incomplete bid specifications and not meeting the minimum specifications were reasons listed for not accepting these bids. Commissioner Murphy moved, seconded by Commissioner Koop to reject all Skid Steer Loader bids and to rebid or obtain quotes as allowed under the Solid Waste Statutes at the earliest possible date. Motion unanimously carried.

Acting County Engineer George Broadwell discussed the City of Thief River Falls request to extend the concrete island on the corner of Pennington and 1st to prevent a left hand turn from the extreme west land on Pennington Avenue into the soon to be built Gas Station Convenience Store. The City of Thief River Falls asked the County to share 50/50 the estimated $2,600 cost. The County Board held over any decision until George Broadwell could talk this over with MNDOT officials.

George Broadwell also updated the County Board on the Blacktopping of S.A. #12, #7 and #13 which is soon completed.

Representatives of the City of Thief River Falls including Milton Bursted, Don Stewart, Jean Hemrichs, J.J. Womack, Jerry Wigness, Don Barron, Arlo Rude and Roger DeLap met with the County Board to discuss taking steps to get the reservoir above the dam dredged. The City of Thief River Falls is presenting a letter and request to the Red Lake Watershed District Board July 11th, 1991 requesting them to take the lead in studying, permitting, dredging and funding of this project. The City representative asked the County Board to do the same. The Pennington County Board requested the County Auditor to draft a letter to the Red Lake Watershed Board that can be presented to the Red Lake Watershed Board of Directors July 11th, 1991. The letter should include mention that this project would agree with the goals of the Comprehensive Local Water Plan and also list ways the County is promoting the reduction of soil erosion.

Commissioner Murphy moved, seconded by Commissioner Koop to readvertise for the County Engineer position with applications to close by September 18th, 1991. Motion unanimously carried.

Let it be noted that the candidate for the Joint County Engineer position with Red Lake County had turned the position down and that Red Lake County had taken action to hire another applicant as County Engineer for Red Lake County only.

Moved by Commissioner Murphy, seconded by Commissioner Koop to adjourn to July 23, 1991 at 5:00 P.M. Motion carried.

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Green Funeral Home, Inc., 420 LaBree Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, has applied for a Variance to the Zoning Regulations governing Rear Yard Setbacks in the C-3 Central Business District. The property is legally described as the South 15 feet (15') of Lot 15 and Lots 16, 17 and 18 in Block Nineteen of the Original Town.

Subject to approval of the Zoning Amendment Request on which the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing immediately preceding the Board of Zoning Appeals Hearing on the Variance Request, Green Funeral Home proposes to construct a building addition of approximately 800 square feet on the northeast corner of the existing building. The north and east walls of the proposed addition will match the existing building lines. The easterly wall of the proposed addition will have a proposed Rear Yard Setback of nineteen feet (19'), as does the existing easterly wall. The proposed Setback would require approval of a one foot (1') variance to the twenty foot (20') Rear Yard Setback required by Sec. 11.52, Subd. 5.

Notice is further given, that the Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Hearing on the Variance Request at approximately 7:15 P.M. (CDST) following the Planning Commission Hearing on the Zoning Amendment Requests, on Monday, August 19, 1991, in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Variance Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or telephone 218-681-2500.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Green Funeral Home, Inc., 420 LaBree Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, has requested an Amendment to the Zoning of their property, located in Block 19 of the Original Town, from C-4 Downtown Fringe District to C-3 Central Business District. The Green Funeral Home property is legally described as follows:

The South 15 feet (15') of Lot 15 and Lots 16, 17 and 18 of Block 19 in the Original Town.

Green Funeral Home, Inc. proposed to construct a building addition of approximately 800 square feet on the Northeastern corner of the existing building. They also propose to do interior remodeling of the existing building. The building addition and remodeling will include an office workroom, storage room, stairway, elevator shaft and handicapped accessibility features.

Since the existing building exceeds the 5,000 square feet maximum gross floor area permitted in the C-4 District, in order to expand the building the property would have to be rezoned to C-3. Because the Green Funeral Home does not abut the Central Business District, the City-owned property between the Funeral Home and the C-3 District would also have to be rezoned to C-3 Central Business District. The legal description of the City-owned property (parking lot) is as follows:

Lots 1 - 6, inclusive, and Lots 19 - 24, inclusive and Vacated Alley in Block 19 of the Original Town.

Notice is further given, that the Planning Commission will hold a Hearing on the Zoning Amendment Requests at 7:00 P.M. (CDST) on Monday, August 19, 1991, in the City Council Chambers, City Auditorium. All persons wishing to comment on the Zoning Amendment Requests will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Auditorium, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or telephone 218-681-2500.

Antlerless Permit Drawing

Licensing officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) have discontinued the special, "Youth Firearms Safety" drawing for antlerless deer permits this year. In years past, hunters under the age of 18 were eligible for a separate antlerless permit lottery, using their Firearms Safety Certificate number. For 1991, all hunters who submit a valid application by the September 5, 1991 deadline will be entered in the regular antlerless permit drawing.

The change has occurred in order to improve the odds for young hunters to receive an antlerless permit, by entering them right away into the regular computerized lottery with its built-in preference system. If a hunter does not receive an antlerless permit this season, the computer automatically improves their chances for next year.

The key to the system is the use of a 13-digit I.D. number. The six-digit number used on firearms safety certificates issued prior to January 1, 1991, was just not compatible with the sophisticated computer software used in the preference system. As a result, the firearms safety drawings were totally random every year with no built-in program of ascending preference for unsuccessful applicants.

Hunters under the age of 18 are encouraged to use their driver's license or Public Safety I.D. number if they have one, or the 13-digit code number from their Firearms Safety Certificate, if the certificate was issued after January 1, 1991.

Hunters under 18 who do not supply a driver's license, state I.D., or Firearms Safety Certificate number, will automatically have a 13-digit code number issued to them by the DNR computer and will be entered in the regular preference drawing. This same number will then be used for all future drawings.

All hunters who will be 18 or older by the September 5, 1991, antlerless permit deadline, must have a Minnesota Driver's license or Public Safety I.D. number to apply for the antlerless permit. The computer will not automatically issue a number for them.

Youth who applied for last year's Firearms Safety drawing, and are still under 18, will have a new 13-digit number automatically assigned to them. Those who entered last year, and have turned 18 by September September 5th this year, should use their driver's license or Public Safety I.D. number, if it is different from their computer-assigned number.

My mid-August, all applicants from last year's antlerless permit lottery, including the Youth Firearms Safety drawing, will be mailed a post card from the DNR License Bureau with a peel-off sticker that includes their 13-digit I.D. number, plus their zone preference and mailing address from last year.

If all the information is the same for this year, applicants need only peel off the sticker, affix it to the 1991 antlerless permit application that comes with their new deer license, sign it, and send it in. If there are changes or corrections to be made—to the applicant's name, address, or I.D. number—or if they wish to apply for a different zone this year, the old information should be crossed out and the new information neatly written in before the sticker and new application are returned.

If the application is not completed properly—no zone preference, no I.D. number, no signature, incomplete name or mailing address—the computer will reject it and the hunter will not be entered in the drawing. Those who made errors on last year's permit application will not be receiving a post card this year.

State Law requires big game hunters under the age of 16 to have a valid Firearms Safety Certificate from a DNR firearms safety training course in-possession, along with their hunting license, while in the field. Hunters under the age of 14 must also be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Youngsters must be at least 11 years old to take a firearms safety training course and must be at least 12 years old to receive the certificate. For information on firearms safety training courses in your area, contact your local DNR Conservation Officer through your county sheriff's office or law enforcement center; or, in the Twin Cities area, call the DNR Information Center at 296-6157.

Red River Cats

A major, long-term study of catfish populations in the Red River of the North, begun last year by fisheries specialists from Minnesota and North Dakota, along with research biologists from the University of North Dakota (UND) at Grand Forks, was joined this summer by Canadian fisheries specialists from the Manitoba Ministry of Natural Resources.

Last year, channel catfish, 12-inches long and larger, were trapped, tagged and re-released in the Red River at several locations between Breckenridge and Pembina. Catfish were also tagged in four major tributaries to the Red River, including lower portions of the Red Lake and Ottertail rivers in Minnesota, the Sheyenne River in North Dakota, and the Bois de Sioux River on the North Dakota/Minnesota border south of Breckenridge. A total of 3,005 fish were tagged.

This summer, 1,000 additional catfish were tagged in Canada, both north and south of the Lockport Dam, north of Winnipeg. Fisheries specialists from UND and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) assisted Canadian researchers in catching and tagging the fish.

In the U.S. portion of the river, channel cats were tagged with a yellow, oval-shaped "disc dangler" laminated plastic tag, with an individual tag number on one side and the name and address of the UND Biology Department on the other. The Canadian fish received a similar tag, either red or blue in color depending on whether the fish was caught above or below the Lockport Dam. The tags are attached with a stainless steel wire through the upper back of the fish, just behind the dorsal fin.

Over the next several years, as river anglers catch the catfish, they will be asked to return the tags of those fish they keep, and the tag numbers of fish caught and released—along with the date and location of the catch. Numbers of untagged fish caught at the same time, and either kept or released, would also be information to report. Tags should not be removed from fish that are released.

The project is intended to gather data on catfish movement and distribution within the river system; on age and growth, fishing pressure, and harvest levels. So far, approximately 100 anglers have reported information. One fish, tagged last year near Drayton, ND, was recaptured June 25, 1991 by a commercial fisherman in Lake Winnipeg, more than 100 river miles to the north. Several other fish, tagged this summer below (north of) the Lockport Dam, have already shown up on the end of a fishing line near the Drayton Dam.

As with other slow-growth, trophy-fish species, catfish anglers on both sides of the border are being encouraged to practice catch-and-release. According to Henry Drewes, project coordinator for the Minnesota DNR, catch-and-release will actually improve the value of the study. "The more often a tagged fish is caught, and the information reported, the more that fish will be able to tell us," said Drewes.

"Knowing that an individual fish was tagged at one location and caught at another gives us one small piece of the puzzle," said Drewes. "Knowing when and where that same fish was caught and released at several locations over a period of several years; and perhaps knowing how many other tagged and untagged fish were caught along with it, will tell us a whole lot more. It's possible we could be collecting information for ten years or more—and that would be great."

The catfish research project follows on the heels of new catfish fishing regulations instituted last year by both North Dakota and Minnesota. The new regulations, in effect on the Bois De Sioux, the Red River and all tributaries, reduced the in-possession limit from eight to five catfish, with only one fish allowed over 24 inches in length. The province of Manitoba adopted similar regulations several years ago to protect the breeding population in its portion of the Red River, and maintain a high-quality fishery in the face of increased fishing pressure.

Anglers catching fish tagged in the U.S.—those with a yellow tag—are asked to send their catch information to: Department of Biology, Box 8238, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND 58202. Information on Canadian catfish—those with a red or blue tag—should be sent to: Catfish Program, Manitoba Ministry of Natural Resources - Fisheries Branch, Box 20, 1495 St. James Street, Winipeg, Manitoba R3H0W9.

Bears Receive Shock

Minnesota's honey-eating bears could be in for a shock.

That's because the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is encouraging beekeepers to protect their hives with special fences that deliver a brief but powerful jolt of electricity. The shock is short and sharp but does not harm the bear.

"Bears love honey and bee larvae," said Kent Solberg, a DNR wildlife specialist at Hinckley. "For that reason, we have been working with beekeepers to develop strategies to reduce bear damage to bee hives."

As part of that effort the DNR has established a demonstration at the Mille Lacs Wildlife Management area near Onamia. The demonstration consists of a portable energized fence that surrounds several stands of hives. The fenced area is a 20-foot square consisting of three strands of plastic rope interwoven with stainless steel wire and supported by fiberglass poles. The system can be powered by eight D-cell or 12-volt batteries. The cost is about $250, which is about the value of one hive.

Lincoln high school marching band awards were presented by director Bruce Folt Saturday morning at a breakfast prior to the band's appearance in the Jaycees Summerfest parade. Seated are Adam Jacobson (left), most improved and Mark Spyhalski, newcomer of the year. Standing are members of the bass drum section selected as the most valuable contributor to the band this summer. Left to right they include Eric Olmstead, Joann Gruzak, Heidi Thompson and John Gunstad. They are holding trophies won during the summer parade season.

"Energized fence systems have proven effective around the world to control everything from snakes to elephants," said Solberg. "In southern Minnesota, several apple orchards are using energized systems to protect their crops from deer."

Solberg stressed that "energized" fences are significantly different than ordinary "electric" fences. One difference, he said, is that energized fences deliver a high voltage shock. A second difference is that energized fences have less electrical resistance, thereby delivering a powerful shock throughout the length of the fence.

"This abatement technique is being used successfully in Canada and the eastern United States," said Solberg. "Because of its low cost, portability and effectiveness, we believe it has applications in north and central Minnesota.

"Use of energized fences is consistent with the DNR's animal damage policy which places the highest priority on education and preventive abatement," Solberg said.

People interested in viewing the energized fencing system may contact the Mille Lacs Wildlife Management Area at (612) 532-3537. The fence will be in place this year and the following two summers.

By-laws of the association do not allow for write-in candidates or nominations from the floor once nominations close at 5 p.m. August 1.

Four directors are to be elected at the annual meeting for three-year terms. James Rogalla and Roger DeLap are incumbents. DeLap having been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Rev. Richard Larson which expires this year. Rev. Larson has moved from the community.

Kays and Lee are nominees for board positions presently held by Kenneth Froschheiser and William Hogan, both of whom have served three three-year terms and are ineligible to succeed themselves under the medical center by-laws.

In addition to election, the annual meeting will include reports on the past year's business operation.

LaVonne Forsberg is Artist of the Month

by Cathy Mueller, President
Northern Prairie Artists Ass'n.

LaVonne Forsberg's interest in art started 20 years ago when she discovered paints came out of tubes and started to experiment with oils.

Her first projects involved rosemaling, and she then began to work with acrylics and watercolors. She knows that some of her projects have gone to Norway, South American and Japan, and "some you have no idea where they are now," she said.

With her husband Larry, LaVonne has operated the Country Class Arts store for the past 10 years. It was during the spring of 1985 that LaVonne and several other artists in the area decided to start a club of local artists.

"There are a lot of good artists out there, and people like to see good original art," LaVonne said. She became a founder and charter member of the Northern Prairie Artists association and continues to be an active member.

LaVonne also does woodcarving, designs stained glass projects for her husband to cut and assemble, and works with wicker and pine needle basketry and clay sculpture. Much of her work is for sale in her shop.

LaVonne joined Artists Unlimited in Lake Bronson when it first started. She also belongs to the Minnesota Rural Artists association; Red River Watercolor Society in Fargo, ND; Bismarck Art and Gallery association in Bismarck, ND; Northstar Watercolor Society of Minneapolis; and Community Art association of Grand Forks, ND.

She has been invited to show her work at the Midwest Originals Gallery in Long Lake, Second Street Gallery in Buffalo and the Pine Cone Gallery in Pequot Lakes. She will soon be showing her work at the Bismarck Art Association Gallery in Bismarck.

For nine years in a row she has won an award in the Equitable Reserve Insurance company show in Wisconsin. She has earned several Minnesota Rural Artists association awards, purchase awards at Winterthing in Grand Forks, ND, several awards through Lake Branson's Artists Unlimited and at the Pennington county fair.

Many of her one-woman art shows have been held at the Best Western inn, Rex Cafe, Northwest Regional Development commission, Heritage community center, Falls Clinic and the Thief River Falls public library as well as Win-E-Mac motel at Erskine.

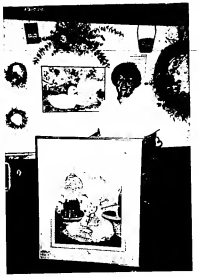
She has studied with such watercolor artists as Phil Austin, Robert Wood, Rose Edin, Christopher Schink, Russell Norberg, Marv Espe, Judy Blaine and Jane Burnham, among others. She has also taken oil painting instruction from Sue Schewee, Peggy Nuttle, Ginger Lager, Marv Espe and Helen Carven.

Asked what her favorite medium of art was, she replied immediately, "Watercolor. I'm addicted to it. It is more challenging and I love the colors I get."

She also passes around the credit for her success. "I have been fortunate to have Larry and my family backing me all the way in my art work," she said. "My students have helped me very much because they make me aware of what I am doing and that encourages me and has been helpful alot."

LaVonne has been teaching classes for the past 14 years. Currently she is teaching classes on Thursday mornings and evenings at her shop.

LaVonne is presently getting ready for a watercolor painting seminar she will be teaching September 28 and 29. It will cover using references, colors, positive and negative spaces and help with an actual painting. (Information is available from Cathy Mueller by writing to Northern Prairie Artists association, Box 15, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.)



August Artist of the Month for the Northern Prairie Artists association is LaVonne Forsberg, owner of Country Class Arts in Thief River Falls. She is shown with two of her watercolor paintings, "Resting Place" and "Little Playmates."

1990 Accidents total almost 100,000 in MN

Minnesota department of public safety has released its annual report on accidents called "1990 Minnesota Motor Vehicle Crash Facts".

The manual is produced annually by the Office of Traffic Safety, Minnesota Department of Public Safety, in accordance with state law. The purpose of the manual is to provide summary statistical information about the crashes reported to the state each year.

There were almost 100,000 crashes in 1990. A total of 568 people died. In 1966, there were 53,041 traffic fatalities in the country, or 5.7 for every hundred million miles of travel. In Minnesota in 1968, there were 1,060 traffic fatalities, or 5.3 per hundred million miles of travel. Those were the worst years. Since then, both the rate and the number of fatalities has declined in a fairly steady pattern. Last year, there were 44,500 traffic fatalities throughout the country and 568 in Minnesota. The respective rates per hundred million miles of travel were 2.1 and 1.47.

Of the 100,000 crashes in 1990, over two-thirds 69 per cent were property damage only crashes. There were 30,684 injury crashes and 503 fatal crashes in which 44,634 people were injured and 568 people died.

Most crash victims were car or pickup truck occupants. Seventy-two per cent of the people who died and 83 per cent of those injured were drivers or passengers in passenger cars or pickup trucks. Two other large categories, among those killed, were pedestrians (65 deaths, or 11 per cent of the total) and motorcyclists (50 deaths, or nine per cent of the total). Among those injured, van occupants and motorcyclists each accounted for an additional four per cent, and bicyclists and pedestrians each accounted for an additional three per cent.

Victims were disproportionately young. Forty-one per cent of the fatalities and 43 per cent of those injured were between the ages of 15 and 29. Men outnumbered women almost two to one among those killed, but the ratio was equal among those injured.

Drivers were disproportionately male and young. Forty-three per cent of the drivers in fatal crashes and 41 per cent of the drivers in injury crashes were between the ages of 15 and 29. Male drivers outnumbered female drivers 2.6 to 1 in fatal crashes. Male drivers in injury crashes outnumbered female drivers in injury crashes 1.6 to 1 (even though females were injured in crashes as often as males.)

Police suspected alcohol more in fatal crashes. For each driver in a crash, police indicate on the accident report if they suspect the person to have been drinking, or to have been under the influence of alcohol, according to the legal definition of that term. The police so indicated for three per cent of the drivers in property damage accidents, eight per cent of the drivers in injury crashes, and 20 per cent of the drivers in fatal crashes. (Such reports are believed to understate alcohol involvement, however.)

Most crashes involve another motor vehicle. For drivers of all ages, the most common type of crash was collision with another motor vehicle in traffic. This was true of 75 per cent or more of drivers in different age groups.

Psychologist joins medical center staff

Dr. Karen Pietras has joined the staff of Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls as a staff clinical psychologist for the mental health division.

A native of rural Ohio, Dr. Pietras recently moved to Thief River Falls from Tucson, AZ, where she served as director of behavioral health for the Canyon Ranch Life Enhancement Center.

Her husband, Randy Swanton, is a professional sculptor/potter who plans to set up a studio in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Pietras earned her Ph. D. degree in clinical psychology from the University of Wyoming and completed clinical internships at the Yale Behavioral Medicine clinic and the Baylor University College of Medicine.

Dr. Steve Levinson, director of the mental health division, said the addition of Dr. Pietras "will help the medical center keep pace with steadily growing demands for mental health services in northwestern Minnesota." The medical center currently employs six doctoral level psychologists.

Local 4-Hers in Indiana on exchange

Seven 4-H club members from Pennington county completed a one-week exchange trip to Indiana when they returned to Thief River Falls Thursday, August 1.

Making the trip were Beth Notvik, Lance Moe, Marie Lubitz, Guy Drevlow, Angie Mapes, Lesley Helgeland and Jason Engen. Last year members from Indiana 4-H clubs visited in Pennington and Marshall counties.

Correction:

An account of an accident that happened last Saturday was inaccurate. An accident between a semi and a 1983 Toyota Tercel driven by Troy Toggart, Newfolden, happened on Highway 59 south near the Galaxy Twin theatres. The accident happened when the semi had stopped in traffic to make a left turn and Taggart attempted to pass the semi. The Times regrets the error and any embarrassment it may have caused.

A RECESSION CAN TEACH LESSONS IN BASIC VALUES

Nearly every nation occasionally suffers a period of economic downturn called a recession. It can come from a variety or combination of causes, including a war or even a threat of war, or an international energy crisis. It can also be started by irresponsible talk, causing people to be fearful of spending their money, even for the things they need. This results in the loss of jobs and tax revenues, as well as general financial chaos. The remedy is to adopt a wise spending program, but otherwise ignore the "gloom and doom" prophets. Also, attend your House of Worship. The good times always return eventually, and meanwhile, some priceless lessons in basic values have been learned through faith, in counting our blessings.

If we live good lives,
the times are good.
As we are, such are the times.

Recognize signs of credit card addiction

Credit cards are a wonderful convenience, but they can become an expensive and troublesome habit. If you have noticed that you are relying more on credit to make your purchases—and that your monthly credit card bills are mounting, now is the time to act to avoid getting into serious financial trouble. Stop the spending trend of using your credit cards too often and too much, suggests the Minnesota Attorney General's office.

Danger signs that signal credit card addiction include:

- Making the minimum payment on each account each month, instead of paying most or all of the balance;
- Considering getting a new credit card because you are close to the credit limit on all of your current ones;
- Using your credit card at times when you used to pay in cash—for example, for small items like shampoo and cat food; and,
- Running a few days late on critical payments, such as the rent or mortgage, or being consistently late in paying all of your bills.

If the above warning signs describe your current state of affairs, you have probably exceeded your credit-debt limit.

There are a few steps you can take if you have trouble paying your credit card bills at the end of the month. First, reduce the number of credit cards you have to a maximum of three. Restrict yourself to one major all-purpose card, a card from a department store you patronize often and a gasoline card.

Second, record all of your charges. Avoid surprises by noting all your purchases in a designated place such as your checkbook. Examine the list daily to make sure you are not exceeding an amount you can manage when the bills come due.

Third, if your debt is exceeding your income, you may want to approach one or more of your creditors and try to either reduce or defer monthly payments without penalty. There is no guarantee that your creditors will agree to this arrangement, but you may find that they are willing to work with you. Remember, if you are delinquent in paying your monthly bills, creditors have the right to try to obtain payments. They are also likely to report your delinquencies to one or more credit bureaus, thus jeopardizing your credit rating.

If you feel unable to resolve your credit problems alone, you may wish to contact a Consumer Credit Counseling Service (CCCS). This counseling service is offered at little or no cost. CCCS is a non-profit organization that counsels consumers who are in debt. A counselor will try to arrange a repayment plan that is acceptable to you and your creditors. The CCCS staff will help you set up a realistic budget and plan expenditures: One of the best benefits of credit counseling is to heed the important lesson that they offer; that is, how to stay out of trouble in the future.

For a copy of the new publication entitled, "The Line on Credit Cards," contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division: 124 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155; (612) 296-3353, or 1-800-652-9747.

Young drivers, though, were in more single-vehicle crashes than older drivers; 16 per cent of the under 25 drivers hit fixed objects or were in a crash where their vehicle overturned.

Contributing factors differ from single-vehicle to multiple-vehicle crashes. Police can cite zero, one, or two contributing factors for each driver in a crash. In single vehicle crashes, the three factors cited most often, in order of frequency, were "illegal or unsafe speed," "driver inattention or distraction," and "physical impairment." In multiple vehicle crashes, four factors were cited more than others. In order of frequency, they were: "driver inattention or distraction," "failure to yield right of way," "illegal or unsafe speed," and "following too closely."

Contributing factors differ by driver age. "Driver inexperience" was cited relatively often for teenaged drivers. "Illegal or unsafe speed" was cited more often as driver age decreased. In single-vehicle crashes, "driver inattention or distraction" was cited more often as driver age increased. In multiple-vehicle crashes, "failure to yield right of way" was cited relatively frequently for drivers over 65.

Senators join effort to boost price of milk

Sen. Paul Wellstone and Sen. David Durenberger of Minnesota have joined in a major effort to create a two-tier pricing system that would raise milk support prices from $10.10 to $12.60 per hundredweight. Average cost of production in Minnesota is pegged at $13 per hundredweight.

Sen. Wellstone, a Democrat, said he is pleased to work with Sen. Durenberger, an Independent-Republican, to try to help Minnesota's dairy farmers.

The two-tier pricing system of supply management envisioned in the bill is an attempt to manage output to match demand. Sen. Wellstone said the Bush administration opposes the bill, saying there is no program that will work better than the current dairy program.

"But dairy farmers are telling me that they need change, beginning with fairer prices, and they need it soon. ....Something major has to happen or the family-sized farm will be a thing of the past. We can't afford to let that happen."

YOUR TIMES

by James W. Emison
Chairman
Committee for Fair Representation,
Eden Prairie, MN

Political insiders have long observed that politicians' votes in office are more influenced by the district they represent than their political party. In a moment you will see why this is so vitally important to you.

Currently, Minnesotans are being treated to the usual game of musical chairs that occurs every ten years as new legislative and congressional district boundaries are drawn in time for the 1992 elections. Unfortunately, not very much public attention is being focused on the extremely political and important process of how those district lines are to be determined. Nevertheless, the new district lines will have more to do with public policy in Minnesota and throughout our nation over the next ten years than the legislators who are ultimately elected to office.

This is the case because politically biased and less than honest redistricting policies will permit the creation within the state legislature of super majorities for one party and a super minority for the other party, thereby denying the minority any effective role in state government. This, of course, very effectively disenfranchises all citizens who voted for the minority party.

This is why there was such a flap around the capitol corridors lately over the bills which were vetoed by Governor Carlson and are now being challenged in court. While there are 14 vetoed bills in dispute, only the redistricting bill seems to really matter in this fight. The political stakes are enormous.

Historically, politicians of both parties have an abysmal record of drawing politically neutral, that is to say fair, district lines. It probably would not surprise too many people to learn that politicians in power usually try to draw district lines to insure their own incumbency at the expense of their adversaries. By law, districts have to be redrawn every ten years after the new census numbers are available. This requirement supposedly insures that the basic principle of "one man, one vote" is satisfied and that no one area has greater influence in the public policy process than another.

However, when politics take center stage in the redistricting process, politicians become very creative in the shaping of districts they draw. This drawing of districts in order to create political advantage is known as gerrymandering—named after an early 19th century governor of Massachusetts, Elbridge Gerry, whose party first engaged in this political chicanery.

To avoid gerrymandering, there are three important criteria politicians must follow to insure fairness:

1. Contiguity - the district is to consist of a single piece of geography.

2. Community of Interest - division of political units such as precincts, or governmental subdivisions smaller than precincts is to be prohibited except where such a division is required to provide equality of population amongst electoral districts.

3. Compactness - districts are to be drawn to reflect the tightest the most compact population grouping achievable.

There seems to be relative consensus that contiguity and community of interest are important criteria to be followed. However, the importance of creating compact districts is almost universally ignored because the standard of compactness, if implemented, would deny to the line-drawing legislators the opportunity to create manipulated advantages for their party and themselves.

The drawing of illogical and diversely scattered districts means that politicians can pick, choose and assemble together votes from far flung precincts which they know will advantage them and disadvantage their opponent in the next election. However, the real loss in this gerrymandering exercise, of course, is the voter. After all, carried to its logical conclusion, a state that had been perfectly gerrymandered by a group of partisan politicians would produce a state legislature that was all of one party even though on a state-wide basis the party responsible for the gerrymandering received only 50.1 percent of the popular vote. This is the very process that is going on now in Minnesota.

This manipulation of election outcomes must be stopped. Only if citizens begin to watch and question the redistricting process will politicians refrain from the practice of gerrymandering district boundaries for their self-interest.

All Minnesotans should be carefully watching the current controversy regarding the veto of the legislature's redistricting bill. If the task of redrawing districts goes back to the legislature for another try, demand that your state senator and representative work on behalf of a fair and balanced redistricting plan, else they cheat you, and your neighbor, out of a fair count of your votes.

Most importantly, ask that they work to achieve compactness of Minnesota's legislative and congressional districts. In the end, compactness is the only standard that will ensure the highest achievable level of fairness. Certainly you deserve and should demand for yourself and others that your state legislator adhere to what is fair for one and all. Now you can see why it is so very important that you make your wishes known in plain terms to your legislators. If you are plain spoken they will listen to you before they listen to the dictates of their own party.

Minnesotans pride themselves on participating in clean elections; so, let us join together to make the "silent election" of the redistricting process an honest process and prevent selfish legislators from robbing us all of the opportunity to participate in fair elections. How else will we all be able to create a government responsive to the needs of all our citizens?

Congratulations to all on a memorable event and a great entertainment value!

More Congratulations Are In Order To......

• The Thief River Falls Bombers, Tier II American Legion baseball team, for its ability to hang tough and win the District-9A tournament Sunday at Ada. With only three errors in five tournament games, the Bombers played solid defense behind a solid pitching staff.

As one of the remaining eight teams in the state of Minnesota at the Tier II level, Coach Wayne Rahlf's Bombers will get another test with a play-off game against Nashwauk-Keewatin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Grand Rapids. If they win, they will be one of four teams at the state tournament finals in Mankato this coming weekend.

Congratulations and best wishes for a best effort Tuesday night.

Any Good Candidates Out There?

If Jack Gargan had his way, there would be a complete turn-over in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives in the next half dozen years. He would actually like to see the change-over sooner than that, but lengthy terms of senate office made that an impossibility.

Who is Jack Gargan? What's his beef anyway?

Gargan is a retired financial planner who has formed an organization called T.H.R.O.—an acronym for Throw the Hypocritical Rascals Out! Angered by the way Congress has performed, or failed to perform, in recent years, Gargan borrowed $45,000 from his retirement savings and placed full-page advertisements in five major newspapers across the country last summer.

"I'm Mad As Hell And I'm Not Going To Take It Any More" proclaimed the headlines in the ads which contained a long list of congressional misdeeds and abuses of power. They called for ouster of all congressional incumbents.

They also asked for contributions from those who felt the same way so he could "put another ad in another city." By election day the original five ads had grown to 245 full-page ads in nearly every major newspaper in the country. The message was clear—Americans are fed up with the government they have been getting from the people who are elected to represent them.

Gargan's effort was credited with making a difference of 12 per cent in closing the spread of votes in nearly every voting district in the country, but succeeded in replacing only 16 incumbents. The problem, he said, is that more than 80 congressmen had no challengers at all and most of the rest had only token opposition.

"You can't throw 'em out if they don't have anyone running against 'em," he said.

To correct that situation for the 1992 elections, Gargan is launching a nation-wide search for qualified applicants in each congressional and senatorial district. He promises help in getting on the ballot and running a campaign as well as "an endorsement worth thousands."

He lists qualifications as "love of country, integrity, common sense and backbone." He also says applicants must pledge to limit terms of office; roll back the recent congressional pay raise; reduce staff and perks; eliminate deficit spending; and initiate meaningful election reform."

The effort is non-partisan, Gargan claims. "We don't care if the applicant is a Democrat, Republican or Independent," he said. "Our committee will endorse the best qualified challenger in each primary and/or runoff election."

Screening will be done by a panel of former congressmen and people who ran unsuccessfully for a congressional seat. They are members of an organization called the Coalition to End the Permanent Congress. T.H.R.O. will not take an active part in the screening process. Instead, Gargan will continue his efforts to publicize the gross misconduct and excesses of incumbent members of congress.

Any good candidates out there? If so, send an application or nomination with a resume to Jack Gargan, T.H.R.O. Inc., 4127 West Cypress St., Tampa, FL 33607.

Law guards against credit card fraud

The door is opened to credit card fraud if someone knows both your credit card number and other personal information such as a telephone number or address, notes the Minnesota Attorney Generals office. Some Merchants might ask you to write your phone number or address on a credit card transaction slip, or they might want to write your credit card number on your personal check. If you allow the merchant to do either of these things, a person with access to your credit card slip or personal check will have all the information he or she needs to frsudulently charge items to your card: Your name, address, telephone number, and credit card number all conveniently located on one piece of paper.

To protect consumers' privacy and to prevent credit card fraud, a new Minnesota law prohibits merchants from asking you to give your address or phone number when you pay by credit card. The law, which became effective August 1, 1991, also prohibits merchants from writing down your credit card number when you pay by check. Merchants may still ask to see a credit card when you pay by check, BUT they may ONLY write down the type of credit card and expiration date.

You are protected by this law, and merchants are not harmed by it since they do not need a phone number to complete a credit card transaction and since a credit card number is of no use to them should a check bounce.

There are some other things to keep in mind for your protection:

• Immediately report billing errors and unauthorized charges to your credit card company. Keeping track of sales slips and other pertinent information is important so you can compare these to your billing statements:

• Don't give your credit card number over the phone to unfamiliar companies. You may wind up with unauthorized charges on your bills and they can be a headache to eliminate:

• Check you cards periodically to make sure all are accounted for;

• Make sure your credit card is returned after each transaction;

• After signing your name on a sales slip, pull out the carbons and dispose of them yourself to avoid unauthorized use of your name, card number, and expiration date. Carbons are frequently used by card counterfeiters;

• Carry only credit cards you will be using when you shop; and

• Keep a list of credit card numbers and card company phone numbers to alert a credit card company immediately if a card is stolen or missing. (The most you will have to pay for any unauthorized charges is $50 on each card—regardless of how high the total unauthorized charges go before you report your card missing.)

For more information, or to receive the new publication entitled, "The Line on Credit Cards," contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division: 200 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue St. Paul, MN 55155; (612) 296-3353, or 1-800-652-9747.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

As abortionists push for Congress to overturn Title 10 regulations, which ban counseling and referrals for abortion in a tax funded family planning clinic, they say they are being denied right of free speech. They call it "a gag" on free speech.

Not so! The rules state they must keep abortion related activity from tax-funded activity. If they push abortion it must be on their own time, money and facilities—not my tax dollars! The rules also state family planning is not accomplished by the killing of innocent and defenseless unborn babies.

Title 10 rules make sense as a pre-conception program. Once a woman becomes pregnant she no longer needs the family planning program but rather appropriate medical care. The rules also require any women with any illness to be sent to proper medical care.

Everyone I talk to does not consider abortion proper family planning, especially not with their tax dollars.

Psalm 127:3 says. "Children are a gift of the Lord. The fruit of the womb is a reward."

Proverbs 6, 16 and 17: One of six things God hates is the shedding of innocent blood.

Americans, I call on you to help put a stop to this senseless killing. Let's demand they let up on adoption rules a bit. There are many, many loving couples wanting a baby but waiting for years and years.

As I sat at the Marshall County Fair booth for pro-life, I was asked by the young, "Why do they want to kill babies?" How would you answer such a question?

I do not want my tax dollars paying for abortions, nor do I want that innocent blood on my hands! How about you?

Sincerely,
Dorothy Pederson

County Welfare Gets $2,500 From State

"The Pennington county welfare board Monday received word from the state executive council that this county would receive an allotment of $2,500 from the state to apply on expenses during the coming year, John X. Lynskey, executive secretary, announced today. The allotment, which compares with $2,350 received last year, is the smallest amount allotted to any county in the state, the figure being based on total disbursements, tax delinquency and other factors. The council also allotted $1,000 to the village of Goodridge to aid in financing the construction of a cesspool as a WPA project."

Gas Tax Check Lower Than Last Year

"County Treasurer A. R. Johnsrud last Friday received check from State Treasurer Julius Schmahl in the sum of $18,000, representing the first half of the 1941 Pennington county gasoline tax allotment. The total compares with a remittance of $21,750 received a year ago."

"Officials guess there were more than fifteen thousand people on the fair grounds Saturday night. At any rate it was a record crowd and facilities were far from adequate to properly take care of the visitors. Now that it is all out and over, the thing to be glad about is that there were no injuries."

Bonding for a New Railroad

"We think the people who are opposing the voting of the bonds to the Duluth & Dakota [railroad] do so from not fully understanding the proposition. It is true that it will make our taxes higher but the excessive freight rates we are now paying are also a tax. There is no denying the fact that it would save this county from $150,000 to $200,000 annually besides opening up the best market in the state for farm products. We need not expect a reduction in rates from our present railroads, they have a monopoly and intend to keep it as long as possible. It may be that the proposition may be defeated but if it is we predict that the people will soon see the day that they will regret their action."

Cooler temps delay growth and harvest

Cooler than normal temperatures slowed corn and soybean growth and minimized harvest progress of small grains, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

A few reports indicate the southwest corner of the state was becoming short of topsoil moisture and leaves of corn and soybean plants were beginning to wilt. However, wide-spread rains over the weekend will help alleviate these problems.

Early reports indicate the state's small grain crop was adversely affected by the ample rainfall and warm temperatures this summer. Oats were severely infested with rusts and in some areas farmers are decided not to harvest the crop. Barley is reported to be running poor quality and lower than expected yields. The condition of the spring wheat crop also deteriorated the past week slipping from 38 per cent reported to be good to excellent to 24 per cent this week. Spring wheat rated as poor to very poor is now at 32 per cent of the crop.

Row crops remain in mostly good condition, although the delay in planting is reflected in development remaining slightly behind normal. Areas in south central Minnesota continue to be plagued by above normal rainfall. The lower temperatures of the past week apparently were beneficial to row crops as corn rated as good to excellent increased 16 per cent over last week to 72 per cent and soybean condition increased 12 per cent to a total of 70 per cent of the crop now rated as good to excellent.

Hearing on assistive technology at ODC

Governor's Advisory Council on Technology for People with Disabilities, STAR program and the Occupational Development center will sponsor a public hearing on assistive technology Wednesday, August 14, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the ODC in Thief River Falls.

Assistive technology devices are any items or pieces of equipment that are used to maintain or improve the functional capabilities of individuals with disabilities. Such devices may be as simple as a modified door lever or as complex as a breath-controlled switch to operate a personal computer.

The public hearing process enables individuals with disabilities, family members and professionals to formally comment to a panel of members from the community on the provision and availability of assistive technology in Minnesota and on the activities of the STAR program and projects it funds in meeting the needs of Minnesotans with disabilities.

"The comments generated through this process will be used in presentations to Congress regarding the reauthorization of the Technology-Related Assistance for Individuals with Disabilities Act and for continued assistive technology-related funding in Minnesota," states Lori Loscheider, ODC staff member and hearing coordinator.

"Your input is valued and needed in furthering the development of a consumer-responsive, comprehensive system of assistive technology-related funding for assistive technology," Loscheider said.

Especially sought are comments directed to the following issues.

- Problems encountered in gaining access to assistive technology devices and services.
- How technological devices have helped you accomplish your goals;
- How the STAR program has been able to assist you in meeting your goals;
- Response to recommendations of the STAR Consumer Task Force on Insurance (copies of the recommendations are available from Loscheider); and
- How else can the STAR program make assistive technology available to you!

Persons testifying are asked to prepare a written statement of testimony to assist in the accurate recording of information presented. Presentation of testimony is limited to 10 minutes. Those who wish to present testimony, have special needs or would like further information are invited to contact Lori Loscheider at the Occupational Development Center, phone 681-6830. Additional written testimony may be submitted for consideration no later than Aug. 30, 1991, to the Governor's Advisory Council on Technology for People with Disabilities, STAR Program, 658 Cedar Street, 300 Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Protection of food important

Outdoor eating can be dangerous unless food is protected from the summer heat. Warm weather encourages the growth of bacteria which leads to food-related illnesses.

Tips to follow in keeping picnics safe and healthy are provided by Weight Watchers of the Upper Midwest, Inc.:

- Always wash your hands before preparing food. More food is contaminated by unwashed hands than by any other source.
- Never leave meat, poultry, fish or dairy products at room temperature for more than two hours. Wrap leftovers in aluminum foil and refrigerate or return to the picnic cooler immediately.
- Pack picnic goodies in a cooler rather than a basket and be sure to use enough ice or frozen cooler units to keep foods cold and fresh.
- Packing fresh vegetables in ice will keep them fresh and crisp.
- Fruit that has been cut and exposed to heat is dangerous to eat. Fruits that don't need any preparation—such as peaches, plums and grapes—are the easiest to pack.

Use only well-chilled ingredients when making sandwiches or salads and serve them directly from the cooler.

If grilling marinated meats or poultry, remember the marinade must be heated until simmering before it can safety be used for basting. Be sure to cook all foods thoroughly.

The fundamental rule of food safety is to keep hot foods hot, cold foods cold and all foods clean.

Swansons complete program

Curtis and Marilyn Swanson of rural Thief River Falls are summer graduates of the 1991 Red River Valley Emerging Leadership program sponsored through the University of Minnesota.

The Swansons represented Pennington county in a four-part series of training sessions which concluded with an event in the Fargo-Moorhead area recently.

Curtis was the 1990-91 King Agassiz for Pennington county. Each year the county King Agassiz and his spouse have the opportunity to participate in the Emerging Leadership program.

The Swansons were among 15 couples involved in this year's program. They were members of the seventh class to graduate from the program founded in 1985 on the idea that effective leadership can be learned and that leaders grow into positions of leadership, motivated by a sense of responsibility to themselves and their communities.

The four-part educational program included the following:

(1) A January session in Thief River Falls on forming the group, communication building and review of the Red River Valley heritage;

(2) A February session in Crookston on honoring rural leadership, understanding community structure and relationships and participation in the King Agassiz events at the Red River Valley Winter Shows;

(3) March session in Minneapolis-St. Paul where they attend educational sessions on the Twin Cities campuses of the University of Minnesota and interact with agri-leaders and state officials; and

(4) June session in the Fargo-Moorhead area where they expand their horizons to national and international issues and learn about economic trends, tour industries, focus on leadership issues and hold their class graduation.

Educational content for the program is jointly developed by staff of the Minnesota extension service and faculty of the University of Minnesota—Crookston. Chairman for the 1991 program was Bud Berglind of Ada.

Other couples graduating from the program included the following:

John and Candyce Steffl, Callaway; Thomas and Kirsten Anderson, Barnesville; Allen and Julie Paulson, Shevlin; Tim and Linda Anderson, Karlstad; Scott and LouraJo Pieper, Williams; Dale and Shelia Erickson, Mahnomen;

Also Michael and Linda Hanson, Goodridge; Danny and Nancy Gunhovd, Gary; Terry and Mary Karkela, Perham; Gaylan and Marcia Thormodson, Dalton; Mark and Lynne Gullickson, Fertile; Harlow and Peggy Grove, Climax; Jimmy and Susan Hagge; Brooks; and Jeffrey and Diane Nord, Wolverton.

Clarification:

Jeffrey Scott Olson of Lot 11, Greendale trailer court, Thief River Falls, age 28, was found guilty of fifth degree assault, as reported in the Pennington county citation disposition bulletin and printed in The Times last week. This is not the Jeffrey Scott Olson who is the son of Erling and Barb Olson.

Mosbecks and Hansons earn SWCD awards

Si and Marge Hanson of rural Thief River Falls have been selected to receive the farm beautification award and Mosbeck Brothers of Polk Centre township west of St. Hilaire to receive the outstanding cooperator award for the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation district this year.

The Hansons are long-time farmers in Silverton township northeast of Thief River Falls and maintain a large yard with many flowers and ornamental plantings.

Townships in the area considered for farm beautification competition this year were Norden, North, Rocksbury and Silverton.

Don, Veral and Lorraine Mosbeck, with the help of their families, produce small grain and row crops. Their conservation practices include crop rotation, minimum tillage, erosion control structures, wildlife ponds, farmstead windbreaks and field shelterbelts.

They will be honored at the Minnesota Association of Conservation Districts convention in December and the Pennington SWCD banquet next spring.

Townships included in the area for this year's selection of outstanding cooperator were Numedal, Sanders, Polk Centre, Black River and River Falls.

Bruzek ends ROTC field encampment

Aaron M. Bruzek of Thief River Falls has completed a U.S. Air Force ROTC field training encampment at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado.

Aaron is the son of Curtis and Peggy Bruzek of Thief River Falls, a 1989 graduate of Lincoln high school and a student at North Dakota State university in Fargo, ND.

The summer curriculum consists of orientation on jet aircraft, career opportunities, human relations education and equal opportunity training. Physical fitness and survival training are also emphasized. The field training is normally attended by cadets between their second and third year of college.

Farmers primarily from the St. Hilaire area left their own fields Friday to help harvest the wheat crop for Ila Flesche and her family south of St. Hilaire. Mrs. Flesche's husband Everett died in an airplane crash a few weeks ago. Approximately 15 combines moved into the fields about 1 p.m. Friday and before 6:30 p.m. had harvested about 450 acres of wheat. Four of the combines working in one field are shown in the photo above. Providing combines (and in some cases hired workers to operate them) were Douglas Peterson, Plummer; Ronald Anderson, Red Lake Falls; Bryan Steiger, Red Lake Falls (three combines), Earl and Don Hoeter, St. Hilaire; Glenn Haugen, Red Lake Falls; Bob Fladeland, St. Hilaire; Mark Naplin, St. Hilaire (two combines); Roger Hinrichs, Red Lake Falls; Peter Carlson and Curtis Swanson, Thief River Falls; and David Stock, Red Lake Falls. Tom Oscarson served as organizer for the thrashing bee.

State delays TC hangar project with additions

Thief River Falls Technical College hangar project has been delayed due to higher than expected bids.

Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of the Technical College in Thief River Falls, announced Monday at a school board meeting that bids on the project came in higher than expected. As a result, the project will be re-bid.

The state legislature approved $2.8 million in state bonds to fund the project in 1990. But, Gov. Arne Carlson stalled the project by holding up the sale of nearly all of the 1990-approved state bonds. The bond sale for the project was released in late March.

When bids were opened last month, the lowest bid was $600,000 higher than expected. All bids had to be rejected and the project went back to the drawing boards.

The project has now been scaled back in size by the architects. Scale backs include a reduction in total square footage and less materials used in construction. To date, about $400,000 has been spent on architectural fees and administration at the state level. Bids on what is now a $2.4 million project were slated to be opened in September 13.

But Gunderson announced Monday night that state officials had reviewed the project and have again delayed the project. They added bathrooms and additional fire protection. Gunderson noted that additional bathrooms were required by state officials despite the fact that the college has five sets of bathrooms in another building 20 feet away. In addition to the bathrooms, the state added plans for a back-up fire pump to a planned 16,000 gallon water reservoir. As a result, the bid opening has been delayed until September 20.

One method of avoiding the need for the hangar's fire protection requirement is to connect the hangar to city water. Gunderson said the advantages to connecting to the city water include a bigger building, a reduction in fire insurance costs, higher better quality water to attract industry and development, and will be attractive for future home owners and developers.

City Technical and Engineering Services director Ron Lindberg has made a rough estimate of $350,000 to connect the airport to city water. It would involve 2.2 miles of pipe to the airport.

Gunderson will be exploring the option of connecting the hangar to city water with city officials this week. Among the items to be discuss will be whether connecting water to the airport is even feasible.

Northern State Bank buys First Federal

At 4:30 p.m. Friday, August 9, ownership of First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Thief River Falls transferred from Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) to Northern State Bank of Thief River Falls.

Although rumors of the sale had been circulating for several weeks, employees of First Federal were unaware of the sale until 4:30 p.m. Friday. Representatives of the OTS told employees at that time that the institution was being closed and employment of everyone was being terminated.

Immediately following that announcement, Gene Beito and David Beito of Northern State Bank announced the purchase and said that all employment would be reinstated.

With the purchase of First Federal, assets of Northern State Bank increased from about $92 million to more than $127 million. The Beitos also announced that immediately following the transaction Northern State Bank would sell First Federal's branch offices at Roseau to Citizens State Bank of Roseau, at Warroad to Security State Bank of Warroad and at Red Lake Falls to Red Lake County State Bank. Northern State will operate the former institution's main branch in Thief River Falls.

"We want to emphasize that for all of First Federal's customers it will be business as usual," stated Gene Beito, president and chairman of the board of Northern State Bank.

"Deposits remain insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, deposit accounts continue with the same terms they always have, the building remains open with the same hours of operation and we will honor checks written on existing First Federal accounts. We also expect the majority of former First Federal employees will choose to stay on with us."

As part of the transaction, Northern State Bank assumed all deposits and preferred liabilities of First Federal Savings and Loan association totaling approximately $55.64 million. It also purchased approximately $40.82 million of the failed institution's assets.

The asset pool purchased includes $15.72 million in cash and securities and $25.1 million in loans with putback options, according to information provided by Resolution Trust Corporation in Washington, DC.

First Federal had total assets of $55.3 million and total liabilities of $55.66 million, including $55.63 million in approximately 12,100 deposit accounts. First Federal's core, or local retail, deposit base is estimated to be $54.08 million.

A total of 1,064 potential purchasers were invited to bid on the institution, according to RTC. Two proposals were submitted, of which Northern State Bank's bid "was determined to be the least costly" by the RTC.

The RTC was paid a premium of $2,006,000 by Northern State Bank, which represents 3.7 per cent of First Federal's core deposits. The RTC will advance $12.81 mil-

Student housing situation in TRF extremely poor

Students need rooms to rent for short period of time

Student housing situation in Thief River Falls is so bad administrators are asking citizens to open their homes to students, at least for a few months.

Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of the Technical College in Thief River Falls, said a lack of student housing in Thief River Falls is causing serious problems.

Gunderson related the experience of one family. After driving to Thief River Falls to register in the aviation program they couldn't find a place to stay in Thief River Falls so they drove to Grand Forks. Unfortunately, it was the same weekend as the Canadian holiday and they couldn't find a place to stay anywhere in Grand Forks. They then drove to Hillsboro, ND, but couldn't find a place to stay there either so they drove back to Thief River Falls arriving at about 4:30 a.m. Tired and disappointed, they slept in their car in the parking lot of the Technical College.

The situation is desperate. Between 100 and 200 students need a place to stay. By Monday, Gunderson said, there would be another 50 students at the college to register for classes. Most if not all will need a place to stay, he said. Gunderson said students are down to looking for sleeping rooms.

Success of the school has brought about the housing problem. Last year there were about 860 students. This year, there will be about 1,000 students.

The fastest growing department, the aviation maintenance and technology department, will have about 500 students this fall, Gunderson said. Most of those students come from outside the community. Only about five per cent who live here do not need housing, he said.

The success of the school is tied to the community. If the school does well and brings in students, it benefits the community, Gunderson said. But if there aren't any places for students to live, the success of the college is pretty limited.

The number of construction workers in the community this summer has added to the student housing problem in Thief River Falls. That's why Gunderson believes part of the problem is temporary and will solve itself by November. Until then, the two colleges in Thief River Falls are in

Pipeline loop adds to value for taxes

Pipeline looping projects by Great Lakes Gas Transmission Limited Partnership in areas northwest and southeast of Thief River Falls will add about $875,000 in annual tax revenue to the two counties where work is being done, according to Joseph S. Martucci, manager of issues analysis and public affairs for the company.

Installation of 17.8 miles of new 36-inch pipeline in Marshall county will add about $400,000 in annual revenues for that county. Installation of a 21.3-mile loop in Clearwater county will result in about $475,000 in annual taxes there.

As part of this same project, 37.3 miles of pipe were installed this past winter in Minnesota (23.7 miles in Itasca county and 13.6 miles in Cass county). Total tax benefit to the four counties where the looping is being done is expected to be about $1.85 million per year.

Underway presently is the final and largest phase of a $525 million, three-phase construction program that involves the installation of 460 miles of pipeline looping in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

By installing the 36-inch diameter loop line adjacent to its existing natural gas pipeline in these states, Great Lakes will be able to supply additional Canadian natural gas into the northeastern United States and eastern Canada. To minimize any environmental disruption, the loop line is installed parallel to the existing Great Lakes mainline.

This third phase calls for installation of 372 miles of pipeline. Four contractors, who will work under the supervision of Great Lakes personnel, have been selected to install the new pipe. Main contractor for placement of the line in this area is Sheehan Pipeline company of Tulsa, OK.

Bill Avery, landman for the Sheehan company, said that his company began work this week in the laying of line in the Newfolden area northwest of Thief River Falls. The company has or will have about 400 people working in the area until about the first of September. Once laying of line gets in full swing in Clearwater county, most of the work crew will headquarter in Bemidji.

Sheehan Pipeline company has its local headquarters at the Satellite Drive-in Theatre site west of highway 59 south of Thief River Falls. Most of the 36-inch diameter pipe is shipped into Trail in random 40-foot lengths and double-jointed into 80-foot sections there. It is hauled to the line site with pull trailers.

Sheehan company does the excavating for the line looping, welding of the pipe at ground level, lowering of the welded pipe into the trench and back-filling to cover the line.

Other companies also working with the project are involved in cement coating of some of the pipe at St. Hilaire, x-raying of the welds and inspection.

Two types of cement coating are being done by B. L. Key company of Tulsa, OK, at St. Hilaire. One type places about a two-inch thick coating on the pipe for use where the line goes under roadways and other places where excavation may be expected in the future. This coating serves as a protection against damage to the pipe.

The other coating is about six inches thick and used as additional weight to prevent the pipe from lifting where there is a high water table in wetland areas.

Wisconsin Industrial Testing company of Brookfield, WI, provides the crew for x-raying of welds. Wilbros Butler Engineers of Tulsa, OK, is in charge of general inspection for the project.

Avery said that Northern Clearing, a Wisconsin company, has done its work on the Marshall county segment of the line and moved on to Clearwater county. Northern Clearing removed brush and other material along the existing line in preparation for trenching. In some segments in Marshall county two additional loop lines are being placed parallel to the existing main line.

Avery, who was also in this area for pipeline projects in the winter of 1989-90 and spring of 1990, said he and other workers have appreciated the receptive attitude of people in the Thief River Falls community. He said his company has a weekly take-home payroll of $300,000 to $400,000 for its crew in this area.

"I don't know what they do with it," Avery said, "but I would expect that they spend at least some of it in the community." He also said he didn't know were the crew found living quarters if they didn't have their own portable housing with them.

Looping Helps Meet Demand for Gas

The request to supply additional natural gas was made by TransCanada PipeLines Limited, which requires an increase of 417.5 million cubic feet (MMcf/d) per day in the gas transportation services it receives from Great Lakes. Great Lakes transports gas for TransCanada from Emerson, Manitoba to St. Clair, MI.

Of the 417.5 MMcf/d in additional gas supplies that will be made possible by the loop line construction, 285 MMcf/d—nearly 70 per cent—will ultimately be delivlion to Northern State Bank and will retain approximately $14.48 million of the closed institution's assets. The RTC will recover a portion of its advance through the sale of assets to be held in the receivership. Ultimate cost to the RTC of this transaction is estimated at $4.56 million.

The RTC was established by Congress in August of 1989 to contain, manage and sell failed savings institutions and recover taxpayer funds through the management and sale of the institutions' assets. Prior to the August 9 transaction, the RTC had closed or sold 479 savings institutions and achieved asset sales and collections of more than $160 billion. Approximately 16 million insured depositors and approximately $153.8 billion in deposits have been protected by the RTC's closing of insolvent thrifts.

"For the past few years Northern State Bank has been proud to be counted among the strongest and safest banks in the nation by a variety of independent bank rating services," stated David Beito, vice president. "We feel that by being locally controlled and financially strong we are uniquely able to provide financing for worthwhile local farm and business ventures and individuals with credit needs. We want to use our financial strength to build our community to its highest potential."

Beito said the purchase of First Federal's deposits give Northern State Bank additional resources to use in the community and frees First Federal's staff from outside pressures which may have limited their ability to serve their customers.

"It only makes sense that we should extend our strength to our neighbors at the former First Federal Savings and Loan," he added. "We feel the people there share our desire to enhance Thief River Falls with sound lending which allows our community to grow."

Of the approximately $54 million in assets of First Federal, about $30 to $35 million are acquired by Northern State Bank. The Roseau branch involves about $11 million, the Red Lake Falls branch about $5 million and the Warroad branch about $2.8 million.

While business as usual is taking place at the present time, customers of First Federal will note changes as Northern State converts the First Federal accounts to its computer system over a period of time.

The First Federal Savings and Loan building is being leased with an option to purchase by Northern State Bank and a decision on its ownership will be made later when an appraisal has been determined.

Northern State Bank of Thief River Falls was organized by George Beito in 1935. His son Gene moved to Thief River Falls in 1960 and became president when his father died in 1965. David Beito returned to the bank five years ago and was recently elected vice president.

Other directors of the bank include Stan Wilson Sr., Orin Green, William Ness, Clyde Christensen and Orville Hanson.

Brief Bits from Pioneer Village

Donna Myhrer

Buildings and Displays

The Pioneer Village is the site of the former Asphult church which was moved here from McIntosh several years ago. The church is a lovely example of the style of rural churches in the early part of the century and is still available for use for special activities such as weddings or class reunion services. The basement of the church has a kitchen and tables which are sometimes used for serving food on special occasions. A set of hymnals from Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls was recently donated to the church by one of the class reunion groups who used the building.

Another of the buildings at the Village is the Vaarblomsten lodge log cabin with several displays of Scandinavian memorabilia.

Special Events

One of the most special kinds of events ever held at Pioneer Village is a wedding in the Asphult church there. The church seats about 70 to 90 people and has a piano available for music. If you are interested in holding a wedding at the Village, call Donna Myhrer at 681-5767 or 964-5245. Cost of using the church is $50.

Can You Help?

Although the Pennington County Historical society has not actively looked for volunteers to sit at the gate and take admission so far this summer, we do have a need for about ten people willing to spend two-hour shifts there on Saturday, Sunday and Monday of Labor Day weekend. All the person needs to do is sit in the shade and make change when visitors arrive to tour the Village. The hours will be Saturday, 1 to 9 p.m., Sunday, 1 to 9 p.m. and Monday, 1 to 5 p.m. If you or your organization would like to help in this way, please call Donna Myhrer at 681-5767 at Pioneer Village or 964-5245 at home.

desperate need of temporary housing. Rooms to rent for a short period of time are needed. The rental units don't have to be just in Thief River Falls, Gunderson said. They can be from outside the community as well.

The student housing problem, however, is compounded by the fact that the colleges in Thief River Falls are not allowed to provide housing for students. Of course, part of the problem will be solved if a proposed housing project near the colleges is built. The project may be completed during the summer of 1992 and be ready to rent to students by fall of 1992.

It's important, Gunderson said, that housing for the students is found. It is important to the continued growth of the colleges, and it is important to the economy of the community. A lack of housing hurts the college because it has teachers under contract and it is losing money for the city even though the college doesn't exist to make money for the community.

Gunderson said the colleges have started a joint listing for housing. Anyone with a room to rent is asked to contact the college at 681-5424. The receptionist will put the listing in the Technical College and Northland Community College Student Housing list.

Thorsgard canoe group

Eric Thorsgard, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Thorsgard of Thief River Falls and a veterinarian at Perham, is one of a group of four canoeists spending most of the summer paddling and camping in northern Canada.

When the group stopped at Fort Chipewyan, Alberta, the following article was written by Cathy McGinnis in the July 17 issue of the Slave River Journal:

"Four gentlemen from the States sailed and canoed into this community last Saturday evening and camped...before leaving Sunday afternoon enroute to Inuvik.

"Eric Thorsgard of Perham, Minn.; Lance Woods of Dent, Minn.; Tony Brosseau, Pinewood, Minn., and Roger Dorsey of Redfield, South Dakota, began their journey on June 5 on Reindeer Lake, near the northern Saskatchewan/Manitoba border.

"Their route followed the Swan River to the Blondeau River, than the four portaged to Wollaston Lake. Then they canoed down the Fond du Lac River into Lake Athabasca and followed the south shore of the lake.

"The fellows are finding the trip much easier to paddle now that they are going with the current. They said they are enjoying the beautiful scenery and asked many questions about the gravesites/graveyards/cabins they had seen along the way.

"The one mishap occurred on the Swan River when Eric's canoe struck a rock in the fast current. They used the old standby 'duck-tape' until they reached Wollaston lake and could do a proper mending job.

"Among their activities of talking to older Reddie Frazer and touring the community, the four also toured the museum, where they were told how our museum came to be. They appeared impressed with the history of our people and the history of the area and the fur trade.

"Following a late breakfast Sunday morning, and a visit with Jerry Voyageur, the fellows set sail downriver, hoping to reach Inuvik before the weather gets too cool."

Dear Friends,
If you've ever had to plan a funeral, you know how many decisions must be made, all in a day or two. This can be difficult at a time of emotional stress. That's why many choose to make funeral arrangements for themselves in advance of need. Wise and thoughtful planning takes only a brief time, but can ease much of the emotional strain for those you love.
Respectfully,

Marshall-Beltrami SWCD

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) will receive over $14,000 in grants from the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) for erosion control measures and basic services for fiscal year 1992.

"The partnership between the state government and local SWCD's has been very effective in helping protect our water and soil resources," said Ron Harnack, executive director of the BWSR. "These grants signal the state's commitment toward continuing to work for better management of these resources," Harnack said.

Of the $14,000, $4,891 is through the Cost-Share Program, which provides funds for SWCD's to contract with landowners to solve priority erosion, sediment control and water quality problems. The grant funding is used for projects ranging from animal waste control systems to field windbreaks to grade stabilization control structures. In the past, grade stabilization control structures and field windbreaks have been the projects cost-share monies have been used for most in the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD.

About $9,163 of the money is a general service grant, which provides money for day-to-day activities of SWCD's, such as communications and administration.

The BWSR approved the grants at its June 26 meeting in St. Paul. The BWSR provides additional funding and technical assistance to counties and SWCDs through various other grant programs at other times of the year.

Landowners who are interested in applying for cost-share project funds should contact the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD at 294-6144.

Speaking Of . . .

. . . Getting Older. . .
Pleasure or Pits?

Some people say getting older is the best thing that every happened to them. Children leave home and there is more time and money for vacations, hobbies, entertaining and all those leisure activities that they never got around to before.

Other people think getting older is the pits!

I'm thinking I think getting older is the pits, too.

I'm thinking that getting older means getting strange aches and pains in funny places, especially in the morning. Sometimes people don't even have to get out of bed to get strange aches and pains in the morning. They get them from just lying in bed, and isn't that ironic! Here comes the time in a person's life when he or she doesn't have to be up to go to work every morning and can finally sleep in, and the old body won't let them do it. It says, 'Get up, get up, or you'll have such a backache...' This is not fair at all.

I'm thinking that getting older means the Get-Up-and-Go has Got-Up-and-Went. Oh, wouldn't it be fun to do all of those energetic things we planned to do when we were young now that we have time? Oof! Not right now, if you please. I need a nap!

I'm thinking that getting older means taking pills. Some older people take pills for this and pills for that. There are pills to take to get things going and pills to take to stop things, there are pills to take to slow things down and pills to take to speed things up, there are pills to take for the body and pills to take for the mind, there are pills for people who are too excited and pills to take for people who are not excited enough. It's enough to give a person a headache, but that would be another pill, wouldn't it?

I'm thinking that getting older means the eyes start to play tricks on a person. First of all, some people can't see very well far away, even when they are young. Then, all of a sudden, about age 40 or so, that poor person can't see close up any more either. Then what happens?

Bifocal time, that's what it is. They need bifocals, the top part of the lens to correct their far-away vision, and the bottom part to correct their close-up vision. Then what happens?

First of all, you will be able to identify people who are wearing bifocals by the way they bob their heads up and down when they are looking at things. They do this so they can find the exactly perfect spot on their glasses so they can see whatever it is they are trying to look at.

People who wear bifocals are especially noticeable in a store. Their heads are bob, bob, bobbing continuously as they try to read the labels on the high shelves through the top part of their bifocals, which doesn't work because, as I said, the top part of the bifocal is made for looking far away and not for looking close up at the tiny print on a label.

Actually, people who wear bifocals have problems doing a lot of things. They can't watch television from a prone position very well either. The problem with watching television like that is that they are trying to see the screen through the bottom of their bifocal, which is the part that corrects close-up vision, and it makes everything far away very blurred. In order to watch television on their back, they have to tilt their head down very low. This, of course, makes their neck really ache in the morning, which is what I mentioned before.

Getting older means all the hair you have seems to get contrary. Very often hair that grew in luxuriant profusion in the youthful years stops growing in old age. Then again, as people get older, hair sometimes begins to sprout in places where no hair ever grew before.

It is a well-known fact that as people get older the hair on their head seems to disappear. Yes, even women have this problem, but not nearly so noticeably as the men, and anyway, women who have good hairdressers can camouflage this quite well.

Anyway, the hair on the head may disappear, but some other parts of the body become hairy where nary a hair has grown before. I'm speaking of places like the ears, where hairs just seem to sprout for no reason at all. And nostrils also sprout peculiar hairs, as do any warts a person might have. Toes grow hairs too, even where they were bare before. Older people have to keep their eyes open all of the time to watch out for errant hairs that may try to sneak on to them somewhere.

Speaking of toes, which isn't something one does every day, some older people need nail cutters resembling hedge trimmers to trim their toe nails. Those of you who are old know what I am talking about. Do you get the feeling that you are growing horses' hooves?

I'm thinking that getting older means crinkles and wrinkles in funny places. I always thought older people got cute, friendly wrinkles at the corners of their eyes and mouths that made them look like they were perpetually smiling. Not me. I have a wrinkle in the middle of my forehead. I also have wrinkles at the top corners of my eyebrows. I just don't feel that these wrinkles make me look like I'm smiling at all. Just the opposite, in fact, they make me look rather crabby, even when I am not. I don't know why I got wrinkles there. I wish I had smile wrinkles instead. Heaven knows where the next wrinkles will appear. I don't want to think about it.

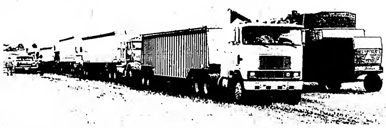
More than a dozen combines and at least eight semi-trailer trucks were put to use Friday afternoon to harvest the wheat crop for Mrs. Ila Flescha southwest of St. Hilaire. Neighbors and friends harvested 450 acres of wheat and hauled it to farm or elevator storage in about five and a half hours Friday. "An effort like this leaves a person overwhelmed," said Mrs. Flescha, whose husband died in an airplane crash a few weeks ago. "Good neighbors are always appreciated, and the fact that they left their own harvest operations to help someone else speaks volumes for their generosity and concern. I can't thank them enough for what they have done." With their own harvest completed, 17-year-old Dana Flescha has been using the farm's own combine to assist with harvesting for some of those who joined in the threshing bee.



Line-up of trucks made it possible for harvesters at the Ila Flescha farm southwest of St. Hilaire to harvest about 450 acres of wheat in about five and a half hours Friday afternoon. The threshing bee was organized by Tom Oscarson to assist Mrs. Flescha, whose husband Everett died in an airplane crash a few weeks ago. Trucks were supplied by Ron McKarchar, St. Hilaire (Ricky Grandbois as driver); Danny Wagnar, Clearbrook; Al VandaStraak, Clearbrook; St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator (LeRoy Aasaby as driver); Dal Arneson, Fargo ND (Russ Hjella as driver; Wayne Kruse, St. Hilaire; Ron Hink, St. Hilaire; and Jim Hutchinson, Thief River Falls.

ered to customers in the northeastern United States. The remaining 132.5 MMcf/d is intended for customers in eastern Canada.

The 460 miles of pipeline looping in the three-phase project consists of 77 miles in Minnesota, 43 in Wisconsin and 340 in Michigan. Great Lakes has received approval from the Federal Energy Regulatory commission and the Department of Energy and obtained permits from all appropriate state and local agencies before construction began.

First phase of the project involved loop line installation in Michigan's lower peninsula. Part of the second phase involved installation in northern Minnesota. For environmental reasons, including construction in certain wetlands and mitigation measures related to threatened and endangered plant species, the second phase was built during the 1990-91 winter season when the ground was frozen.

All three phases of the project are scheduled to be placed in service by November of 1991.

In addition to increasing the throughput capacity of the pipeline, Martucci said, adding loop line also increases security. In the unlikely event of an outage, the loss of one line would not jeopardize total gas flow through the affected section. Looping also increases efficiency by allowing pipeline compressors to operate on less fuel.

Since it began operating in 1968, Great Lakes has installed approximately 450 miles of 36-inch loop pipeline, including 177 miles in 1989-90. Other looping projects were completed in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Great Lakes has regional offices in Duluth and in Petoskey, MI, and district offices in Farwell and Rapid River, MI; Ashland, WI; and Bemidji. The company also operates 14 compressor stations situated about 75 miles apart along the pipeline to pump gas to market.

Great Lakes Gas Transmission Limited Partnership is a Detroit-based natural gas pipeline that transports Canadian natural gas through a 1,500-mile pipeline for delivery to customers in the United States and eastern Canada. It is co-owned by subsidiaries of The Coastal Corporation, a Houston-based energy holding company, and TransCanada PipeLines of Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

Coastal is an energy holding company with $9 billion in assets and subsidiary operations in natural gas transmission and storage, oil and gas exploration and production, refining and marketing, coal and chemicals, and independent power production.

Great Lakes transports more than 500 billion cubic feet of gas per year, about 60 per cent of which is returned to markets in eastern Canada. The balance is transported or sold to pipeline and distribution companies in the United States.

The expansion of which the work in this area is a part will increase the firm capacity throughput of the Great Lakes system by more than 700 million cubic feet per day.

An article in the August 6 issue of the Thief River Falls Times noted that Steve Brekke was being recommended by activities director Lee Alger as high school boys basketball coach for School District 564. The name was incorrect.

Scott Brekke, Steve's brother, has been recommended to the School District 564 board for approval. Scott is a 1983 graduate of Warren high school and a 1988 graduate of the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. He played basketball in high school but not at the university.

Installment to IRS due

Internal Revenue Service reminds people who make estimated tax payments that the third installment for 1991 is due Monday, September 16.

The payment should be sent to the IRS along with the third quarter payment voucher from Form 1040ES, Estimated Tax for Individuals. To be sure that the payment is properly credited to your account, the IRS asks that you write your social security number and the words, "1991 Form 1040ES" on the check.

If you expect to owe $500 or more in federal tax at the end of the year, you probably should be making quarterly estimated tax payments, the IRS says. Although retirees and business people are most often affected by this requirement, it can potentially apply to anyone who receives income that is not subject to withholding, such as unemployment benefits, alimony, capital gains, interest, dividends, and rental income.

Form 1040ES has a worksheet which can help you figure out whether or not you need to make estimated tax payments and, if so, how much. To get this form, call toll-free 1-800-TAX FORM (829-3676). You can listen to a brief overview of this subject by calling Tele-Tax, the IRS' automated system of pre-recorded tax information. Dial 1-800-829-4477 and request tape number 156.

If you have a touch-tone phone, Tele-Tax is available 24 hours-a-day, 7 days-a-week. For rotary-dial phone users, the service is available Monday through Friday during normal business hours.

Red River Valley featured at '91 MN State Fair

Minnesota Department of Agriculture will show off some of the richest farmland in the Midwest Aug. 22 to Sept. 2 at the 1991 state fair.

The department will feature Minnesota's Red River Valley.

Fair-goers will 'travel the Red River Valley with the Department of Agriculture' by covered wagon, which will carry them from farming in the pioneer days to farming in today's high-tech world.

Highlighted along the way will be the various commodities that grow in this rich valley and the agribusiness that are important to it. For example, in 1990, Minnesota ranked first in national sunflowers, fourth for barley, seventh for dry edible beans and ninth for potatoes.

Daily panel discussions will center on topics important to both urban and rural people who depend on agricultural products. The first panel will study how agriculture developed in the Red River Valley. Others will address the workings of the Agriculture Department; education and careers in agriculture in the year 2000; food and nutrition; dairy issues; farmers' concern for their animals and our environment; upcoming legislation and its impact on agriculture; food labeling, safety and handling; a town meeting on rural issues; and farm safety.

There will also be demonstrations on agriculture and horticulture. Magnet Radio will carry all the exhibit's programs along with their regular broadcast.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Bello

Old Crossing Treaty Site in Red Lake county is one of the most historic spots in Minnesota. For centuries, people forded the Red Lake river here as they followed beach ridges. Its history began to be written between 1820 and 1872 when thousands of drivers, oxen and carts forded the Red Lake river here to follow the Woods Trail of the Pembina Trail.

Both sides of the Red Lake river were favorite camping spots. Ox cart trains liked to cross large rivers at the end of the day, camping on the far side to dry out and to get a fast start at dawn. The thick groves of oak, poplar and elm through which the trail wound down to the river provided all the firewood a party could want.

The Old Crossing site is most important because of the treaty made here in 1863. Only four years after Minnesota became a state, the United States forced the last of the Dakota Indians out of the state and recognized the Ojibwe as owners of the land.

Earlier, Dakota and Ojibwe had fought so bitterly over the Valley that the entire Valley from the Pembina to the Sheyenne River had been declared a warroad where no Indians could live.

Although the United States was also embroiled in the bloody Civil War at the time, an invitation was sent out from Washington to the Red Lake and Pembina bands of the Ojibwe Indians to assemble at the Old Crossing for a Pow-Wow. The purpose was to forge a treaty with the chiefs and headmen to cede nearly all of the Red River Valley of the North.

In mid-September, 1863, the Red Lake river, only a short distance from the ford or "Old Crossing" at Huot. With them came U. S. Indian Agent A.C. Morrill.

On September 21st Alexander Ramsey, official representative of the U.S. government, arrived, accompanied by a small detachment of U.S. soldiers. The white men encamped on a small hillock.

When the Pembina Band arrived on September 23rd, the first session began. The Pembina Ojibwe also encamped on the lowland, with the white men between the bands.

Pierre Bottineau was the interpreter.

For two weeks the chiefs and headmen bargained and discussed the terms of the treaty, seeking good terms and conditions for their respective bands.

By October 1st all the chiefs had agreed to the terms of the treaty except Chief May-dwa-gun-on-ind, of the Red Lake Band, who steadfastly opposed the terms of the treaty. When the chiefs left the council on the evening of October 1st all hope of making a treaty with the Red Lake Indians seemed to be at an end. However, the next day the council assembled without May-Dwa-gun-on-ind, and after further discussion lasting about three and a half hours, a Red Lake Chief, Mons-o-Mo (Red-Robed) "touched the pen." Five other chiefs, eight warriors, and one head warrior followed him in signing and Ramsey, Morrill, and witnesses followed suit.

The treaty completed, the treaty goods, presents, flags, and provisions were distributed, and on October 3rd the expedition started on its return home. Everyone was glad to leave, for food had run out and back at the villages preparations needed to be made for the coming winter.

The ceded area, one of the most fertile land of the world, was about 180 miles long from the Canadian border, and 127 miles east and west. For this 3 million acres of prairie the U.S. paid the Ojibwe $510,000.

Article One, filed at the Polk County Historical Society, says "The peace and friendship now existing between the United States and Red Lake and Pembina bands of the Ojibwe Indians shall be perpetual."

For his part in securing the land, Chief Mons-o-Mo was given land "where the two rivers meet," which today extends along Red Lake river from the Soo Line Depot to the Eighth Street bridge in Thief River Falls.

The structures of Old Crossing were burned in 1862 during the uprising at Lower Sioux Agency. Twenty years after their banishment in 1863, some of the Dakota returned to their villages and about 800 of their descendants still live near the Lower Agency.

Pierre Bottineau was a famous scout of French and Indian blood. Born in 1810 to Joseph Bottineau and Clear Sky, Bottineau had "piercing black eyes and was of gentlemanly deportment, polite, agreeable and of a kindly disposition, always true to his word." He was described as a man of great innate intelligence and adventurous spirit. Many times Bottineau had followed the Pembina trails into Canada, but that life was to come to an end when the trails were replaced by railroad tracks.

Bottineau considered the Old Crossing area to be the best of land and settled with his large family at Red Lake Falls. He also guided many other French Canadian families, who also took up government homesteads near Red Lake Falls. Bottineau remained until his death there, one of its most honored citizens.

After the Northern Pacific tracks came to Moorhead in 1872 the ox cart business was over, but the trails continued to be used locally, and stage coaches were one means of conveyance until James J. Hill built his line to Winnipeg.

But the romance of life on the Pembina trail is not forgotten. Some of this history will come alive the weekend of August 23rd when the Association of the French of the North presents its annual Chatauqua at Old Crossing and Treaty Park. The banks of the Red Lake River will again ring with laughter and songs when a redezvous encampment is re-created. On Saturday evening there will be a portrayal of James J. Hill, who got his start transporting buffalo hides in the Red River Valley.

We plan to get there by following the Old Pembina Trail. In Pennington County the trail is now a dirt road running south from County Road 8 past the Goose Lake Wildlife area, cutting off a small corner of Polk county and returning to Pennington to meet Pennington County Road 10 near the Red Lake county border. The trail then parallels Red Lake County Road 3 to Dorothy before turning east to the Red Lake River.

Deadline nears for deer permit drawing driver's license number, public safety ID number or a 13-digit firearms safety number (only on certificates issued since Jan. 1, 1991) to apply for a permit. Any hunters under age 18 are encouraged, but not required, to supply one of these identification numbers. A number will be assigned to those youth hunters who do not supply a number and they will be entered in the preference drawing. These numbers have already been generated for those hunters who applied for the youth drawing in 1990 and postcards with peel-off labels that include the identification number have been mailed to these individuals.

The identification number assigned by the DNR should be used until a driver's license or public safety ID number is obtained. This number can also be used for other DNR drawings that require identification numbers – bear, moose and turkey hunts. Schad explained that the old firearms safety drawing for youth hunters was completely random, with no preference. "We heard from many unlucky young hunters who went many years without receiving a permit or building preference. Now that we have the capability to assign unique identification numbers, youth hunters can immediately enter the regular drawing and begin to gain preference if they are unsuccessful," Schad said.

Special Hunts

Special permit areas include areas normally closed to hunting, areas with excessive deer numbers, or areas where hunter numbers must be limited, according the the DNR. In 1991, there will be 12 special hunts during the regular firearms season, six hunts during the late muzzleloader season and six archery hunts, all of which are described in the regulations.

Applicants for special archery hunts must be made on application forms available from the agency conducting the hunt. The application deadline for special hunts is Thursday, Sept. 5, except that the deadline to apply for the Camp Ripley Military Reserve archery hunt is August 16.

There are two unique special hunts being planned:

■ A special orchard sub-permit area hunt will be held in the LaCrescent area to address problems caused by deer in area apple orchards. The sub-permit area is a 43-square mile area within Antlerless Permit Area 346 that will be open for antlerless-only bonus deer hunting during the 3A season. The 3A season is normally bucks-only, but, in addition to their regular buck license hunters may use their antlerless permit application to apply for one of 190 available bonus licenses. Hunters are cautioned by the DNR that this area is entirely private land and they should not apply for this hunt unless they have first secured permission from a landowner. Additional information and application instruction are included in the deer regulations.

■ A deer control program in Fort Snelling State Park and the Minnesota River Valley National Wildlife Refuge, pending approval for firearms discharge from the four cities where these areas lie. If approved, drawings will be held to select 100 individuals to take bonus antlerless deer by shotgun during each of three time periods – Nov. 30-Dec. 1; Dec. 6-8; and Dec. 13-15. More details of this program and application procedures will be announced once final approvals have been obtained.

New Regulations

There are a number of new regulations being implemented this year to expand or maintain quality deer hunting opportunities:

■ Baiting restrictions. It is now illegal to place or use bait for the purpose of taking deer. Liquid scents, salt and minerals are not considered bait, nor are foods that result from normal or accepted farming or other land management activities. Also, individuals can still feed deer, but the food cannot be used for hunting purposes.

■ Experimental two-deer area. In most areas, hunters are prohibited from tagging deer with both their regular firearms and regular bow and arrow licenses. In those areas, the only way an individual is allowed to tag two deer in the same year is with a bonus license. Beginning this fall, an exception to this rule will take effect in Kittson, Roseau and Marshall counties of northwestern Minnesota. The 1991 Minnesota Legislature authorized an experimental two-deer hunt in those counties that allows hunters to take and tag a deer with both their regular firearms and bow and arrow licenses, without purchasing a bonus license. DNR officials noted that both deer must be taken and registered in the three-county area, and hunters are required to obtain a free permit before attempting to take the second deer.

■ December bowhunting. The bow and arrow season has been extended through the end of December for a large portion of Zones 1 and 2 in east-central Minnesota. Previously, this area was open only through the first week of December.

■ Bonus bowhunting. Bonus bow and arrow licenses allow archers to take a second, anderless-only deer in specified areas. They were previously valid only the the metro bonus bow area and some special hunts. This fall, bonus bow licenses will also be valid in 10 antlerless permit areas where bonus firearms licenses are anticipated. These areas are listed in the deer regulations. A bonus bow and arrow license may be purchased at any county auditor's office or the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul.

■ Tagging procedures. Prior to placing the tag from the license on a deer, hunters must now scratch off not only the date of the kill, but also the time of the day (AM or PM) and whether the deer is a male or female. In addition, for the first time hunters will have the option of placing the tag around the base of an antler or through a slit cut through the ear of the deer, in addition to between the tendon and bone of a hind leg.

DNR Wildlife Section officials also noted that the new $44 multiple-zone buck license is creating some confusion among hunters. Although this license was authorized by the 1991 Legislature, it will not go into effect until the fall of 1992.

Camp Ripley Bow Hunt

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reminded bowhunters that applications for the 1991 Camp Ripley archery hunt must be received by the DNR no later than Friday, Aug. 16:

A total of 4,000 permits are available this year for the weekends of Oct. 19-20 and Nov. 2-3.

Applications must be made on forms available by writing: Archery Hunt, R.R. 4, Box 19A, Little Falls, MN 56345. Requests for applications must include a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope.

Attention
Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc. Announces Equal Access
You will soon have a choice of long distance telephone companies. As a result of a 1983 order by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), all long distance telephone companies now have an equal opportunity to compete for business. Called "Equal Access," this ruling allows customers to select the long distance company of their choice. They may stay with the carrier they currently use or select a new one.
The balloting process for choosing a long distance carrier will begin October 30. Wikstrom Telephone Company customers will be mailed an official ballot listing the participating long distance companies. Customers will cast two votes on the ballots—one for a long distance carrier for calls made within their calling area and one for a long distance carrier for calls made to another calling area. The same long distance carrier may be used for both areas.
It's critical that customers vote and return their ballot promptly. Those not voting will be randomly assigned a long distance carrier in accordance with FCC regulations.
The ballot will list toll free numbers for all participating companies, providing consumers the opportunity to call each long distance company to compare rates and services.
The long distance companies may mail information or call potential customers, asking them to subscribe to their company. We want to stress that the Voice Your Choice ballot from the local telephone company is the official ballot. Customers need to complete the ballot and return it before the deadline or they will be randomly assigned to a long distance company.
Equal Access is being implemented in Minnesota by Minnesota Equal Access Network Services (MEANS). The MEANS network joins 65 Minnesota telephone companies and employs a state-of-the-art telecommunications network, including a digital switch and fiber optic cable.
MEANS serves the second largest long distance telecommunications market in the state. Only the Twin Cities area market is larger. MEANS received written approval from the Public Utilities Commission in January of 1991 to operate a telecommunications network.

At Thief Lake, Lac Qui Parle...

Controlled goose hunts planned again this year

Hunters may apply again this year to reserve goose hunting stations within the controlled hunt zones at the Thief Lake and Lac Qui Parle wildlife management areas, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced.

Applications must be postmarked no later than September 14. They will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark, but must not be postmarked earlier than August 19. Failure to comply with these requirements will result in the application's rejection, according to the DNR. Although waterfowl season dates will not be officially set until late August, the Minnesota goose season is expected to open Sept. 28.

Hunters may apply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled areas of Thief River and Lac Qui Parle. Applications must be made on a standard 3 1/2-inch by 5 1/2-inch postcard bearing the applicant's full name and address, and listing first, second and third choices of dates. Applicants should indicate whether they will accept any other date if none of their choices is available.

At Thief Lake, the reservation system will be in effect only through October 21. After that date, stations will be available on a first-come, first-choice basis. The system will be in effect at Lac Qui Parle for the entire goose season.

Only one postcard per hunter may be submitted to each area, and only successful applicants will be notified. They will receive reservations by mail designating the day of their hunt. Those submitting more than one application per area will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications should be sent to Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area, HCR, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737, or Controlled Hunt, Lac Qui Parle Wildlife Management Area, Route 1, Box 23, Watson, MN 56295.

Hunters with reservations for Thief Lake and Lac Qui Parle will be assigned by a drawing held on the morning of the hunt. Successful applicants may be accompanied by one or two guests.

Hunters at Thief Lake should watch for informational signs directing them to the new controlled hunt parking lot and check station, said DNR officials.

At Lac Qui Parle, all hunters using hunting stations in the controlled hunt zone who are 18 years of age or older will be charged a $3 fee on the day of their hunt to partially cover controlled hunt special expenses.

Persons participating in these hunts will be limited to three trips to the stations, either as guests or successful applicants, except when vacancies exist.

The six-shell limited, shooting hours and steel shot restrictions will be strictly enforced, according to DNR wildlife officials.

The DNR also alerted hunters that a special permit, valid for the entire season, will be required again this year for all goose hunters in the West Central and Lac Qui Parle goose zones. Portions of Big Stone, Swift, Chippewa, Yellow Medicine and Lac Qui Parle counties lie within the West Central and Lac Qui Parle goose zones. The special permit is required of all hunters, regardless of whether hunting on state or private land. Hunters will also need a small game license, and state and federal waterfowl stamps.

Permit application forms are now available. Goose hunters are urged by the DNR to apply for their permits as early as possible. Applicants for permits must be submitted on DNR forms, which are available from license agents, county auditor's offices and DNR wildlife offices. Application instructions and a map of the zones are on each form.

The hunter permit system is used to gather information needed to accurately determine hunter numbers and goose harvest within the West Central and Lac Qui Parle zone, said DNR officials.

Twins plan playoff ticket sales

Minnesota Twins officials have formulated a post-season ticket plan, allowing fans to enter into a random drawing for the opportunity to purchase tickets for any American League Championship and World Series games at the Metrodome by sending a post card postmarked between August 12-23.

This ticket program does not include fans who have already established ticket priority – season ticket holders, season ticket plan holders and coordinators of large groups who purchase 300 or more reserved seats. Those Twins customers will receive a separate ticket application in the mail.

Fans who have not established ticket priority may make application for tickets by sending in a standard-sized post card containing only the following information: name, address, zip code, day and evening phone numbers and the number of ticket strips requested (limit of two). The post cards should be sent to: Minnesota Twins, Post Office Box 1331, Minneapolis, MN 55440-

Antlerless permit deadline nears

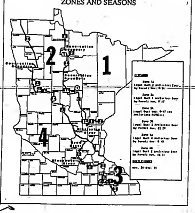
Minnesota deer hunters can look forward to another very successful year, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Deer licenses, regulations and permit applications for the 1991 season became available this week from state license agents and the DNR License Bureau, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4026.

The application deadline for antlerless permits and most special hunts is Thursday, Sept. 5.

Deer herds have increased across the state in recent years due to a series of mild winters and improved population modeling and management by DNR biologists and managers, according to Dave Schad, DNR Forest Wildlife Program leader.

"Populations in both farmland areas and forested areas are very close to goal populations. In those areas permit quotas and the season framework are intended to maintain deer numbers," said Schad. "However, in some areas, particularly transition areas with a mixture of forest and agricultural lands that provide ideal habitat, deer populations have exceeded goal levels resulting in increased damage to agricultural crops, deer-vehicle collisions and other problems. In these areas, major increases in antlerless permits, additional bonus deer options and some special hunts are designed to lower deer numbers," Schad said.

1991 MINNESOTA FIREARMS DEER HUNTING ZONES AND SEASONS



Antlerless Permits

The DNR is offering 193,980 antlerless permits this year, the most ever offered and 40 percent more than in 1990. The previous high was 167,725 in 1985. Much of this increase is concentrated in east-central and central Minnesota, where deer populations are over goal and need to be reduced. Permits increased 85 percent in Zone 1 (northeastern Minnesota), 70 percent in Zone 2 (north central to east central) and 10 percent in Zone 4 (northwest and southwest). Permits decreased 7 percent in Zone 3 (southeast).

Although the permits in the southeast are down slightly from previous high levels, the harvest in that area should maintain or reduce deer numbers consistent with established goals, Schad said. The major increases in permits in the transition areas of Zones 1 and 2 are attributable to the effects of mild winters, conservation permit quotas in the past and deer populations that currently have a very productive age and sex structure, he said.

Hunters who applied for an antlerless permit last year have been mailed a DNR postcard with a peel-off label to use on the permit application form. These labels are used to reduce the number of errors on applications, and to save the costs of entering hunter information each year. Schad said hunters are encouraged, but not required, to use the labels. He said hunters should note that some antlerless permit area boundaries and numbers have been changed along the Minnesota River from Lac Qui Parle to the Mankato area.

Antlerless permit applicants will receive preference in the computer drawing based on the number of times they have correctly applied and have not been drawn since last receiving a permit. Hunters who are successful in the drawing will receive their permits by October 25. Applicants should not call the DNR before that date to find out if they received a permit, Schad said, because officials are unable to check the computerized records until all permits have been mailed.

One change this year is discontinuance of the separate antlerless permit drawing for hunters under age 18 who apply using their firearms safety certificate number. Those hunters will now be allowed to enter the preference drawing. All applicants age 18 or over must supply a

No envelopes, hand delivered post cards or duplicate applications will be accepted.

Wheelchair seating will be available for disabled fans with severe mobility impairment who are unable to transfer from a wheelchair to a regular stadium seat. Fans requiring wheelchair seating must indicate on their post card the number of wheelchair seats needed (limit of two).

DNR News

A giant carp, Smokey Bear and exotic lake invaders are just a few things you can see at the DNR Building and Natural Resources Park at the 1991 Minnesota State Fair, August 22 through September 2.

As in the past, 35 species of native live birds and mammals, along with 30 species of native fish and 20 species of reptiles will be on display.

New this year in the DNR Building is a stuffed 85-pound carp from the Sunrise Sport Center in Wyoming, Minnesota. Carp Saturday will be held August 24 to focus on this under-utilized fish. Free tasting of carp-on-a-stick, pickled carp and more will be held from 3 to 8 p.m. that day. The Minnesota Carp Show will also be held August 24 at 4 and 7 p.m. on the DNR outdoor stage.

A special State Fair Natural Resources Day will be held Friday, Aug. 23. To celebrate, the DNR will be hosting a variety of activities. There will be entertainment on the DNR outdoor stage from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., including music by centennial park troubadour Charlie Maguire and folk signers John Lenarz and Lon Miles. Fair visitors will have a chance to win prizes in a wolf howling contest put on the the International Wolf Center, or help the DNR kick off the new Minnesota ReLEAF Programs by enjoying free christmas cookies with Smokey Bear. The Raptor Center will also be presenting two shows using live birds of prey. In the afternoon, DNR staff will be on hand to discuss career and volunteer opportunities in the natural resources field.

Throughout the fair the DNR offers more than 75 hours of free entertainment on the DNR outdoor stage, including music, Native American and folk dancing, plus animal and puppet shows. You can also see demonstrations on fish filleting, gardening for wildlife, duck and goose calling and pop can casting. The DNR indoor theatre offers free movies and videos from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

The centennial quilt, created this year to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Minnesota state parks, will also be on display, along with the automated weather station and the House the Forest Built.

Free catch-and-release rulers and lake data printouts on over 12,000 lakes in Minnesota detailing such things as fish species and lake depth will also be offered.

Removing lake weeds may require a permit

During August, lakeshore property owners may notice what they consider to be an excess of aquatic vegetation, or weeds, growing just beyond their shoreline. But unlike weeds that grow in home flower beds and vegetable gardens, most aquatic plants are beneficial to the aquatic environment, and as such, are protected by state law.

Before shoreland residents or owners start cutting, pulling or chemically poisoning any aquatic vegetation, they should check first with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Section of Fisheries to see if a permit is required.

State law allows property owners to cut or pull submerged vegetation, without a permit, up to 2,500 square feet of surface area along the shoreline. The cleared area may not extend more than 50 feet along the shoreline, or one-half the length of the owner's total shoreline property, whichever is less. In addition, a boat channel, not to exceed 15 feet in width, may be added to the lakeward edge of the cleared area, out to open water, but may not add to the 50-foot maximum limit of cleared shoreline.

If submerged vegetation is removed more than once, it must be removed from the same area each time. Property owners may not add to, or enlarge the 2,500 square-foot area in subsequent years without a permit.

Removal of lily pads or any emergent plants – those with stems and leaves growing above the water's surface, such as bulrush, cattail and wild rice – cannot be removed without a permit. Any use of chemical herbicides in the water also requires a permit, and permits for chemical control of vegetation are not usually issued after August 1.

Cutting or pulling of submerged vegetation can be done using hand or power operated cutters and rakes or similar equipment. The use of draglines, bulldozers, hydraulic jets, suction dredges or other power-operated earth moving equipment is not allowed. All plants cut and pulled must be removed from the water and deposited above the ordinary high water level.

The permit system is necessary to avoid situations where lakeshore owners, collectively, remove too much vegetation from the water. Rooted aquatic plants remove pollutants and excess nutrients from water and lake bed, and help prevent excessive growths of algae. Aquatic plants provide shelter and spawning habitat for fish and are the primary producers in the food chain. Aquatic vegetation also provides food and habitat for a variety of wildlife, and helps prevent shoreline erosion by breaking up wave action. Plants also add to the aesthetic value of the water resource.

For more information on permits and aquatic plant management, contact Jeff Anderson, DNR Regional Aquatic Plant Specialist at Glenwood (612-634-4573), or Henry Drews, DNR Regional Fisheries Project Coordinator at Bemidji (755-3959).

State Parks

Old Mill

Chuck Suchy will be presenting a special program entitled Prairie Songs at Old Mill State Park Sunday.

Designed for all ages, the program will begin at 2 p.m. at the picnic shelter.

Prairie Songs highlights songs of the upper great plains prairies by using such musical instruments as an acoustic guitar, accordion, autoharp and harmonica.

Now in its eighth season, Lifetimes & Landscapes is an entertaining and educational collection of programs relating to the natural, historical and cultural resources of the state. This year, more than 100 programs will enhance the celebration of the centennial of the state parks.

Prairie Songs is free and open to the public, but a vehicle permit is required to enter the park. Daily permits are $3.25 ($2 for senior citizens).

Rules Meetings

While students begin preparing for another season of high school athletic competition, coaches and officials are also getting ready for the 1991 fall sports season by attending Minnesota State High School League rules interpretation meetings.

Coaches and officials attend these meetings to familiarize themselves with new rules, and to discuss interpretations of existing rules.

A new MSHSL policy now requires coaches to annual attend the rules meetings in their sport.

These meetings also offer opportunities for individuals interested in becoming a high school athletic official to obtain more information and initiate the required training process.

The MSHSL rules interpretation meetings began earlier this month for football and soccer. All meetings are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the high schools of the communities hosting the meeting, unless otherwise specified.

Additional football meetings are planned August 13 – Bemidji (JW Smith School auditorium), North St. Paul, Virginia, Windom; August 14 – Marshall, Rochester John Marshall, St. Cloud Apollo, Willmar; and August 15 – Hermantown, Perham, Richfield.

Football clinicians include Bob Meslow, Mahtomedi; Tom Williams, Thief River Falls; Karl Beck, Fergus Falls; Rich Stolp, Mankato; Jack Kelly Windom; and Bill Hare, Cohasset.

Volleyball meetings are scheduled August 13 – Hibbing, Moorhead, Owatonna; August 14 – Alexandria, Duluth East, Osseo; August 15 – Hutchinson, Marshall, White Bear Lake; August 16 – Edina Prairie (5 p.m.); August 20 – Tri-County; August 21 – Bloomington Kennedy, Brainerd, St. Paul Central, Win-E-Mac, Windom; and August 22 – Mankato West, Rochester John Marshall, St. Cloud Apollo.

The volleyball clinicians include Anna Anderson, Fridley; Nina Lacis, Minneapolis; Pam Macias, St. Louis Park; Bonnie Karst, Shakopee; and Bob Stanek, Alexandria.

Swimming and diving meetings are scheduled August 14 – Fergus Falls Middle School, Rochester Mayo; August 19 – St. Cloud Apollo (6:30 p.m.); August 20 – Parkview Center School (Room 129); August 21 – Virginia; August 26 – Richfield Junior High; and November 20 – Minneapolis Washburn.

Roger Cersine of Edina is the swimming and diving clinician.

Remaining soccer meetings will be held August 13 – Bloomington Jefferson; August 15 – Rochester John Marshall; August 19 – Richfield (6:30 p.m.); and August 21 – Mounds View.

Soccer clinician is Roger Frick, Minneapolis.

IN MEMORIAM
JOHN TANEM

In loving memory of husband and father who passed away eight years ago
With heavy hearts and tearful eyes we watched you slip away
Although we loved you dearly we could not make you stay
The tears in our eyes we can wipe away
But the ache in our hearts will always stay
Life goes on, that is true
But nothing is the same since we lost you
We will always love you

With all our love

The Second Section

Conditions and time are factors in crash statistics

Minnesota crash statistics released in State department public safety offfice of traffic safety

This is the second segment of a two-part series on crash statistics issued in the 1990 Minnesota Motor Vehicle Crash Facts book. Statistics were compiled by the Office of Traffic Safety Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

What the conditions were:

Forty per cent of crashes occurred despite traffic signal. Most crashes occurred where there was no traffic signal of any kind, but about 40 per cent occurred where there was some form of sign or traffic signal. For fatal crashes, 17 per cent occurred where there was a stop sign, but not for all approaches. For crashes at all severity levels, 18 per cent occurred where there was a traffic light; another 15 per cent occurred where there was a stop sign, but not at all approaches.

Fatal crashes occurred in poor light. Sixty-one per cent of all crashes occurred in daylight conditions, compared to fewer than half of the fatal crashes. Thirty-four per cent of fatal crashes occurred after dark where there were no street lights; another 13 per cent occurred after dark, but where there were street lights; six per cent occurred during dawn or dusk.

Most crashes occurred in good weather and on dry roads. Eighty-five per cent of fatal crashes and 81 per cent of all crashes occurred during clear or cloudy weather conditions. Seventy-five per cent of fatal crashes and 67 per cent of all crashes occurred on dry road surfaces.

Speed and alcohol cited most in fatal crashes. In fatal crashes, the contributing factors cited most often were "illegal or unsafe speed" (representing 19 per cent of all factors cited), followed by "physical impairment" (16 per cent), and then "driver inattention or distraction" (15 per cent). For both injury and property damage crashes, "driver inattention or distraction" came first (26 per cent of the total factors cited), followed by "failure to yield right of way" (15 per cent), then "illegal or unsafe speed" (12 per cent).

Where they happened

Fatal crashes occurred in rural areas, non-fatal in urban areas.

Sixty-eight per cent of fatal crashes occurred on two-lane, two-way roads. To a large extent, these were trunk and county state aid highways in rural areas. By contrast, 68 per cent of all crashes occurred in urban areas (defined as cities having a population of 5,000 or more people). Of these crashes, 39 per cent occurred on local streets and 51 per cent occurred on trunk and county state aid highways passing through these towns and cities.

Seven-county metro area has one third of fatal crashes.

The seven-county metro area has about half the state's population, but it was the site of 36 per cent of the fatal crashes and 60 per cent of all crashes that occurred in the state. The two cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul together (representing 15 per cent of the state's population) accounted for 9 per cent of fatal crashes and 24 per cent of total crashes.

More gasoline stations in MN offering ethanol

About 82 per cent more retail gasoline stations in Minnesota offer ethanol-blended fuels this year than last, according to the Minnesota Ethanol Commission (MEC).

The MEC compiles a list of all stations in the state which carry ethanol-blended fuel. In the last six months, over 250 new stations added ethanol as an option for their customers.

The MEC says that the increase in the number of service stations offering ethanol is accompanied by a record jump in ethanol sales figures. Ethanol market share is now nearly 25 per cent, up from about 10 per cent just one year ago.

"Minnesotans now purchase more than 450 million gallons of ethanol-blended fuel each year," said Kay Kruse, MEC Program Administrator. "This means that about 8 billion miles are driven each year in this state using the cleanest alternative fuel available today."

According to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the Minneapolis/St.Paul metropolitan area exceeds EPA standards for levels of carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless gas. EPA states that the higher the oxygen level in a gasoline blend, the greater the reduction in automobile tail pipe carbon monoxide emissions. A normal ethanol-blended fuel (10 per cent ethanol/90 per cent gasoline) contains 3.7 per cent oxygen, which greatly exceeds the EPA's oxygen requirement of 2.7 per cent for reformulated gasolines.

Oklee teachers among state award winners

Award-winning teachers were recognized August 5 by the Agriculture in the Classroom program at the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA).

The winners were awarded cash prizes totalling $1,250 for effectively integrated agriculture into their classroom through an innovative lesson or unit.

Agriculture Commissioner Elton Redalen said he was impressed with the work and enthusiasm of the winning teachers. "These teachers are the link to student's understanding of the importance of agriculture," he said.

The winners included Burnsville's Sky Oaks Elementary; Connie Dugstad, Doloris Haugen and Jane Kolstoe from Oklee Elementary; Mana Savaiano from Minneapolis' Barton Open School; and James Olson from Princeton's South Elementary.

Twenty-two public and private organizations and businesses were also recognized for their contributions to Ag in the Classroom. Redalen thanked the contributors for their "unwavering support," calling the contributions "vital to the on-going success" of the MDA program.

Contributors include: Bemis Foundation; Cargill; Farm Credit Services; George A. Hormel; Harvest States Foundation; International Multifoods Charitable Foundation; Josten's Foundation;

Land O'Lakes; Minnesota Beef Research & Promotion Council; Minnesota Dairy Research & Promotion Council; MDA; Minnesota Education Association; Minnesota Plant Food & Chemicals Association; Minnesota Pork Producers Association; Minnesota Soybean Research & Promotion Council, Minnesota Turkey Research & Promotion Council; Minnesota Wheat Research & Promotion Council; Northrup King; Pioneer Hi-Bred International; Red River Valley Sugarbeet Growers Association; Super Valu Stores; and the University of Minnesota College of Agriculture.

Two new Ag in the Classroom Board of Directors were also elected Monday: Vernon Cardwell of the U of M College of Agriculture and Allan Krejci of Hormel.

Those re-elected to the Board's two-year terms were: Jean Fellows, a Worthington farmer; Dr. Greg Hutchins of Minnesota Extension and 4-H; Robin Kinney of the Minnesota Farm Bureau; Walt Munsterman, an Anoka teacher; Joanne Randen of the Minnesota Pork Producers Association; Dr. Jan Stevens of Minnesota Agri Women.

LET FAITH HELP YOU MAKE THOSE MAJOR DECISIONS

Many times in our lives we come to the crossroads of having to make a major and usually irreversible decision. It might be something like whether to buy a new car or have the old one repaired; or whether to change our job or our residence; or it might be a situation involving a serious illness, where your doctor gives you several treatment options from which you must make a choice. In any case, you have to decide, and then resolve not to worry about the wisdom of what you have chosen. Attend your House of Worship, both before and after rendering that decision; praying first for guidance and then for the courage to deal with whatever consequences may arise, knowing that God will be with you all the way.

Once a decision was made, I did not worry about it afterward.

Plus the MFC states that ethanol helps to keep a car's fuel system cleaner. A clean fuel system burns gasoline more completely and reduces pollution.

The American Lung Association states that motor vehicles account for about two thirds of the carbon-monoxide pollution in the United States. The Association estimates that, in the United States, health costs of up to $93.5 billion can be attributed to motor vehicle emissions alone. Gasoline containing ethanol can reduce carbon monoxide emissions by an average of 25 per cent.

"Minnesota's air quality is in the consumer's hands" says Kruse. "The combination of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency's inspection program currently underway in the Twin Cities plus consumers choosing ethanol blended fuel when they fill up will result in significant reductions in air pollution."

Kruse recommends that customers tell their local service station manager that they would like to see cleaner fuels such as ethanol offered for sale. "Retailers sell what their customers want" she says. "All auto manufacturers approve of the use of ethanol blended fuel. General Motors and Chrysler recommend the use of clean burning fuels such as ethanol," she said.

For the Summer 1991 list of Minnesota stations which currently offer ethanol-blended fuel, contact the Minnesota Ethanol Commission, Minnesota Department of Agriculture at (612) 297-2301.

THE TIMES' Editorial Opinion

Thief River Falls, Minnesota

J.P. Mattson, publisher

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Some Reasons Why The Public Is Sour On Congress

An organization called "Americans To Limit Congressional Terms" has published a couple of information sheets in support of its effort to create greater change-over in our national government. The view is that concentration on reelection and entrenchment in office do not provide the type of concentration on performance that our elected representatives should give.

The view is—and it is not an improper one—that members of the U.S. Congress pad their pocketbooks and dismiss responsibility in a manner inconsistent with expectations of the American public. The view also is that changes will not be made in that situation unless and until there is sufficient change-over in Congressmen who are committed to change to get the job done.

Congress has displayed a disinterest or at least an inability to exert any kind of effective control on government spending. As a result, in the last 10 years alone the nation's national debt has more than tripled from $994,000,000,000 ($994 billion) in 1981 to $3,618,000,000,000 ($3.618 trillion) in 1991. The debt now stands at nearly $15,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States, making us the greatest debtor nation on earth.

Despite this colossal mismanagement of funds, Congress has enjoyed a 97 per cent reelection rate for the last three elections. It is obvious that Americans have been convinced that the culprits are not their own Congressmen but those from other districts. This is due in large part to the reelection selling job Congressmen are able to do with the perks they have given themselves.

Americans To Limit Congressional Terms points out some of the things that Congressmen have given themselves:

(1) Last year they raised their own salaries 11 per cent to $125,100, which places them in the top one per cent of all wage earners. Top Democrats and Republicans signed an agreement not to campaign against each other on the pay raise issue.

(2) 191 Congressmen elected before 1980 can keep over $40 million in campaign contributions for their personal use if they leave Congress before 1993.

(3) Congressmen now have $400,000 in free mailings which are used to enhance their reelection chances.

(4) Free vacations and subsidized barber shops, beauty salons, restaurants, free flowers, free convenient parking spaces at airports are provided.

(5) A personal salary increase was granted by Congress in 1990 while raising most Americans' taxes.

(6) Up to $25,000 in speaking fees from groups that help them get reelected are allowed each Congressman.

(7) An average of more than $4 million is being used to run each Senator's and Representative's office.

(8) Other individual and family perks exist such as use of spas, health clubs, swimming pools, golf and tennis facilities at government-owned installations around the world.

Congress has given the public more than 10 tax increases in the past 10 years, an IOU for $63 billion taken from the Social Security Trust Fund, a Savings and Loan scandal which is expected to cost taxpayers $500 billion, spending of $318 billion more than it will collect in 1991 alone, an education system that hasn't kept pace with education in other nations and a system of laws that rewards criminals and fails to protect the innocent.

And Congressmen wonder why they are the object of jokes and complaints and animosity. If they would look at their own abysmal record and realize what precious little they have done to turn things around they might understand why the public is more than a little disturbed. It is too bad that the greatest nation on earth is being destroyed by the very people elected to keep it great.

Taking From Others

Uniform crime reports compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for 1990 showed that 14.5 million crimes were reported to law enforcement agencies in the United States last year—5,820 crimes for each 100,000 people in the nation.

Crimes included in the index include murder, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft and arson.

Crimes against the person such as murder, rape and aggravated assault are the most frightening of the crimes reported, but perhaps the most frustrating are the crimes involving property, including robbery, burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft. Willingness of some people to take what others have earned is a disappointing look at what is being learned in our society.

In 1990 these types of crimes reported included 639,271 robberies, over three million burglaries, about eight million larceny-thefts and 1.6 million motor vehicle thefts. On average, one of every 119 registered motor vehicles was stolen during 1990.

Property loss in the robberies was $501 million, in burglaries was $3.5 billion, in larceny-theft was $3.8 billion and in motor vehicle theft was over $8 billion. That's nearly $16 billion in losses in one year alone due to this type of activity.

It is amazing that while 70 per cent of all burglaries involved forcible entry, about half of the three million burglaries took place during the day and only half at night. It would appear that burglars are becoming increasingly bold and brazen in their trade. Losses in larceny-theft averaged $480 per incident.

Respect for other people and other people's property is a learned trait that should be taught from early age. When the cradle of that learning —a caring family environment—is weakened, the results become obvious. We can look for much more of such disturbing behavior in the years ahead.

Railroad Business

"We learn from reliable authority that the Great Northern will build from here to Red Lake Falls this fall. The new line will leave at the bend south of here and follow the east line of Black River Township south for about five or six miles cutting from there southwest to Red Lake Falls entering the town near the flour and saw mills. A crew of surveyors are here now working and the graders are expected to be here the last of the week. This will probably give us a daily service as soon as the branch is completed."

"We are informed that the Duluth & Dakota railroad have withdrawn their proposition and the election on the bond question will not take place. We learn that the company were afraid that their proposition would be defeated the time being too short to thoroughly explain the matter to the farmers. The proposition will probably come up again during the winter when the matter can be thoroughly looked into by every voter in the county. The proposition is a good one for the county and we think the voters will see it yet."

Flying Tigers granted U.S. veteran status

Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has announced that the famed World War II Flying Tigers have been granted veteran status.

A recent Defense department decision determined that honorably discharged members of the American Volunteer Group (AVG) (Flying Tigers) who served from December 7, 1941 to July 18, 1942, are potentially eligible for veterans benefits. Individuals must have an AVG discharge certificate or letter, or identification as an honorably discharged AVG member in other credible publications or documents.

In general, these newly designated veterans (or their survivors) can apply for the same benefits currently available to other veterans, including service-related disability compensation, pension, medical care, certain survivors' benefits, VA-guaranteed home loans and burial benefits.

Eligibility for specific benefits will be determined on a case-by-case basis, depending on the specifics of service and eligibility criteria for each benefits.

Before applying for veterans benefits, individuals must first apply for an Armed Forces discharge certificate by filling out DD Form 2168, which is available from any VA regional office or the department of Air Force.

The completed form, together with any supporting documents, should be sent to: HQ AFMPC/DPMARS2, Randolph AFB, TX 78150-6001, Attention: T5GT Williamson. Additional information is available from Lt. Col. Robert Dunlap, Secretary of the Air Force Personnel Council (AFPC), Washington, DC 20330-1000; telephone (703) 692-4747.

The discharge certificate must be presented to VA when applying for benefits.

County dive and rescue team joins in search

Pennington County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia, a member of the Pennington County dive/rescue team, found the body of a man reported missing on Lake of the Woods.

Kuznia said the man was reported missing Friday between 9:30 and 10 p.m. According to his information, the man was riding in one of two boats traveling from Young's Bay on the Northwest Angle to Oak Island. Kuznia said the man was riding in the lead boat, which was a rental boat, without lights when it veered off course. The second boat did not realize the first boat had veered off course until later. Kuznia said there were a number of dead-heads (large logs) floating in the area. The people in the second boat found the first boat idling in the water with no one in it. Kuznia said he believes the first boat struck a dead-head and the man fell out. One witness on a nearby island said he heard a man yelling and placed a call on his portable radio to Young's Bay. A Young's Bay representative came out and found the first boat on another island with the gas line unattached.

Kuznia said he was asked to assist in the search for the missing man. Others assisting in the search included: Scott Barstad of the Red Lake County Sheriff's Office; Doug Qualley of the Polk County Sheriff's office; and Game Warden Al Hanson from Crookston.

Kuznia said the search team could not conduct a search Saturday because of poor conditions. Just 30-minutes into the search on Sunday, the body of the man was discovered by Kuznia.

Kuznia believes the boat the man was driving struck a dead-head and he fell out kicking off the gas line as he fell out. A large mark was found on the bottom of the boat that would correspond to a collision with a dead-head. In an experiment, they discovered that the boat could travel between 100 to 175 yards without the gas line on before it stopped. Because of that experiment they were able to limit the search area.

This was the second time this summer that Pennington County dive/rescue team assisted another county in a search.

Pennington County Sheriff Bob Wold said he is pleased with the performance of the team.

Lake of the Woods Sheriff's department later identified the drowning victim as 60-year-old Robert Hutton of Hinsdale, IL.

Recreation fees increase

Park and Recreation dept. user fee rates increase

As school and fall sports begin this fall many people will have their first contact with the new user fees developed by the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation committee.

Although the new rate structure went into effect last March, members of the Park and Recreation department don't want residents to be too shocked by the increase. New rate fees increased by as much as 50 per cent to off-set the loss of available state-aid dollars to the general fund.

When the flow of state-aid dollars to the city's general fund began to be cut off, funds were taken from all of the departments in order to maintain basic services. One of the departments hit hard by the loss of funds was parks and recreation.

Park and Recreation department director Mike Mongoven said rates in the city are still a good bargain in comparison to other cities. Mongoven said the committee was looking at implementing a rate increase prior to the cut in state-aid funds. The cut in funds just helped the committee make up its mind.

What most people will notice immediately is the two user system. This is the first time the city has differentiated between residents and non-residents. Mongoven said the different rate structures were developed in response to criticism that city residents were paying more than their fair share. Mongoven said that city residents are paying more in taxes for the services of the park and recreation department and that's why people have been complaining.

Mongoven said the rate structure has not been established to embarrass or discourage participation in local sports activities by non-residents. Mongoven said non-residents are definitely necessary to the programs.

Despite the fact that the rates

Si and Marge Hanson honored by Pennington SWCD

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Take a walk to see the troll family near the entrance to the Magical Forest. Touch a totem pole. Duck under the vines on the archway trellis and stroll down the walkway in the Swiss garden. Stroke one of the Arabian horses or spend a quiet moment at the meditation garden.

Si and Marge Hanson, their family and guests can do any or all of the above in just a few minutes or as long as they like on the Hanson farm located three miles east of Thief River Falls and one mile north.

In recognition of the Hansons' efforts to make their yard a place of beauty, the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation district has selected them as the 1991 farm beautification award winners.

Since Si and Marge bought the original 160-acre farm in 1945 from Si's uncle Henry Hanson, who homesteaded it in 1904, they have put forth a good deal of effort to keep it neat and orderly. Since they built their large, ranch-style house in 1975 they have expended additional effort to beautify the farmstead with plantings and items of personal interest.

Each year the previous year's plantings are expanded upon and the flowers become more varied and profuse. Rarely does a day go by in the summer when Marge doesn't spend a large part of the day working with her various flower beds.

The Hansons don't disagree about many things, but the number of flower gardens they have on the farm is one of them. Marge says they have seven gardens. Si points out the plantings nearly surrounding the house, the potted plants hanging everywhere, the other collections of flowers in the yard. They don't count in the tally, according to Marge.

'Nuff said.

The archway trellis which guards the entrance to the Swiss garden was built for the wedding of their daughter Linnae to Mark Enge. It has since been used by friends and relatives for other weddings over a number of years.

A concrete walkway leads from the archway through the center of the Swiss garden, which itself has ends and sides of concrete and timbers to contain the garden area. At the other end of the walkway is the Hanson's backyard patio where guests are often treated to a cup of coffee or glass of lemonade.

They have hosted tours by garden clubs, 4-H clubs, homemakers clubs, Trinity church's Golden Years organization and elementary school classes for a number of years.

Actually, if the truth be known, Si hadn't intended to be living on the farm at all. He had gone to California in about 1940 to make his career in the aircraft field and was employed by Douglas Aircraft, carrying a 1-A classification in the military draft. Then he received word he was needed back home to work on the farm, and he returned in the spring of 1942.

Need for food during America's war effort in World War II resulted in his getting a deferment from the Si and Marge Hanson are winners of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation district farmyard beautification award for 1991. They will be recognized next spring at the annual cooperators banquet.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a pink street length knit dress with pink chiffon pleated over dress and long accordion pleated chiffon sleeves accented by a beaded flower design at the shoulder. The groom's mother wore a street length baby blue satin dress embossed with blue floral design and three quarter length sleeves. Each had a corsage of red roses with white babies' breath, pearl strands, greenery and white ribbons. The father of the birde wore a dark navy blue pin stripe suit with pink shirt and floral satin matching tie. The groom's father wore a blue-gray pin stripe suit with white shirt and matching tie. Their boutonnieres were red roses, babies' breath and greenery.

Honored guests at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Matt Slominski, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Urbanowich, grandparents of the bride, and Fred Slominski and Sherlyn Leddige, godparents of the bride.

A reception and dance were held at the Golf club for the couple following the ceremony. Stacie Vagle, friend of the bride, presided over the guest book.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake with aqua mist roses and a Hallmark teddy bear bride and groom. The cake was cut by Marie Slominski, aunt of the bride, and Tiny Kraft, sister of the groom. Coffee was served by Doris Stoltman, aunt of the bride. Denise Lofberg and Jewel Holen, both friends of the bride, served punch.

Flowers were made by Marilyn Nygaard, cousin of the bride. At the gift table were Gordy and Coco Jensen, friends of the couple. Waitresses were Cassie Kraft and Chastity Kraft, both nieces of the groom. Pictures were taken by Sherlyn Leddige, godmother of the bride.

The couple is now at home in rural Thief River Falls. Both are employed by Kmart.

Dear Readers,
Most are familiar with the Bible verse, "Jesus Wept". This should make it evident to us that weeping is not a sign of weakness. When grief touches our lives, we need not apologize for our tears. To bottle them up is to do yourself harm. Let grief take its natural course, whether in the presence of friends, or in moments spent alone. Strong men can, and do, cry!
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

have risen significantly, the rates in Thief River Falls can still be considered a bargain when compared to rates in other cities, Mongoven said. Most communities have higher rates and most have shorter programs. The summer program in Thief River Falls, for example, is 10 weeks long as compared to six weeks as a general rule. The nonresident fee in East Grand Forks is double what a resident pays.

Some committee members, he said, wanted to raise rates so that they paid for the cost of the program. If that were the case, Mongoven said, he believes some sports activities would be discontinued because too few could pay for the cost of the program.

A sports activity usually means paying for coaches, janitors, heating and cooling, not to mention equipment. Providing an activity can be very expensive.

The rate increase will not pay for the cost of the programs, but it will help the department recover at least part of the cost, Mongoven said.

All options were on the floor before the rate increase was implemented. Mongoven said that if services were cut programs safety would be compromised."

Mongoven also pointed out that demand for sports have been increasing. Baseball was down this year, he said, but the majority of those players went into Babe Ruth. Other activities this summer showed increases, such as tennis and girl's softball.

Rates were last increased by a small amount in 1989. Prior to that a few rates were changed in 1987 and all were changed in 1983.

Mongoven summarized the findings of the committee: new rate increase was designed for fairness, to recover as much of the cost as possible, preserve safety measures, respond to increasing demand, and not cut anyone out of the program because of cost.

Despite the objectives, the committee has come under attack from non-residents.

"It's a hell of a bargain," said Darrell Bakke, park and recreation committee member. Bakke said he feels real comfortable with the new rate increases, but he has caught some flak about the non-resident fee. Bakke said they could have said the activities are for residents only, but he thinks that's a little harsh.

The largest difference between a resident and non-resident fee is $5. A chart comparing past rates and new rates appears in this issue of The Times.

Rick Nelson, another member of the park and recreation committee, said he hasn't heard a lot of complaints from non-residents. Nelson said after he explained the big picture to two non-residents, they understood the reasons for the increase. Nelson believes the rate increase was justified. He said he didn't want to cut out services to youth or adults. He wants everyone to participate and that means paying for the cost of these programs and activities.

"When you look at the rate increase and the loss in funds to the city (state aid cuts), you have to conclude that participants are getting a good deal whether they live in the city or not," Nelson said.

Speaking Of . . .

. . . School is Starting—Good or Bad?

In case you've been so busy this summer you haven't had time to notice, school starts in two weeks. Is this bad news or good news? It all depends on how you look at it.

If you are a mother who hasn't done any shopping for school clothes, I suppose it is bad news. However, look at it this way. By waiting until the last minute to buy clothes for the kids you will be able to take advantage of all the before-school sales that stores are having. You may have some trouble finding the right sizes, colors and styles for your children when you wait until the last minute, but you will certainly be able to get bargains. What does it matter if the clothes are a little too baggy, or a little too tight, funny colored, or not the brand names that the kids want? They are cheap!

If you are a teacher, it might be good news. Isn't it wonderful to get back into the classroom and do what you spent all those years in college preparing yourself to do? It will be especially good news for you if all your new students are perfectly-mannered, diligent, straight-A scholars, too, just like they are supposed to be.

If you are a teacher, it also might be bad news. Getting back to the classroom grind can be hard after those unstructured summer months. Then, too, all your new students might be ill-mannered, lazy, illiterate little creatures, just like they aren't supposed to be but often are.

If you are a school-age child or teen, I suppose it is also bad news for you. I'm sure you feel you haven't had enough time to enjoy the summer yet and it is 'way too early to go back to the classroom. However, look at it this way. Back-to-school time means getting lots of new clothes (that you should like unless your mother is one of those who waits until the last minute to buy your clothes and then ends up with the wrong sizes, colors and styles). Back-to-school time means seeing all those friends you haven't seen all summer, especially those of the opposite sex (and I'll bet they've gotten better looking over the summer, too). Back-to-school time means fun fall things like football games, homecoming, Saturday night dances, dates and pizza parties. And back-to-school time means not being bored with "nothing to do." There will be plenty for you to do once school starts!

Then again, for some mothers, the fact that school starts in two weeks is wonderful news. Actually, some mothers have been waiting for school to start for the past two months, ever since the first time their children said, "There's nothing to do! I'm Bored!"

You can bet these mothers tried to get their children interested in some summer activities. I'm sure they encouraged them to do fun summer things, like, "Take out the trash." "Go mow the lawn." "Weed the garden." "Get a job."

You can also bet that the children didn't do any of those things, unless they were threatened with dire consequences.

For some mothers, back-to-school time means that things will finally return to normal. Once more the house will stay clean, more or less; the refrigerator will have milk in it for more than one hour; the television set will be somewhat silent for long periods of time; there will be no more fishing poles, tennis rackets, golf clubs, and other sporting paraphernalia littering the corners; peace will prevail—at least until 3:00!

However, if you are the mother of a kindergartner, I suppose it is bad news. Mothers who are sending their little ones off to school for the first time have an especially hard time of it. In fact, it is very often the case that mothers are much more concerned about their children going off to school for the first time than the children are.

Yes, kindergarten-aged children definitely think the start of school is good news. They are usually ready and anxious to go to school. After all, they have been preparing for this for several years, watching older brothers and sisters traipse off to school every fall, watching them load up on pencils, paper and other neat things, watching them get outfitted in new school clothes, seeing them return home loaded down with interesting books and papers.

Considering all of the above reasons that the start of school could be bad news or good news, there is one more thing that might cause you to think September 3 was very bad news. That reason for considering it very bad news would be if you forgot that school started that day. Wouldn't that be the worst news of all?

Soupçon

By Sherry LaCoursiere

Summer should include all those garden goodies that are abundant this year. You can use that produce in today's recipes.

This tomato dish can make a special meal out of any main dish:

Broiled Tomatoes

4 medium tomatoes
butter
salt and pepper to taste basil
oregano

Remove tomato stems and cut tomatoes in half. Set oven to broil.

Dot each tomato half with 1/2 teaspoon butter, and season with salt, pepper, basil and oregano (fresh, if you have it).

Broil, cut side up, 3-5 inches from heat for 5 minutes, or until tops are golden brown.

Variation: Dot with butter, omit seasonings, broil 4-6 inches from heat for 5 minutes. Sprinkle cut side with 1/3 cup shredded Parmesan cheese and broil again (1-2 minutes) until cheese is melted.

Super Potato Bake

potatoes
Lipton onion soup mix melted butter or margarine

Scrub potatoes (do not peel). Quarter lengthwise. Sprinkle with soup mix and then drizzle with melted butter. Place in buttered baking dish and bake for 1 hour (or until tender) at 350 degrees.

A tasty way to serve that delicious, good-for-you, fresh broccoli:

Baked Broccoli

1 1/2 pounds fresh broccoli
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
2/3 cup (small, 5-ounce can) evaporated milk
1 small can mushrooms (or 1 cup fresh, sauted)
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can fried onion rings.

Place cleaned broccoli in casserole with no water and cover. Bake at 425 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Removed from oven and sprinkle with cheese.

While broccoli bakes, heat milk, mushrooms and soup in small pan. Pour over cheese-covered broccoli and top with onion rings.

Bake 15 minutes more, uncovered.

Make this taste-tempting relish now and have your home-made treat available for eating all year:

Cucumber-Carrot Relish

7 cups cucumbers, ground
5 cups carrots, ground
4 onions, ground
2 tablespoons salt
3 cups vinegar
5 cups sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 chopped sweet red pepper or pimento

Add 2 tablespoons salt to cucumber, carrots, and onions and let stand for two hours. Mix well.

Boil vinegar, sugar, mustard and celery seed. Add to ground mixture and boil 20 minutes. When nearly done, add 1 finely chopped sweet red pepper or pimento if desired. (Makes 16 half pints.)

Book on Minn. parks on sale

For the last several years, Roy Meyer of Mankato may have appeared bent on setting state park attendance records, rarely visiting fewer than 50 of Minnesota's 65 state parks in a given year. But his main pursuit was in the name of research — gathering first-hand information for his book "Everyone's Country Estate: A History of Minnesota's State Parks". The book was published this summer by the Minnesota Historical Society Press, while the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is in the midst of celebrating the centennial of the state park system.

The book contains a great deal of research on park history. The 354-page book tells the stories of the growth and development of more than 100 parks, monuments, waysides and trails that have been part of the park system.

The book sells for $34.95 in cloth cover and $19.95 in paperback and is available in bookstores, state park gift shops, and Minnesota Historical Society museum shops. The book also can be ordered by phone at 297-3243 from the Twin Cities area or toll free at 1-800-647-7827. Send pre-paid mail orders (include $1.50 for handling) to Minnesota Historical Society, Order Department 740, 690 Cedar St., St. Paul, MN 55101; Minnesota residents should add 6.5 per cent state sales tax.

LHS Teacher gets scholarship

Teacher Edward Duke from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls was awarded a $350 scholarship to attend Minnesota Business Venture this summer. More than 500 students and 160 teachers representing 150 Minnesota cities participated. Students and educators chose to attend a July 8-13 session at St. John's University or one of two sessions which ran from July 21-26 and July 28-August 2 at St. Olaf College.

Students and teachers were assigned to 12 member "companies" facilitated by 55 resident business leaders. These business leaders are on loan from companies throughout the state.

Minnesota Business Venture participants learn how to develop a business plan and discover the fundamentals of starting a business. Members of each company meet three times daily to discuss product marketing, review special events and make management decisions. Each company selects a product to market and establishes a two-year plan for product funding, production, marketing and research.

Over 100 speakers donated their time to present a variety of topics including entrepreneurship, competition and profits, ethics, philanthropy, the global marketplace, workforce readiness, cultural diversity and career development. Educators participated in special small group sessions as well as off-campus tours of local business operations.

Scholarship support for area participants was provided by Jostens Foundation. Over $200,000 was raised from businesses, financial institutions, foundations, service clubs, labor organizations and individuals to support the program.

All public and private high school students and educators of grades K-12 are eligible to participate in Minnesota Business Venture, and all participants are awarded $350 scholarships to attend. Students pay a $60 registration fee and teachers pay $35. Teachers may also earn graduate or continuing education credits.

No Unreasonable Searches and Seizures

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution addresses one of the indignities which aggravated English subjects in the New World. The following description of the Fourth Amendment is from "THE CONSTITUTION: The Words We Live By" printed in the Publishers' Auxiliary, official publication of the National Newspaper association:

No Unreasonable Searches and Seizures

The struggle against illegal searches and seizures had a long history. A 1591 English law authorized magistrates to question anyone they desired and to search all suspected places for papers of a threatening political character.

An anti-Catholic law of 1606 authorized searches in the "Howses and Lodgings of every Popishe Recusant" and the destruction of anything judged "unmeete for such Recusant....to have or own."

The efforts of one of England's most famous jurists, Sir Edward Coke, to win security for home and property were well known in America. In his famous Institutes, Coke cited the Magna Carta of 1215 as prohibiting illegal searches. Ironically, when Coke died, his house and chambers were ransacked on the orders of King Charles I.

John Wilkes, a member of Parliament, dealt a significant blow against illegal searches. Wilkes was arrested in 1763 on a general warrant. His home was raided and he was jailed in the Tower of London on a charge of seditious libel.

Wilkes charged the raiders with illegal trespass. A courageous Chief Justice found in favor of Wilkes and said that "to enter a man's house by virtue of a nameless warrant....is worse that the Spanish inquisition....." Wilkes was vindicated and returned to Parliament.

Wilkes was a hero to the American colonists who suffered abuses of search and seizure in their communities in the years before the Revolution. Crown authorities raided private homes and businesses looking for seditious documents, weapons, and smuggled goods. Under "writs of assistance," which were, in effect, general warrants, any suspicious item found during the searches could be used as evidence, even if the individual involved had not been charged with a crime.

At a 1772 meeting in Boston, colonists drafted a document called The Rights of the Colonists and a List of Infringements and Violations of Rights. This Boston Pamphlet listed rights considered fundamental, including protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Without this right, "Officers....break thro' the sacred rights of the Domicil, ransack men's houses, destroy their securities, carry off their property, and...commit the most horrid murders."

The Fourth Amendment has two parts: the first protects citizens against unreasonable searches and seizures; the second part defines the procedure for issuing a warrant. The Amendment specifies "unreasonable" searches to allow for occasions when reasonable search without a warrant is justified. For example, as courts have interpreted the Amendment, a police officer may, with certain exceptions, search a motor vehicle without a warrant.

However, in most instances where a person is merely suspected of a crime, a warrant to search for evidence is required. A judge or magistrate issues a warrant after police officers have demonstrated that there is "probable cause" to believe that a crime has been committed.

To protect individuals from illegal searches, the Supreme Court has ruled that evidence seized in violation of the Fourth Amendment may not be introduced as evidence in court. This is called the exclusionary rule and dates back to 1914 in federal jurisdictions and to 1961 for the states.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

How much "overkill" will the public stand for? Our noisy, self-appointed guardians of the public interest are off base when it comes to protecting the spotted owl in the northwestern part of the United States.

Why should we in the Midwest be concerned?

First, the price of lumber rose 30 per cent as soon as the spotted owl was placed on the endangered list by the environmental agency.

Second, 11.6 million acres of forests have been set aside as spotted owl habitat under an order issued by U.S. District Judge William Dwyer. This is as large as New Jersey, Massachusetts, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

Third, Senator Slade Gorton estimates a loss of 40,000 jobs in the Northwest, plus thousands of other service jobs. Even a study commissioned by Congress estimated a loss of as many as 38,000 jobs. How much suffering will this cause to people that it directly affects?

Fourth, some environmentalists believe that the spotted owl only breeds in old-stand timber. However, biologists have found them in second-growth and replanted forests as well. Of the 11.6 million acres of forest set aside, less than three million acres is old stand timber. Our irrational overconcern for the protection plan for the owl should be of concern to each and every citizen.

Fifth, why do so many people overlook the 3.5 million acres of old-growth forests already protected in parks and wilderness areas? Let's not use "overkill;" maybe we should write or call our senator or representative and express our views.

Sincerely,
Mervin Milsten

To The Editor:

As a seasonal worker for the Minnesota Department of Transportation, I would like to express my appreciation to all those citizens of our fair state who assist us in keeping our roadways free of unsightly trash. You are to be commended for your unselfish efforts in keeping our roadways among the most beautiful in the country.

Highway maintenance is a full-time job, and you (the people) free our crew to spend time in more productive endeavors. Our resources then can be devoted to repairing roadbeds, culverts and ditches. The end result is a safe, smooth and enjoyable motoring trip for all. We thank you.

Sincerely,
Larry Schultz and the highway maintenance crew, Crookston.

To The Editor:

Astounded, bewildered, insulted, disgusted! And that's putting it mildly! What in the world is becoming of the justice system in our fair city of Thief River Falls?

Recently a man was arrested and subsequently charged with three separate offenses. These were publicly reported as two counts of terroristic threats, criminal damage to property and attempted escape—serious offenses by most standards.

I know who this person is and have known him for more than 10 years. I also know this person was released from prison a short time ago and is presently on parole—for which any of the above offenses is a violation of parole.

Now is there anyone out there who can enlighten me as to why a district court judge would release a person of this nature on a P.R. (Personal Recognizance) bond? It's clear this person is a potential flight risk, and yet their was still no apparent request for a bond.

In conclusion, I might add that in my opinion this whole farce should be looked into by an outside agency. I say an outside agency so an impartial and fair decision can be made as to whether or not there are any legal system shenanigans going on.

To me this shows that the prosecutor and judge have their heads and minds "south of the border" rather than on their duties of being officers of the courts. Remember, people, we voted you in and we can also vote you out.

Sincerely,
Dwight Laughlin
Thief River Falls

Newspaper museum open at state fair

It was at the 1987 Minnesota state fair when the Minnesota Newspaper museum first opened and 200,000 visitors have walked through its doors since then.

Each day of the 1991 state fair the Maynard News, the museum newspaper, will be published through the assistance of some 125 volunteers who write, typeset, design, print and fold the newspaper distributed to visitors. Souvenir bookmarks and postcards are also available at the museum located in Heritage Square.

Equipment and newsroom furniture of the Maynard News were donated to the Minnesota Newspaper Museum in 1986 and the museum was designed inside and out to look like the original newspaper office in Maynard. Donors of the equipment and furniture were Kermit Swanson of Clara City, Andy Kahmann of Montevideo and John Neely from Granite Falls.

The museum now provides an entertaining education about the historic role and importance of Minnesota's community newspapers while it honors those who labor to produce them. It is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day of the state fair, August 22-September 2.

Stumpf on national committee

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf represented Minnesota on the Education and Job Training committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) recently.

As a member of the panel, Sen. Stumpf met with other state lawmakers from across the nation. They worked on strategies that states can use to better train people for the changing job market.

"This is just one way that NCSL meetings help solve problems," Sen. Stumpf said. "When you get state legislators together from all over the country, they have a chance to learn first hand how other states are finding solutions."

Lawmakers heard from several national political figures, including Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander who cited Minnesota as a national leader in education "Minnesota consistently ranks high in the quality of state government, "Sen. Stumpf said. "One reason is that we have done a good job of learning from other states at NCSL what works and what doesn't."

Stumpf also said his national committee work will help him in his legislative chairmanship in St. Paul. As chair of the higher education division of the Senate Finance committee, Sen. Stumpf has a role in determining how Minnesota funds job training programs at colleges and universities.

Crop Prices

"We are of the opinion that farmers will get good prices for their wheat this fall. Many are claiming that wheat will be worth $1.25 a bushel and are advising farmers to hold for that price. It looks to us as if wheat would be worth from 85 cents to $1.00 per bushel in this market. The foreign demand for our wheat will be large providing it can be bought at a reasonable price. We can hardly expect the famine districts of Europe to pay a fancy price for our grain. If they can buy it at a fair price they will take large quantities, but if the speculators raise the price too high they will be compelled to eat something else. It is possible that speculation may force wheat up over the dollar mark, but if it is done our advice to the farmer is to sell. We have raised the largest crop in years and will be able to supply a large deficiency. If, however, wheat falls below 80 cents in this market, we think it would be advisable for farmers to hold for higher prices."

City plans to use liquor reserves for planning study

Liquor store fund reserves will be used for a strategic planning study of the Central business district. Thief River Falls city council approved use of the fund reserves at its regular meeting Tuesday evening.

During the meeting, the council also referred a request to work with the county in filling dirt in part of the old sewage treatment plant building at Pioneer Village to the street and utilities committee and the city engineering director.

The liquor committee recommended to the council Tuesday that up to $15,000 of liquor store reserves be used for a strategic planning study. Community Development Director Don Stewart said the study will reduce the cost of an update of the Comprehensive Plan. Stewart said he cannot describe the process involved yet. It will be the intent of the study to get a block grant from the Minnesota department of trade and economic development.

Stewart said there seems to be "a very good possibility" that the city will get a grant. The block grant could be as much as $1.6 million.

Community support is important to getting that grant. Stewart said it is important to enlist the enthusiasm and support of the downtown merchants.

Donna Myhrer, director of Pioneer Village of the Pennington County Historical Society, requested the council to consider a proposal to fill with dirt, part of the old waste water treatment plant. Myhrer explained that she had been before the county board to make the same request but the board asked her to request the city to work with the county in solving the problem.

Part of the old waste water treatment plant is being used as the museum at Pioneer Village. Part of the building, however, is enclosed under a flat roof which is rotting away. Myhrer said since the gate at the village has been moved, she has noticed fewer signs of trespassers. Nevertheless there are still signs that people are getting into the village when they shouldn't be there. Once inside, she said, it doesn't take much effort to climb the grassy slope around part of the plant and jump onto the roof. Part of the roof is rotten and if a person fell through they could fall up to 25 feet to the floor of the room.

Myhrer said she considered removing the roof but someone could still fall. There is also a lot of metal trash in the pit. In addition, the Historical Society doesn't have much money for such projects. She believes it might be better to fill in the pit with fill and eventually put in a floor and another roof. Myhrer was asking for the assistance of the city in determining how to handle the problem.

The council has referred the matter to the street and utility committee and Ron Lindberg, city engineering and technical services director.

The council accepted the low bid of $281,331.67 at an interest rate of 6.4206 on $550,000 in improvement bonds from Norwest Investment Services. The bond sale was for the 1991 street and utility project. There were a total of six bids on the improvement bonds.

A proposal to implement a no parking zone on Arnold and on the south side of First street from Duluth to Arnold was referred back to the public safety committee. A letter from Police Chief Ken Froschheiser indicated that the public safety committee was recommending the zone near Lincoln high school be marked for no parking. In his letter, Froschheiser said the district will provide off-street parking for staff behind Lincoln this year and hope to have the area developed for parking next year. The school would like to have the no parking signs up prior to school start-up on September 3.

In other business, the council: approved a recommendation to purchase switch gear for the Sports Arena because it would save an estimated $8,300 per year; approved a request by Hartz Food Market to close one-half block of Horace avenue between Second and Third streets to celebrate a one-year anniversary on August 29; declared a Ford van formerly used by the city electrician as surplus property and sold; approved a request by Best Western for a beer garden and dance on their premises August 14 from 8 p.m. until midnight; accepted a quote of $12,968 to install two electronic fuel tank test monitors at the airport; approved a recommendation to write off $378.11 of uncollectible checks to bad debt expense; approved a request for beer in Oakland Park by Arctco for August 17 from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.; and approved a premise permit application for TRFAHA at Lon's restaurant.

draft. When the Selective Service system reviewed the Hanson farm, they found it had enough work being done to provide deferments for seven people — work being done by Si and his father.

The farm consisted of a section (640 acres) of land for crop production. About 3,000 to 5,000 turkeys were produced a year, 200 hogs raised and about 600 laying hens maintained in addition to a herd of about 40 milk cows.

The Hansons sold milk to homes and restaurants on a route in Thief River Falls as Hanson's Dairy, bottling their own milk and cream in glass bottles and making 100 to 110 sales and delivery calls each day. Eggs were also carried on the delivery truck, as well as potatoes in season.

The home farm was located just east of where Si and Marge live now and was operated after the war by Martin Hanson, Si's older brother. Martin also continued the farm's dairy herd, which is now operated by his son Mark.

Si and Marge Hanson's farm now totals about 1,000 acres in size, virtually all of which is open and used for crop production. They are joined in the farming operation by their son-in-law and daughter, Mark and Linnae Enge.

For many years Si has been a member of the Pennington County Crop Improvement association and has raised foundation, registered and certified seed. He was also an early producer of sunflowers, starting in 1964, and has been recognized for his work with that crop by the Sunflower Growers association. He raised registered Herefords for about 40 years, selling the herd in 1974.

Si married Marge Ofstedahl of the Plummer area in January of 1947 — "because," as Marge says, "he wasn't busy that day." She was born in Iowa, came to the Plummer area in the 1930s and graduated in 1944 from the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston. She worked for C. Gustafson and Son for two and a half years and later she and Si operated the state motor vehicle license bureau in Thief River Falls.

The Hansons have two children. Their son Ross and his wife, the former Janet Flom of Thief River Falls, live at Waconia and have three daughters—Berit, 11; Courtney, 9, and Mallory, 5. Ross is director of corporate quality for Fluoroware, a manufacturer of high technology handling products for the semiconductor and chemical-processing industries. Their daughter Linnae and husband Mark have three children—Aaron, 18; Amy, 16, and Casey, 9. Mark is employed by the Soo Line railroad.

Over the years the Hansons have been active in the community and organizations extending beyond the community. Si served for 11 years on the board of directors of Midland Cooperative, including one year following its merger with Land O'Lakes Cooperative.

He has been on the board of the Red River Valley Winter Shows, the reorganized Pennington County Fair association, Northern Minnesota Livestock association and served on the Silverton township board, rural school board and the Silverton Lutheran church board.

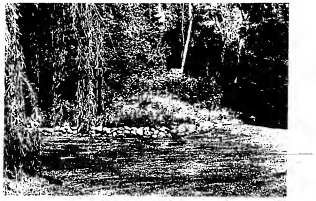
Both Si and Marge were active in the Silverton 4-H club as adult leaders and Marge has been involved in the homemakers club program, quilting clubs in Thief River Falls and Texas, Silverton and Trinity Lutheran churches. She is a past president of the Zehlian an group of the General Federation of Women's clubs and of the Thief River Falls chapter of Business and Professional Women (BPW).

While they spend much of their winters in Texas, Si and Marge take great delight in their home and farmstead of eight to 10 acres northeast of Thief River Falls. Their "livestock" now consists of "Liz" and "Jackson"—an Arabian mare and her son which Si drives as a team on a buggy and cutter.

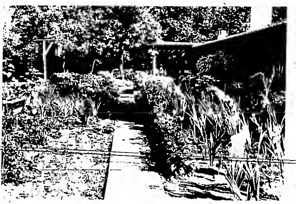
The Magical Forest is a network of paths in the trees northwest of the farm house, with various points of interest to children and visitors young at heart. Included is the Troll Hus, a cavity in a tree occupied by a Norwegian troll family; the "rac-squrl" tree (the only oak tree on the farm and named by grand-daughter Mallory who thinks it was planted, not by a raccoon or squirrel, but a rac-squrl); the chainsaw carved totem pole; the meditation garden and other sites occupied by ceramic figures.

Si says he wouldn't mind if people interested in the farm yard take a swing in the driveway and look around. "The plants and flowers are God's gift of beauty," he said, "and there are probably people who would like to see them." To reach the Hanson farm go east of Thief River Falls on highway 1 one mile past the range line road, north one mile to the Silverton church and west a quarter mile to the farm driveway.

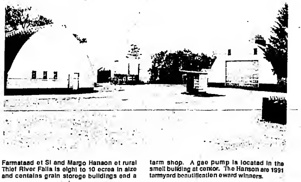
This view of the back yard of the Si and Marge Hanson farm northeast of Thief River Falls shows some of the profuse plantings which the Hansons maintain. The archway trellis at right has been used by a number of people for outdoor weddings, including the Hansons' own daughter Linnae for her wedding to Mark Enge.



Seasonal plantings are placed in this flower garden on the Si and Marge Hanson farm northeast of Thief River Falls. Selection of varieties is made to have some flowers blooming throughout the summer months. The garden has been in use for many years.



A concrete walkway leads from the archway trellis through the Swiss garden to the patio of the Si and Marge Hanson home northeast of Thief River Falls. The Hansons have been selected by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation district as farmyard beautification winners for 1991. They will be honored at the SWCD banquet in the spring.



Farmstead of Si and Marge Hanson at rural Thief River Falls is eight to 10 acres in size and contains grain storage buildings and a farm shop. A gas pump is located in the small building at center. The Hanson are 1991 farmyard beautification award winners.

Thief River Falls captains for the 1991 high school football season were selected by the Prowlers last week. Three seniors who were named to lead the Prowlers are, left to right, John Wallberg, Jason Kainz and Matt Kaushagen.

Football scrimmages/picnic supper is annual event...

Prowlers host Preview

An expanded field of teams and the traditional picnic-style supper will highlight the 19th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview Saturday at Prowler Field.

Ten teams will be on hand to take part in the controlled scrimmages for both varsity and junior varsity teams, with the host Prowlers being joined by Fargo Shanley, Grand Forks Red River, Grand Forks Central, Devils Lake, East Grand Forks, Warroad and three Winnipeg-area teams – Sturgeon Creek, Kelvin and Vo-Tech.

Junior varsity scrimmages start at 12-noon. Varsity scrimmages are scheduled to begin at 2 p.m.

The picnic supper, which includes roast pork, beans, corn-on-the-cob, ice cream and pop, will be served from 4 to 5:30 p.m. by members of the Sports Boosters Club.

Supper tickets, which can be purchased from members of the Thief River Falls football squad, or at the field Saturday, are priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students. Proceeds are used by the Sports Boosters to help support Thief River Falls activities.

Two scrimmages will be going on simultaneously at both ends of Prowler Field during each jamboree session throughout the day. Thief River Falls varsity will be matched with Central, Sturgeon Creek and Devils Lake. Thief River Falls junior varsity will be paired with Central, Kelvin and Warroad.

Thief River Falls opens its 1991 regular season schedule Thursday, Aug. 29, with a 7:30 p.m. Section 8A match-up with Park Rapids at Prowler Field. It'll be a three-game season-opening Section 8A homestand for the Prowlers, who will also host Detroit Lakes and Staples before going on the road for the first time with a nonconference game against first-time foe Belcourt, ND.

Beginning his seventh year as Thief River Falls head coach, Jeff Mumm thinks this might be the year the Prowlers finally turn the corner after 11 straight losing seasons. Although they often play top-caliber football teams on near-even terms, the Prowlers have finished above .500 just one in the past 16 years, including a 3-6 finish in 1990.

But a wealth of speed and plenty of potential could vault the Prowlers into the contender ranks in Section 8A in 1991.

"The top four section teams last year – Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Staples and Crookston – will probably be strong again, but I don't think there is a clear-cut favorite," said Mumm. "I think a realistic goal for us it a top-four finish. Anything after that would be a plus."

Top two Thief River Falls runningbacks return from a year ago, including senior fullback Kaushagen, who rushed for 956 yards last fall, and Marc Haugen, who netted 522 on the ground and caught nine passes for 190 yards.

Haugen will be used as a halfback, where his speed will be combined with track sprinters like senior Thane Espe and junior Kevin Johnson to provide the Prowlers with plenty of game-breaking potential. Junior letterman Jason Svir is the heir-apparent to Jerod Kolden, one of 17 seniors lost to graduation, at quarterback.

"We've got lots of speed and some very good athletes in the backfield," acknowledged Mumm.

But to utilize the backfield talent, the Prowlers will have to develop a line around returning starters Jason Kainz and John Wallberg, a pair of senior tackles. Seniors Tom Upham and Derek Howard have some experience at tight end, but there are holes to fill at center and at the guards.

The speed will be a Thief River Falls asset on defense as well as offense, pointed out Mumm. "Defensively, speed can cause all kinds of problems," he said. "I think we'll be fun to watch defensively. We'll put 11 good athletes on defense, and they'll all be around the ball."

Kaushagen, Kainz and Wallberg were recently named the 1991 Thief River Falls captains.

There are just six seniors out out for football this fall – Upham, Kaushagen, Espe, Howard, Kainz and Wallberg. Six others who lettered as juniors a year ago are not out for football this year. Other returning lettermen include juniors Aaron Broten, Josh Balmer, Brad Kragness, Rick Ostby, Lee Nieland, Barry Rhineberger, Svir and Haugen.

Others on the team are juniors Jeremy Olson, Trevor Haugen, Nathan Knutson, Carter Rogalla, Wade Evenson, Shane Skeim, Jason Niemi, Tony McEnelly, Bill Klopp, Darin Weleski, Eric Halbert, Robert Nelson, Jared Goldesberry, Adam Jacobson and Wade Grindeland; along with sophomores Preston Treat, Lee Lund, Mike Moreno, Jason Engen, Joby Looker, Eric Dahl, Brent Kleinvachter, Corey Olson, Brian Fogarty, Nick Trudeau, Bob Blumeke, Mark Sullivan, Jeff Cota, Tom Swantek, Jeff Lundgren, Jeff Twomey, Chris Tveitbakk, Justin Kempert, Cole Furuseth and Kyle Boman.

Thief River Falls junior varsity opens its schedule September 3 with a 5:15 p.m. game at East Grand Forks, and the Thief River Falls freshmen, who began practice Tuesday, will start play September 5 with a 5 p.m. game against Crookston at Prowler Field.

Mumm's coaching staff remains intact from a year ago: Glenn Chiodo, Tim Olson, Gary Laidley and Tracey Wensloff at the varsity/junior varsity level, along with Glen Peters and John Schmitz with the freshman program.

The Pepsi squad won out in a 44-team, double-elimination field by beating Cass Lake 13-0 and Lake George 5-3 Saturday, then adding Sunday wins over Bemidji Lake Sports 9-4, Lancaster Old Milwaukee 7-6 and Bemidji Gene's 5-4 in eight innings to reach the finals.

Lancaster Old Milwaukee came back from the loser's bracket to challenge Pepsi for the title, winning 12-6 to square the championship series at 1-1. But Pepsi jumped out to an 11-0 lead and coasted to an 11-6 victory in the title game.

Thief River Falls Invitational scheduled Thursday...

Tennis opens fall sports

First event on the 1991 Lincoln High School fall sports schedule will be the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational girls tennis tournament Thursday.

Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Moorhead will join the host Prowlers for the season opener, scheduled to get underway at 10 a.m. on courts at Northland Community College. Lincoln High School, Franklin Middle School and Engelstad Park.

"Right off the bat we'll get a picture where we fit in," said Jay Forney, who is beginning his third year as head coach of the Thief River Falls girls. Rick Engelstad will serve as his assistant.

Twenty-seven players in grades 6-12 reported for the start of practice August 12. Four others have indicated they would be joining the squad at a later date.

That group features seven 1990 letter winners – seniors Tarik Koivisto and Sara Tweet; junior Jennifer Paggen; sophomores Carly Dee, Kim Rupprecht and Jami Dehnert; along with freshman Jami Fremstad.

Rest of the roster includes senior Amy Padilla; sophomores Jennifer Duncan, Kari Krankkala, Kristen Lane, Jennifer Nicholson, Kelly Gould and Laura Toren; eighth graders Shari Evenson, Kiki Goddard, Angeline Gunstad, Miranda Johnson, Kate Nordin, Lisa Ostby, Anne Padilla, Becky Phillips, Andrea Vigen and Kamie Twomey; seventh graders Tiffany Brouse, Pauline Cullen, Kelly Natvik, Elizabeth Odette, Laura Steiger and Teresa Swanson; plus sixth grader Jessica Krankkala.

Koivisto will be the Prowlers' 1991 captain, with Tweet serving as assistant captain.

Paggen and Koivisto reached the Region 8AA tournament a year ago with top-four finishes in North Sub-Region 8AA singles or doubles.

Kim Maidment and Kim Myers were the only seniors on the 1990 squad that finished with a 7-6 dual meet record, but four others who lettered as juniors a year ago were not on hand for the start of the 1991 drills.

"We'll try to have some fun," said Forney. "We'll be as competitive as we can with the line-up we have. We'll find 13 or so who will make up our varsity, and it looks like we will have about seven of those spots to fill. Some of the young kids will play."

Including the season-opening the Sports Boosters Invitational, there are just three home appearances for the Prowlers this fall – Roseau-Bemidji and East Grand Forks-Park Rapids in double-duals/triangulars September 19 and September 26.

Pool Schedule

Franklin Middle School pool will be closed August 30-September 2.

Summer pool schedule will continue through August 29, with open swimming sessions held from 1:15-5 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 1 to 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Middle School

Thief River Falls seventh and eighth grade football players are asked to report to the Franklin Middle School gym to pick up equipment from 3 to 4:30 p.m. either Wednesday or Thursday.

Eligibility forms will be handed out at that time if you have not already picked them up. All forms must be taken care of before you can practice. Physicals are needed once every three years.

Boys, girls cross country...

Prowlers have young squads

A year ago Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer had nine senior boys on his high school cross country roster. This time around there is just one.

Only two senior girls are competing this fall. But that is still double the 1990 figure.

"We'll be young," admitted Dyer as he begins his 12th year as the Prowlers head coach. "We had a super class of seniors last year. They'll be tough to replace."

Thief River Falls boys and girls opened their 1991 preseason training August 12 with a week of aerobic exercises under the direction of Alicia Haviland. Running started Monday with Dyer, who will work with the high school-age runners at 6:30 each morning, while assistant coach Clark Hendrickson directs work-outs for the junior high/middle school-age runners at 10:30 a.m.

Joel Davis, a 1990 state meet qualifier, is the lone senior on the boys' roster. Matt Carlson, who lettered as a junior a year ago, is sidelined by a shoulder injury. One other 1990 junior letter winner did not report this year.

Rest of the early-season 1991 roster for the boys includes juniors Jim Olson and Hans Helgenset; sophomores Tyler Anderson, Jon Hendrickson and Travis Torbias; freshmen Brad Daniels, Stephen Lyman and Nick Dee; eighth grader Kyle Cedergren; and seventh grader Ryan Hendrickson.

Among the graduation losses were state meet qualifier Anthony Diaz, five-year letterman Bryan Cloutier and three-year letter winner Darrin Haagenson.

Senior Stephanie Vigen and eighth grader Leah Helgenset are the top girls returning. Helgenset was sixth at the Region 8AA meet as a seventh grader, just missing a state meet berth, and Vigen was 15th.

Jodi Kruta is the only other senior

Middle River/Marshall County Central football...

Rebels hope to improve

Middle River/Marshall County Central began its high school football cooperative in 1990, but the Rebels will be looking for their first win when 1991 season starts August 29 at Lake Park.

Last year's disappointing 0-8 showing proved that cooperative programs do not guarantee success. And this year's first-week turnout of 21 players show that cooperative programs do not insure large numbers, either.

A winless season has left plenty of room for improvement, and Rebels coach Eldon Sparby anticipates some progress in that department, despite losing top-notch performers like quarterback Mike Rokke and runningback Keith Boe to graduation. "We're hoping to pick up some wins," said Sparby, who served as head football coach at Middle River for 19 years before taking on the same job when the Skippers joined forces with the Nordics last fall.

"Last year we were strong in the backfield, but we didn't have a line," he explained. "This year we don't have the weapons in the backfield like last year, but we should be a lot stronger in the line."

The anticipated improvement in the line finds Troy Myhrer returning at center, with Dan Koehmstedt and Scott Horien supplying experience at guards, while Terry Helm and Gilbert (Butch) Olson are expected to do well at the tackles, said Sparby. Koehmstedt is a junior; the others are seniors. Horien has been slowed in the early drills while recovering from illness.

Juniors will probably fill most of the spots in the backfield, including John Sparby at quarterback, David Blazek at halfback and Tal Elseth at fullback. Senior Chad Bjorgaard is expected to join them at wingback.

"With our line, we hope to be able to run the ball," offered Sparby, who will shorten up the Rebels' passing game that was a long-range threat with Rokke running the offense.

Defensively, Blazek, Elseth, Koehmstedt, Bjorgaard and John Sparby all played a year ago, and senior Cory Harbott, who did not play football last year, could be a big help.

"It's a positive bunch of kids," noted Sparby. "They have good attitudes. I think we'll be fairly solid at all 11 positions, but we're thin. Because of our numbers, have no back-ups."

Rest of the first-week roster includes seniors Brian Maurstadt and Jared Boe; juniors Jeremy Tallum, Travis Knutson and Tim Olson; sophomores Scott Zak, Mike Skadsem, Aaron Skadsem and Dean Engen; along with freshmen Sheldon Ruud and Russell Larson.

The small number of freshmen and sophomores is a major concern for Sparby, who may have to cancel a junior varsity schedule because of the low turnout.

Jim Pederson, Bob Hapka and Kent Warne join Sparby on the Rebels' coaching staff.

Middle River/Marshall County Central will participate in a jamboree at Warren Saturday before opening the 1991 season Thursday, Aug. 29, with a nonconference game against Lake Park.

The Rebels will again join Warren, Red Lake Falls, Fosston and Ada in the North Half of the Valley Plains Conference this fall.

RLCC football is rebuilding in '91

Red Lake County Central enjoyed a 7-3 high school football season in 1990, but the Oklee/Plummer cooperative did it with a senior-dominated line-up, creating a rebuilding project for the 1991 Mustangs.

"We've got lots of holes to fill," admitted veteran head coach Gary Branti. "We've got good numbers. It's just a matter of working on drills and getting some experience."

Only starters back are seniors Jay Malwitz at tight end, Bernie DeHate at defensive tackle and Eric Kolstoe in the defensive secondary.

Key areas of concern, said Branti, are the tackles, and the Mustangs must find a quarterback. Seniors Dale Mossestad and Jason Nelson did the quarterbacking last year. There were also two sophomores at that position last fall, but neither one is out for football in 1991.

"We're pretty inexperienced up front," pointed out Brantl, "and we're searching for a quarterback. We might have a tough time scoring at first. We've got some seniors and juniors who have had some playing time, and we've got some sophomores with some good quickness. We'll just have to have some patience."

Kolstoe, along with juniors Jamie Hruby and Jacob Melby, will probably do a bulk of the ball carrying in the Mustangs' backfield, indicated Brantl.

"The kids are working hard. they have a good attitude," offered Brantl, who is being assisted by Rick Koivisto and Roger Benson.

A preseason jamboree outing a Oklee Saturday will kick off the 1991 season, with the Mustangs beginning their regular season schedule with a Friday, Aug. 30, nonconference game at Laporte before jumping into the eight-team North Tri-County Conference schedule.

out for the girls. A basketball/track standout, Kruta lettered as a cross country team manager last fall when she was sidelined by an injury.

Joining Vigen and Helgenset as returning letter winners for the girls are junior Allison Votava; sophomores April Klinker and Heather Thornton; freshman Jessica Bugge; plus eighth graders Angela Klinker and Lisa Swanson.

Rest of the girls reporting for the start of practice were freshman Nichole Torbias and seventh graders Kim Stenseth, Erika Altepeter, Lisa Vettleson and Rebecca Kenner.

Terri Efteland was the lone senior running for the Thief River Falls girls last year.

"Both the boys and girls varsity teams will be young this year," pointed out Dyer. "We've got some good young kids, but we don't want to push them."

Other students who might still be interested in running cross country this fall are welcome to join the Prowlers, said Dyer. Prospective runners are invited to contact the coaches or stop at the Lincoln High School activities office for the required forms.

Thief River Falls' 1991 cross country season opens at Roseau September 3. The Prowlers will host the annual Sports Boosters Invitational October 1 at the Thief River Golf Club, and a Franklin Middle School Invitational is planned September 23.

Wild Rice Season

Wild rice harvesting began statewide in Minnesota August 17, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced.

Conservation Officer Gerald McHugh, the DNR wild rice coordinator, noted that some wild rice beds would not be ripe when the season opened August 17. These rice beds may be posted closed by the local conservation officer at the primary access sites.

DNR Enforcement Division officials cautioned that only American Indian Band members or residents of Indian reservations who purchase special band permits may harvest wild rice within the boundaries of Indian reservations. McHugh said those who wish to harvest wild rice on Indian reservations should check with state or reservation conservation officers on regulations, which may vary from one Indian reservation to another.

Maple Lake Controversy

After a legal battle that lasted more than eight years, a Polk County resident has until September 15, 1991 to remove a road he constructed in the mid-1980's to an island in Maple Lake, located near Erskine in central Polk County.

Dennis Lindberg of rural Fertile purchased the lakeshore property in 1982. In 1983 Lindberg started building a road out to an island that was part of his property. The road building progressed in stages for approximately four years. Portions of the soft lake bed were dug out and several thousand cubic feet of earth and rock were filled in, above and below water level.

State law requires landowners or developers to apply for a permit from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Division of Waters before starting any construction work that will alter the course, current or cross section of any protected waters, below the ordinary high-water level (OHWL).

Lindberg did not apply for a permit, and a permit would not have been issued because administrative rules prohibit the building of private roads to islands. Despite repeated warnings by DNR hydrologists and two citations issued by DNR Conservation Officers, Lindberg continued building the road. Extensive excavation and filling in of the lake bed occurred.

The case see-sawed its way through the legal system for the

New migratory bird survey planned

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and state wildlife agencies are launching the first phase of a new program to obtain better information about doves, woodcock and other migratory game birds harvested each year by the nation's 5 million migratory bird hunters. The program is scheduled to begin in 1992 in five states and will include all migratory game bird hunters in the country by 1988.

"This program is essential to better manage our migratory game birds and preserve hunting opportunities for the future," said John Turner, director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Information about the birds harvested by hunters is one of the key elements wildlife biologists use to judge the status of bird populations and develop appropriate management programs and hunting regulations.

The new migratory bird harvest information program is similar to the waterfowl harvest surveys that have been conducted for many years, but will expand the program to obtain more information about non-waterfowl species and to correct problems that have arisen in contacting hunters to participate in the surveys.

Under the program, all migratory bird hunters will eventually be required to fill out a short name and address form. The Fish and Wildlife Service will use the names and addresses to contact a sample of hunters asking them to voluntarily provide information about their hunting success. The information reported will be anonymous and all names and addresses will be destroyed at the end of each annual survey.

Details of how the program will work in each state are still being worked out. The Fish and Wildlife Service will distribute the harvest information forms free to states, who may charge a small fee to cover their administrative costs and repay vendors for the cost of distributing the forms. The Fish and Wildlife Service will receive no money from the distribution of the survey forms. Some states may combine the survey form with a state licensing or permit requirement.

Hunters will be able to obtain the forms along with their state hunting license. Hunters will receive either a separate harvest information card, or an indication on their state license to show that they have filled out the form. The harvest information cards will be reciprocal among the states, just as duck stamps are, so that hunters will not have to obtain them again if they hunt in more than one state.

So far, five states – California, Minnesota, Missouri, Pennsylvania and South Dakota – have volunteered to participate in the first phase of the program, scheduled to begin in 1992. It is anticipated that migratory bird hunters in all states will be participating by 1998.

Changes in the national harvest survey were recommended in 1990 by the International Association of Fish and Wildlife agencies (an association of state territorial, provincial and federal wildlife agencies of the U.S., Canada and other western hemisphere countries) to address increasing problems with current harvest surveys.

National harvest survey is now based on names gathered through the sale of federal duck stamps to waterfowl hunters. A sample of hunters who purchase duck stamps also receive survey cards, which they are asked to return to the Fish and Wildlife Service. The FWS later contacts these hunters with a questionnaire about their hunting success. These hunters also are asked about hunting of non-waterfowl species such as woodcock, doves, snipe, rails, gallinules and band-tailed pigeons.

In the study of the current survey program, the FWS found that many hunters who were supposed to receive the survey cards with their duck stamp never did because the cards were not distributed by the post office or vendor. Many hunters who receive the voluntary questionnaires do not respond. About half of all migratory bird hunters do not hunt waterfowl and are not required to buy a duck stamp, so they cannot now be contacted to participate in the survey. The proposed survey program would solve these difficulties in obtaining essential harvest information.

Possibility of using harvest surveys conducted by the individual states to obtain the information has been studied, but it is difficult to reconcile reports from various states because of differences in license requirements, survey procedures and record-keeping.

"We have going to use the early stages of this effort to refine the survey and make it as streamlined and user-friendly to hunters as we can," Turner said. "Hunters, more than most people, understand the need for sound biological information on wildlife management. They are our eyes and ears in the field, and I know we can count on their support."

Waste-Tire Sentences

Two Beltrami County men, charged last January with several counts of illegally transporting waste tires and failing to deliver waste tires to a proper facility, were sentenced August 6 in 9th District Court by Judge P.R. Weddel. Michael James Gustafson, 34, and his brother, Gerald Raymond Gustafson, 31, each pleaded guilty to two counts of unauthorized transportation of waste tires in Beltrami County and one count each on the same charge in Clearwater County. The other counts were dismissed.

Fines and surcharges totaling $1,686 were levied against each defendant, along with 30-day jail terms. The court also ordered the defendants to pick up, within 60 days, an estimated 1,500 waste tires that they had illegally transported and dumped in Beltrami and Clearwater counties. The defendants were ordered to deliver the tires to a Clearwater County solid waste facility and pay the regular charge of $1 per tire for their proper disposal.

The pair also faced similar charges in Polk County, stemming from the same investigation. In those cases Michael Gustafson pleaded guilty to two of three counts and was given the choice of a $200 fine or serving 20 days in jail on each count. Gerald Gustafson pleaded guilty to all three counts in Polk County but no fines were imposed.

According to the Beltrami County Court Administrator, both men have elected to pay off the fines by doing community service work at a rate of $4 per hour. They have until December 1, 1992 to complete that portion of their sentence. Additional jail time, amounting to 180 days for each defendant, was stayed on condition that they fulfill the terms of the rest of their sentences.

According to the complaints filed against them, the Gustafsons used the name J & J Tire for their tire recycling business and accepted tires from several retailers in Bemidji, Bagley and Fosston. Whenever a tire dealer asked about their legal authorization, the Gustafsons supplied what turned out to be nonexistent identification numbers from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA), authorizing them to transport and process waste tires. They charged the dealers 75 cents per tire, about 50-cents to $1 less than the going rate charged by legitimate tire recyclers.

Charges were filed after a two-month investigation conducted by local Conservation Officers with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), in cooperation with the Minnesota PCA and law enforcement authorities in each county. On October 13, 1990, Conservation Officers followed up a report of recently-dumped tires in Beltrami County's Northern Township. The tires were traced back to the retailer who had paid the Gustafsons to haul them away. From there, officers continued their investigation and pieced together enough evidence to file charges in six other incidents.

In a separate incident that occurred on November 14, 1990, Gerald and Michael Gustafson picked up a load of tires from a Bemidji retailer. Law enforcement officers followed their vehicle out of town to an old railroad grade in Section five of Turtle River Township, where Michael Gustafson was apprehended. On December 6, 1990, he pleaded guilty to disposing of waste tires without a permit in that one incident.

Minnesota PCA records indicated a J & L Tire did exist at one time and had an authorized identification number. However, that identification number, and the authorization to transport waste tires, was cancelled in August of 1989, and PCA records indicated no other identification number on record for Michael or Gerald Gustafson, of J & L Tire.

WMA Dedication

A 24-acre Island in Blackduck Lake will become the Carmen Borgerding Memorial Wildlife Management Area (WMA) in ceremonies to be conducted August 24, beginning at 1 p.m. in Pinetree Park in the city of Blackduck.

Borgerding was a career environmental educator who worked for the Minnesota Environmental Education Board (MEEB) within the Minnesota Department Resources (DNR) for 10 years. In cooperation with schools and local organizations in east-central and southeast Minnesota, Borgerding developed curriculums and promoted environmental awareness among both young people and adults. She died in 1989.

Borgerding will be honored and remembered by three of her former collesgues including Katie Haws, DNR Regional Nongame Wildlife Specialist; Carrol Henderson, State Nongame Wildlife Supervisor; and Bob Bystrom, former regional environmental education coordinator.

The island was purchased by the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program in 1991 with a combination of Nongame and Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Program funds. Its status as an official Wildlife Management Area will preserve the island for wildlife habitat and help protect many nongame species that currently inhabit the area including red-necked grebes, several types of cavity-nesting waterfowl (nesting in hollow trees) and a resident pair of bald eagles.

next several years with land surveys, hearings before state Administrative Law Judges and subsequent reviews by the DNR Commissioner, a civil court case, and three orders to cease construction and/or restore the lake bed issued by former DNR Commissioner, Joe Alexander.

The dispute centered around two main issues—the official definition of the OHWL on Maple Lake, and the amount of fill that had been added up to June 4, 1985.

On that date Alexander issued an order in the case prohibiting Lindberg from doing any more work in the lake bed below the OHWL. The order allowed Lindberg to leave some of the fill material in the lake to a level even with the original lake bed, because it was determined at the time that removing the fill would further disturb the lake bed without providing commensurate environmental benefit. An official survey during this time placed the OHWL at 1173.0 feet above sea level. The OHWL of any body of water is usually defined as the highest level that has been maintained for a sufficient period of time to leave visible evidence on the landscape. The average seasonal level is usually lower than the OHWL.

Subsequent investigation and surveys by DNR hydrologists revealed that additional road building had occurred after June 4, 1985. In 1986, Lindberg was convicted of violating state protected waters statutes. A 30-day sentence to a Regional Treatment Center was stayed on the condition that he remove the fill and restore the property to a condition as it existed prior to June 4, 1985. Lindberg did not comply.

Another survey in 1987 resulted in another order to restore the lake bed. The order was issued December 6, 1989 and required restoration work to be completed by June 15, 1990. The restoration was not performed.

The case again came to a hearing before a state Administrative Law Judge on August 28, 1990. On March 13, 1991 Judge Phyllis A. Reha issued her findings of fact, conclusions and recommendation in which she upheld the state's position. That report was then reviewed by the new DNR Commissioner Rod Sando for a final decision.

On June 19, 1991, Sando, after reviewing the landowner's latest appeal, signed a legal statament of "Findings, Conclusions and Order" in which he upheld the findings and recommendations of Judge Rhea and ordered Lindberg to remove the fill and restore the lake bed below the ordinary high-water level by September 15, 1991. The order also required Lindberg to pay $1,218 for state inspection costs.

Only livestock on the Si and Marge Hanson farm now is these registered Arabian horses. The Hansons sold their registered Hereford beef herd in 1974 after Si had raised cattle for over 40 years. The horses are "Jackson" (left) and his mother "Liz." The horses' job is to keep down the plant growth in the pasture (which they do fairly well, and to pull a buggy and cutter, which they do a lot better. Si and Marge are winners of the farmyard beautification award from the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation district.

Ninth district judge replacement chosen

Governor Arne Carlson's Commission on Judicial Selection has announced the appointment of John Paul Smith to Minnesota's Ninth Judicial District trial court bench. The opening occurred upon the retirement of the Honorable Judge J.A. Harren on May 31, 1991.

"Our overriding priority in the appointments process has been, and will continue to be, competence. Our administration is committed to designating leaders that are efficient and accessible managers," Carlson said. "John Smith is focused on serving the needs of those in the Ninth District."

Smith is a partner with the Park Rapids firm of Smith, Hunter, and Valen practicing primarily in the area of civil litigation with extensive practice in criminal defense and family law. Smith received a Bush Mid-Career Leadership Fellowship in 1986 and has been on the Nevis School Board since 1987.

He is a member of the Minnesota, Hubbard County, Fifteenth District, and Georgia State Bar Associations, and the Minnesota Trial Lawyers Association. Smith also serves on the Minnesota Small Business Development Advisory Board and is certified as a Civil Trial Specialist by the Minnesota State Bar Association.

The Governor referred to the high quality of the applicants vying for the judicial opening. "I was delighted to name John Smith to the Ninth Judicial District Bench. The quality of the applicants was of the highest caliber, making the decision extremely difficult."

Others named as finalists by the commission were Douglas Wayne Cann of Bemidji, and John Randolph Leitner of McGregor.

After looking at the initial needs of the district, the Minnesota Supreme Court decided to relocate the chambers from Red Lake Falls in Red Lake County to the city of Walker in Cass County.

TRF library plans 90th anniversary celebration

In 1901, the gathering of a small collection of books for check-out marked the beginnings of public library service to residents of Thief River Falls. Ninety years later, library service here is comprised of both print and non-print formats. Materials available at the library include books, magazines, pamphlets, audiocassettes, videocassettes, computers and much more. In 1901, that small collection of books was all that was available to residents.

Ninety years later, your public library can obtain materials and information from a wide variety of public and specialized libraries throughout the United States to fill your needs. In 1901, area residents wrote their names on a sheet of paper to note they had taken books from the library. Ninety years later, a laser scanner attached to a mainframe computer electronically "reads" both borrower and book information so that the public can check out materials.

Many advances in library service in Thief River Falls have occurred in 90 years and the Thief River Falls public library board invites you to celebrate those changes with them during the week of September 29-October 5. A wide variety of activities have been planned at the library for all age groups.

Northwest Eye Clinic is a unique association of optometry and ophthalmology. It provides total eye care for the entire family. From advanced laser surgery to complete contemporary eye wear, doctors and staff of Northwest Eye Clinic are dedicated to quality eye care at a reasonable cost.

Magnet Arts school being planned for area

The Thief River Falls School District is one of six school districts in the state of Minnesota that has been awarded a grant to plan and implement a Magnet Arts school over the next two years.

Planning for the grant proposal began almost a year ago with local meetings to talk about the Magnet Arts school concept and what the district envisioned for the school to be like in Thief River Falls. After many meetings, hours of work to put the ideas into the grant form and personal interview by an evaluator, the letter came that Thief River Falls had been awarded a two year grant to plan and implement a model of an Arts school.

The school district and community members involved in the planning and interview process have been meeting following the announcement of the grant award to begin the planning process. This planning process will continue over the next year in anticipation of enrolling students in the Arts program by the fall of 1992.

The Arts program will involve approximately 25 to 30 11th and 12th grade students from Thief River Falls and the surrounding area. The program will include an individualized learning plan for each student. The learning plans will be created by the student, his/her parents and appropriate school personnel and serve as a "road map" for the student as he/she goes through the two year program.

The curriculum of the Arts school will be integrated, multiple subject areas will be included in the courses offered by the Arts school. A main focus of the educational experience a student receives will come from one of six art areas: literary arts, visual arts, music, drama, media arts and dance. Plans are underway to concentrate on two or three of these art areas as the Magnet Arts school begins and adds other art areas as the program matures and grows.

Another feature of the Arts school curriculum will be the focus on outcomes the students achieve rather than how long the student will be in a course. These outcomes are the skills that are essential to master in order for the student to move on to a higher level of skills.

The Arts school will be located at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls but will service all students in the area. Staff members and community members from Thief River Falls and this area will be utilized in the Magnet Arts school.

For more information about the Magnet Arts school please call Marie Hvidsten at 681-8677.

Reading to children help them to read

To excite children about reading, you need to read to them. Sharing books with children expands their imagination and develops their language skills. It brings you emotionally and physically closer to children and opens paths of communications. Try these simple tips when reading:

1) Select high-quality literature.

2) Select a book you enjoy. . . and have fun with it.

3) Use facial and body gestures.

4) Work with different pitches and levels of volume in a story to make it more exciting.

5) Include children by asking them questions as you read.

6) Most importantly, select books your child likes!

Types of do-it-yourself scanvenger hunts fun

Here's a way to entertain several youngsters at once and keep them busy at the same time: organize a nature scavenger hunt.

First, write up a short list of common items... 5 sticks, 4 pebbles, 3 pine cones, 2 acorns, 1 bird's feather.

Then give each participant a paper bag to fill with the treasures.

This exercise will cultivate patience and an eye for detail, plus it can reinforce counting, simple word recognition and an appreciation for beauty.

When the bags are filled, use the items for arts and crafts... paint the pine cones, glue together collages and string up mobiles.

The list can be adapted for older or younger children, and kids can be organized into pairs, teams, etc.

Back-to-school library pointers

Welcome back to school! Staff members at the Thief River Falls public library want students to know they are valued customers and want students to get what they want. So tell the staff members your needs and they will try to help all they can. To give you students a head-start, here are a few tips.

1. Before you visit the public library, make sure you've checked your school library for the information you need. The public library is not a substitute for your school library, but it is a great resource for additional information.

2. Bring all necessary materials to the library including pencil, pen, paper, assignment sheet, your library card and change for the photocopy machine.

3. Make sure you know exactly what your assignment is. Also be sure you know the date it is due and how much information you need. (For example, if you only need to do a one-page paper, you won't need to look up as much information as if you were doing a 10 page report.)

4. Start early. The more time you have to gather information, the better chance you'll have to get all the information you need. If you come in the day before your report is due, you may find all the books you need have already been checked out and that there is no time to get information from another library.

5. If you need assistance, ask the library assistants to help you. They are trained to locate information and they'll be happy to aid you. They won't write your paper for you, but they'll help you find what you need so you can write it.

6. The World Book Encyclopedia is not the only place you can find information. Use all the resources with information that are available in the library. That includes books, magazines, videocassettes, audiocassettes, computer software, and pamphlets. Plus, if you need information which is not available in the library, the public library can inter-library loan books and call for specific information from other libraries.

7. Once you've found your information, be sure to jot down where you found it, including the author, title, publisher, date, volume, and/or number and the pages used.

8. If you need a short answer--like how late the library is open, the definition of a word or whether the library has a particular book, call. Our number is 681-4325. If you need something that requires a little research, however, come to the library and we'll be happy to help you find it for yourself.

9. For your convenience, the Thief River Falls public library is open the following hours:

Mon.-Thurs. 9 a.m. - 8:30 p.m.
Friday 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Saturday 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Sunday (October-April) 1 - 5 p.m.

Helpful homework tips help students finish their work

How well your child does in school could depend, at least in part on what you do--and don't do--at home.

DO provide your child with a quiet place to do homework. Make sure there's enough light, sharpened pencils, paper, pens and any toher necessary equipment.

DON'T do the homework yourself. The assignment is designed to help your child learn. If you do it, he or she won't. You can check homework, however, and help correct mistakes.

DO encourage the school to supply the best educational materials. Many school systems are pleased to learn high quality computer and other related systems are available from European firms and U.S. based European companies at low prices thanks to America's policy of free trade.

Many parents are writing Congress asking legislators to keep this up for the sake of our children's education. Anyone can write Congress on either side of this or any issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Tips help prevent teen suicides

Dr. Cantor, an international authority on youth suicide, is president of The National Committee on Youth Suicide Prevention and a member of the faculty at Harvard Medical School, Department of Psychiatry.

Though the statistics are grim--5,000 young people take their lives each year--a message of hope can be found in a new educational film that helps adults prevent youth suicides. the film, "Young People In Crisis," shows who's at risk and how to recognize warning signs. These include a young person who has:

1) Made a suicide attempt or gesture.

2) Discussed or threatened suicide.

3) Made specific plans to commit suicide and has given away prized possessions.

4) Been preoccupied with death.

5) Known someone else who has committed suicide.

6) Become depressed. The depression may be rooted in such things as a divorce, a move, a new school, failure to get on a team, or romantic disappointments. It can even be masked by apparent cheerfulness or serenity.

7) Become isolated or withdrawn from family, friends or activities.

8) Taken to eating or sleeping too much or too little.

9) Unexplained fatigue.

10) Apathy.

11) Hostility.

12) Alcohol or drug abuse.

The film, produced with a grant from SmithKline Beckman Corporation, combines realistic dramatic sequences about young people in crisis, with facts for parents, teachers, counselors, health professionals, clergy and friends. It can be rented or purchased from The National committee on Youth Suicide Prevention or the American Association of Suicidology, Exar Communications, Inc., 267B McClean Avenue, Staten Island, New York, 10305.

Enrollment increases but housing is scarce

The technical college will see a 45 per cent increase of enrollment this year from last year.

"Even though the population of Thief River Falls is going down, we continue to grow," said Orley Gunderson, President of the technical college.

"We're attracting students from a wide part of the state and students are coming from all over. We have programs that are very popular," Gunderson said.

Although the enrollment of the school is increasing, the school is having problems finding housing for students.

The technical college has hired a full-time person just to find housing. "It's really frustrating because some apartment owners do not rent to students," Gunderson said. "We're hoping that in the upcoming school year the city will convince someone to build apartments and if not, we won't be able to grow."

The college is planning on building apartments on the school property, and a developer has already been chosen. The apartments will be higher priced because they will be new, but hopefully that will give people who are already living in apartments a chance to move into the new facility and will provide further vacancies for incoming students.

TC will make big changes in years to come

Several new programs, changes and improvements will be implemented into the Thief River Falls technical college this year and in years to come.

One of the biggest and most exciting for the technical college is the start of the new avionics program. The two year program which was started by the electronics and aviation staff.

Avionics is a combination of aviation and electronics and deals with electronics on aircraft. There is a demand for this very highly specialized occupation and there is only one other college in the area that teaches it.

"Students that enter this program have a very promising career ahead of them," Nick Bohach, aviation instructer said.

Ideas for the program came about years ago and plans are going well. The technical college got serious about the program after putting out a survey which got documentation that there was certainly a need for the program.

Twenty students will be starting the new program in the fall. Classes will be taken in conjunction with Northland Community college to fulfill an Associate of Arts degree.

Ron Konickson, electronics instructor said, "We're really optimistic, the need is there and many good challenging and high technology jobs with good pay are available. The outlook is good!"

New teachers for SD 564 introduced

School District 564 will have several new faces among the staff for the 1991-92 school year as well as some former faculty members in new positions or under full-year contracts.

Sandra Larson will be the new art teacher at Lincoln high school. She is a graduate of St. Cloud State University and succeeds Don Lerud who has retired.

Sharon Baron will teach math at the Area Learning Center where she held the same position for part of last year. She is a graduate of Bemidji State University.

Juneal Peterson is a graduate of Moorhead State University and will teach social at Franklin middle school as a half-time instructor.

Michael Collette will be the instructor for EBD/LD at Franklin middle school. He is a graduate of the University of North Dakota.

Regina Olson will be the part-time communications instructor at Franklin middle school where she held the position of part-time English/Spanish last year. She is a graduate of Bemidji State University.

Beverly Dekkers will be a part-time communications instructor at Franklin Middle school. She is a graduate of Dordt College in Sioux City Iowa.

Scott Brekke will be an elementary (long-term substitute). He is a graduate of the University of North Dakota. He will also be the head boys basketball coach at Lincoln high school. From 1988-91 he worked with the Strandquist public schools.

Marcy Mickelson will be a long-term substitute on the elementary level. She is a graduate of Bemidji State University. From 1981-86 she was an elelmentary teacher in Karlstad.

Mary Follett will be part-time Spanish/Art instructor at Franklin middle school. She is a graduate of Concordia College. From 1975-90 she was an art teacher at Middle River, 1986-90 Spanish teacher at Middle River, and 1986-89 Spanish teacher at Badger high school.

Robert Almquist will hold the position of part-time science teacher. He is a graduate of Moorhead State University. From February to May of 1988 he taught grade 6 social/reading and grade 8 math, April to June 1989 was EBD instructor, September 1989 to May 1990 taught grade 7 science and was an EBD instructor, September 1990 to May 1991 was EBD education assistant at Franklin middle school.

Bruce Novotny will be an Aviation Maintenance instructor at the technical college. He has his A&P license.

Dan Espeseth will be an Aviation Maintenance instructor at the technical college and is A&P certified.

Tech College in separate school district

During the 1991 legislative session, law was passed which required that every technical college be assigned to a technical college district, which means that the Thief River Falls technical college will be merged with other technical colleges in this area to form a district.

The college will be named to a district by December 15 in which there will be between nine to 15 colleges.

Six technical colleges have hired a consultant to do a study on the proposed merger.

There are more questions than concerns about the merger. Local and regional steering committees are advising colleges as to what the best scenario will be.

Some of the benefits will include improved conditions of employment, employment security, additional resources, administrative cost reductions and also that School District 564 will be dealing with the elementary and secondary schools only.

Volunteer program makes progress

A new program to the Thief River Falls schools is the new School Volunteer Program. The purpose of the program is to enrich and enhance the student's curriculum and to strengthen school-community relations.

Coordinator of the volunteer program, Carol Ihle, said that the program is going wonderfully, and that last year the support was great, and will be even better this year.

The volunteers have helped out at Knox, Mark Twain, Northrop and Washington and this year will start a volunteer program at Franklin middle school. By the 1992-93 school year the hope is to have a volunteer program at the high school level.

The intent of the district to utilize volunteers is to enhance the educational programs in the area. Volunteers go into the classroom on a weekly, monthly or occasional basis for as much time as needed to help teachers with arts and crafts, work with an individual child, listen to children read, help with special projects, do clerical work, help monitor the computer labs, be a guest speaker and do countless other things.

Many volunteers give several hours of their time each week, while others volunteer once or twice a year for special projects. Some volunteers even choose to work at home constructing educational games or bulletin boards and displays.

Each year an assessment is made by teachers to explain what their needs are. The volunteer coordinator then makes up assessments for parents to look at and decide where they would like to volunteer and how they would like to volunteer their time.

Everyone who cares about children and education is a potential volunteer, including parents, retired folks and other interested community members. Volunteers do not need to have prior teaching experience, only a desire to share their time and talent.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer for the 1991-92 school year is welcome to help out. Just call Carol Ihle at 681-8711 and become a volunteer today!

ECFE is for everyone

The Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education program (ECFE) is for parents and their children ages birth to kindergarten who live in the Thief River Falls school district. The program is funded through the Thief River Falls Community Education department. It is based on the recognition that learning begins at birth and the home is the first learning environment, thus making the parents a child's first and most important teacher.

ECFE is designed to provide parents with information, support, education and encouragement. ECFE does this by providing a variety of opportunities for families and their children including the following:

- Weekly parent/child educational sessions;
- Special sessions for single parents, teen parents, dads and more.
- A Family library with toys, books and video tapes;
- Family activities;
- A newsletter;
- A drop-in center at WIC clinics;
- Home visits.

ECFE fall quarter registration will begin September 4 with classes beginning the week of September 23. There will be an open house on Tuesday, September 10 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the ECFE center. Watch for more details coming out in the ECFE fall newsletter after Labor Day. For more information about any ECFE events please call 681-8670.

Vehicle fair to be held September 10

All children ages birth to kindergarten and their families are invited to a Vehicle Fair and Early Childhood Center open house. It will be held on Tuesday, September 10, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the ECFE center on Zeh and LaBree Avenue (School District Service Center Building).

This is an opportunity for parents and their children to see those vehicles that people find so fascinating. There will be a variety of vehicles in the lot for you to see including a police car, an ambulance, a farm tractor, a snowmobile and much more.

You may also visit the three sponsoring programs listed below, meet the staff and register for fall sessions at this time. There will also be face painting, balloons and refreshments available. Early intervention programs offered in Penn. county

Early intervention programs for young children with handicaps or "at risk" for such handicaps from birth to age five, and their families continue to be available in Pennington county.

Because early intervention has been found to be crucial in all phases of development when handicap or potential handicap is present, parents who suspect a developmental delay or disability are urged to seek a screening for their child by contacting the Inter-County Nursing Service office at 681-5950.

Symptoms and disabilities can include delayed motor skills, hearing or sight impairment, cerebral palsy, Downs Syndrome or any other suspected delay or handicap. Most basic motor, verbal, social and physical skills are developed by the age of two, so early assessment and individualized intervention can often make a dramatic difference.

The program begins with a screening and depending upon the needs of the child and family, may involve other services, such as speech and language therapy, early childhood special education, public health nursing services, or physical therapy.

The Early Intervention Program is a continuing effort by the local interagency early intervention committee and the Minnesota Departments of Health, Education and Human Services.

Contact the Early Intervention Program coordinator, Anita Cardinal at 681-5950, for further information on how to obtain a screening for your child, other services available, or on normal childhood development.

Would You Trust His Vision Care To Just Anyone?

Reading an eye chart is not a guarantee that your child possesses all the visual skills needed to see and read both clearly and comfortably. At the Falls Clinic Eye Care Department, our careful vision examination reflects our affiliation with a full service medical clinic. Our emphasis is on quality vision care. Don't send your child back to school this fall without the benefit of a complete professional vision examination.

The new facility behind Northland community college and the Technical College is Discovery Place on Campus, a new child care center for students with children. The center is not only open to students with children but also families in need of day care.

Discovery Place on NCC campus

Discovery Place on Campus is a child care center that is designed and planned for college students' children. It is located on the Northland community college campus in its own building.

Students who attend either Northland community college or the Thief River Falls technical college are given priority over other families when enrolling children in the program. Children can be enrolled for the hours that parents are in school, whether it is just for a class or two, or for the whole day.

The program has been set up to be flexible and to meet the needs of the parents and their children.

The program follows the calendar of the colleges and will open the first day of classes, September 4. The program will be closed when there are no classes scheduled. The center will open at 7:30 in the morning and close at 4:30 in the afternoon. If there is a need for child care after that time, students are to contact the center staff or Discovery Place. The center is committed to meet the child care needs of the college student!

The children will be involved in a number of activities that are appropriate for the age group. Breakfast and lunch are served daily.

The program has been in operation for one year, and the staff at Discovery Place on Campus is looking forward to the new year. If you are interested in a tour or for more information, call Mary Ann Hodge or Lori Huot at 681-5202.

DeCann named assistant NCC football coach

Jay DeCann was recently named as assistant football coach and an instructor in two activity courses in the health, physical education and recreation department at Northland community college for the 1991 fall quarter and football season. Jay replaces two-year assistant Guy Finstrom, who resigned earlier this summer to accept the defensive line coach and graduate assistant position at Livingston University located in Livingston, Alabama.

Head football coach Rick Nelson stated, "We're sure going to miss Coach Finstrom and what he has added to our program over the past two seasons while serving as a defensive line coach and strength coach for the Pioneer football team."

Jay DeCann comes to Northland community college from Mayville State University where he was a three-year starter on the offensive line for the Comets. During his senior year he was selected captain and was honorable mention all conference in the NDCAC for the state of North Dakota. After graduating from Mayville State, Jay served as the offensive line coach for the Comets during the 1990 football season when the Comets won the NDCAC conference football title with a 9 and 1 record.

Jay majored in physical education and health along with a minor in biology and coaching while attending Mayville State University. He is a native of Osakis, Minnesota and is looking forward to working with Coach Nelson and his staff at Northland community college for the 1991 season.

Nelson stated that he is very excited about the experience and background in offensive line play and strength training that Jay will bring to the staff and school during the 1991 football season. "He brings a lot of enthusiasm and a good work ethic to the Pioneer football program and school," said Nelson. The Pioneers begin football practice on Friday, August 23.

"Heading" back to school with new hair styles are these youngsters. Pictured above, Pam Puppo at far left had her hair done by Stylist Jodi Holt. Her hair was cut in an easy to care for flat top. It has also been colored with a dimensional technique in the chestnut and mahogany reds, which are popular colors for fall. Second from left is Jason Cota, who had his hair done by Stylist Lori Severson. Jason's hair was cut short on top with a short taper on the sides. The back is also a short layered cut. He styles it with a side part using Nexus Maxistyler. The spray gel is applied to damp hair then simply air dried. Pictured next to Jason is Matt LeMoine who had his hair done by Stylist Sue Lacina. Matt has a short tapered wedge cut. The sides and lower back have a very close taper, with the wedge neatly blending from the tapered areas. Matt applied Paul Mitchell Styling mousse to damp hair and lets it air dry. At the far right is Bethany Nelson, who had her hair done by Theresa. She has a spiral wrap perm. It's an easy wash and wear style for her. It is also a versatile look because it can be changed with hair accessories.

Northland community college Athletic Director, Rick Nelson, has announced the starting dates for preseason practice for the Northland community college fall athletic teams.

The football team will report at 8:30 a.m. on Friday, August 23. All players are reminded to have their physicals and insurance forms ready when they report to the college that day. Football practice will begin Saturday, August 25 at 8 a.m. and will continue with two practices each day until the start of school on Tuesday, September 3. The Pioneer football team opens its season in Pepsi Bowl '91 on Thursday, September 5, when they play host to the Moorhead State University JV Dragons with a 7 p.m. kickoff at Prowler Field.

The volleyball team will begin practice on Monday, August 26 under the direction of long-time coach Deb Jacobson, who will be returning after a one-year sabbatical leave from the volleyball program. Coach Jacobson is excited when looking to start the 1991 season after her year away gaining new knowledge and expertise in areas of volleyball and instruction to better enhance the program at Northland community college. Jacobson reminds all players to have their physicals taken and insurance data filled out prior to the start of practice on Monday, August 26.

The Pioneer volleyball team will open its season on Friday, September 13 when they host Rainy River community college in a 6 p.m. match in the gymnasium on the campus of Northland community college.

Nelson reminds all potential students who are interested in football or volleyball, as well as other activities at Northland community college, that students who attend either Northland or the Thief River Falls technical college are eligible to participate in intercollegiate athletics. All students have to meet the NJCAA eligibility requirements. If you have a question or concern, you can contact Rick Nelson at Northland community college by calling (218) 681-2181.

Hudson Hired as Nursing director

Director of College Relations

Following a national search, Janell Hudson was recently appointed Northland community college's Director of Nursing.

Hudson, originally from Viking, Minnesota, has lived in Thief River Falls the past five years.

Hudson has her Master's degree and a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing from the University of North Dakota.

Hudson has served as a clinical site instructor for Northland community college for the past five years and served as acting Nursing Director for one quarter.

Hudson was employed as a nursing supervisor at Northwest Medical Center for the past two years. Prior to that she was Director of Nursing Care at the Marshall county group home for five years. Hudson also worked as a staff nurse in an intensive care unit for eight years.

"We are very pleased to have Janell Hudson as the newest member of our administrative team. She brings a wealth of practical nursing expertise, along with classroom experience to this position. Her five years as an adjunct faculty member at Northland will certainly be an asset to her as she assumes the nursing directorship," said Dr. James Haviland, Provost at Northland community college.

Hudson says she is very committed to the nursing program at NCC and is excited to see that there continues to be growing interest among students to enter the nursing field.

Hudson is married to Kent Hudson, the Youth Pastor at the Evangelical Covenant church. They have two children, Erika, 9, and Andy, 7.

Alliss grants cover first course costs of tuition and books. You qualify for an alliss grant and the chance to begin your college education if:

1. You do not have a college degree.
2. You are a Minnesota resident.
3. You have been out of high school for at least seven years.
4. You enroll at NCC for the first time and have not enrolled in a post-secondary institution for the past seven years.

Contact the Northland community college financial aid office for the simple Alliss grant application and start earning college credits today.

Lefthanded advantages

If you have a child who's lefthanded, don't try to change him or her into a righthander. Being lefthanded may be an advantage! Did you know that year after year, the top scorers in the mathematics portion of the SAT are lefthanded males?

Not only that, but lefthanders make up a disproportionate 20 percent of MENSA, an organization for people with I.Q.s in the top one percent of the population. (Lefthanders make up 10 to 15 percent of the population.) In fact, both Albert Einstein and Thomas Edison were lefthanded.

These three unidentified photographs from the Pennington County Historical society show school scenes from the early part of the century in the Thief River Falls area. The top photo is apparently a group picture staged in front of the old Washington elementary school (at left) and old Lincoln high school (at right). It may have been taken in 1912. At the left is a photograph of some young men playing football near the First Street Bridge. The church in the background is the Presbyterian church in early Thief River Falls. The picture at the right is of an elementary classroom, possibly in Holt. None of these photos have been identified. What life was like on the first day of school in TRF history

by Amy Isaacson
Times Reporter

When kids think of going back to school, they don't have to worry about if they will have a teacher to instruct them or even a school building to hold all of the children. Years ago children actually had these type of things to consider before the school year began. It's amazing the changes that have occurred in the past 100 years.

1966—25 years ago

·Hot lunch was 20 cents, but the high school had raised its price to 25 cents per meal.

·The technical school started it's 17th year of operation.

·The new public library was open to the public, but due to numerous delays in furnishings, equipment and materials, the library was about five months behind its original schedule. The old Carnegie library was to be used by the Thief River Falls state junior college for a library and student lounge.

·For the "back to school" sale, denim slacks in the new "faded" look were on sale for $[illegible].98 at J.C. Penney.

·Enrollment was down at the schools because of the fact that more jobs were available for young people than in former years.

·In a September 4, 1941 issue of the Times it said about the replacement of a teacher because of military duty. "Possibility looms, however, that it may be necessary to find a successor to Glendon E. Alire, band instructor."

·A back-to-school sale at Montgomery Ward had "crisp fall dresses" on sale for 59 cents.

·For the men in the family, you could buy a sports coat for $1.49.

·Tickets for the movies were 20 cents and some favorite films were "Ziegfeld Girl" and "They Drive By Night".

1916-75 years ago

·First day enrollment of Lincoln high school was 290 students, an incredible increase of 58 students from 1915.

·Because of the lack of room space for children a ten room building was to be built. The Thief River Falls News-Press said: "The building will contain ten rooms and will be modern in every respect. It will be built with the idea in view that additional buildings will be required within the next few years, for it is realized that Thief River Falls is destined to be the largest city in the northwestern part of the state, and any building plan that is started should be consistent in caring for future needs."

·There were two small school buildings in Thief River Falls.

·At a meeting held August 4, 1891, Miss Helen Davis was hired for the grammar department and Miss Hellen Wallin for the primary department "providing she could get either a certificate or a permit from the county superintendent."

·Thief River Falls boasted of having two motels, three general stores one hardware store, one drug store, one machinery depot, one meat market, two blacksmith shops, one tin shop, two flour mills, one confectionery store, one barber shop, one saloon, one boot and shoe store, one livery stable, one law office, one land office, one newspaper and job printing office and two school houses."

Tips on finding sources to finance college offered

During the 1990-91 school year, $28.4 billion was available to students in higher education through a variety of financial aid packages. In fact, nearly 7 million students receive financial aid annually. The money is there but it takes planning to find the sources and initiative to tap them.

Federal programs

Federal aid comprised the largest single source, providing $18 billion last year. The government supplies financial aid through six basic programs: Pell Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG), Perkins loans, Stafford loans, Parent Loans for Undergraduate Students (PLUS)/Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS), and college workstudy.

Pell and SEOG grants are based on need, us are two low-cost government loans, Perkins and Stafford loans. Their rates are much lower than commercial loan's and payments can be spread over a decade.

PLUS/SLS loans can provide more cash if needed. Their rates are higher than Perkins or Stafford loans but still below commercial loan rates.

In college work-study (CWS) programs, underwritten by the government but managed by the college, students earn money while studying, usually at a part-time job for the college.

An array of sources

The remaining $10.4 billion in education aid came from a wide variety of sources. Hometown community chests, private companies and many unions and professional associations offer education benefits. Churches, charities and the schools themselves, also offer scholarships.

For more information on these programs, students should contact their local community chest organizations. The public library will have listings of companies, associations and unions that can be contacted directly. Also, every state has a higher education agency that can tell resident students what aid their state offers.

Branches of the military provided $1.5 billion in financial aid for education. The nation's largest source of college scholarships is the U.S. Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC). The program is a college elective course that provides leadership and management training valuable for both a military and a civilian career.

The ROTC pays $7,500 or 80 percent (whichever is higher) toward tuition annually, in return for military service after college. The scholarship also pays most on-campus and lab fees and offers a flat rate for textbooks and supplies. There is also a $100 monthly stipend students can use as they wish.

More than 3,000 ROTC scholarships are awarded each year to students at campuses across the U.S. Students must meet eligibility standards which include academic criteria and demonstration of involvement in extracurricular activities. Upon graduation, recipients are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Army. The commitment can be fulfilled full time in the Active Army, part time in the Army National Guard or the Army Reserve, or a combination of both.

Getting financial aid may be as easy as filling out one of six standardized financial aid forms, all based in part on the federal income tax return. Certain areas of these forms refer to the tax form by line number. In some cases, a student can apply to more than one college using the same form. The student should contact the college's financial aid office to find out which form to use.

However, there is no typical student and no single formula that accurately reflects everyone. That is why the financial aid director has the final say in the aid a student receives. Students should inform the financial aid office of any special circumstances they feel will affect their ability to pay for school.

Start early

Some aid packages are offered on a first come first served basis; applying early is crucial. It's best to apply as soon as possible after January 1 of the admission year.

Almost every student is eligible for some form of aid, but the only way to know for sure is to apply. Keith Jepsen, director of New York University's Office of Financial Aid advises, "When in doubt, fill it out."

Today, a college degree can cost $50,000 to $100,000, making it one of a family's most important investment decisions. The time invested now in researching sources of financial aid will pay dividends in the future.

Sources of aid and information

·U.S. Dept. of Education's The Student Guide: 1-800-4FED AID, for details on all federal programs mentioned in this article and the single best source of financial aid information.

·Peterson's College Money Handbook: 1-800 338-3282, a source book of other information guides.

·U.S. Army ROTC: 1-(800) USA-ROTC, for scholarship information.

·The college financial aid officer or high school's college guidance counselor.

·Check local listings for other charity, church or civic grassroots programs in your area.

How to make dorm rooms comfortable for students

Dormitory life presents many challenges that test each student's problem-solving skills. For starters, living in the limited space of a dorm room requires planning and organization. According to Tom Nevermann, a specialist in space planning and home organization, all you need are the right tools and a little bit of ingenuity to transform even the smallest cubicle into a comfortable, functional living space.

Generally, dorm rooms are small, with limited storage space. "To make the room functional," Nevermann says, "you'll need to follow two basic rules."

•Rule one: "Bring only what you'll really use, plus a few decorative items that reflect your personality." Remember that you'll collect new memorabilia at college so don't bring all of your "trophies" with you. Leave the encyclopedia set at home, too—you'll have the entire college library at your disposal. "Streamline when packing, so that everything you take along is worth the space it will occupy," advises Nevermann.

•Rule two: "Plan to use every inch of available space in your room." For example, In the space beneath the bed, store blankets, sheets and towels. Tuck books, CDs and tapes in stacking crates that can double as a bedside table, or as support columns for shelving. This new-and-improved twist to the old "Bricks and boards" setup will dramatically increase your storage space because even the support columns provide shelving. Tucker Housewares manufactures modular, stacking StorageMate™ crates that are available in several sizes and in the hottest new colors. They are sold in discount stores everywhere.

"Keeping the two basic rules in mind," says Nevermann, "will ensure success. The key is to keep as little 'stuff' as possible, while making the most of available space."

In addition, he recommends the following specific techniques for organizing dorm rooms:

•You'll fit much more into the closet by adding hooks on inside walls, and bins or crates on the floor. Also try stacking three Storage Mate crates at either end of the closet. Run a pole between them, and double the hanging space in your closet while adding six shelves for T-shirts, sweaters, shoes and more.

•If you have a tendency to sleep late, then rush to morning class in a jumble (as most college students do), simplify your morning routine. Organize bath and shower supplies in a small caddy. That way, you won't have to fumble around looking for shampoo or toothpaste.

•Finally, don't forget to organize your room, and your schedule, for study. Start with a cleared desktop, and store essential supplies within reach. Put non-essentials elsewhere, since clutter can be distracting. Tucker's StorageMate bins are available with casters, and can be rolled away beneath the desk, where they're out of sight, but accessible. They also can be used alongside your desk to hold file folders and notebooks.

To keep track of assignments you may want to borrow a tip from successful executives: post your class schedule, appointments, deadlines, exams and due dates on a wall or desk calendar, where they won't be forgotten. Planning ahead is an important key to success—and once you've written it all down, you're free to concentrate on having fun (until exam time rolls around, of course)!

Pointers for parents of stuttering child

If your child begins to stutter, don't panic.

Approximately 25 percent of all children go through some phase of stuttering, according to the Speech Foundation of America.

Jane Fraser, president of the non-profit organization, says stuttering is a common occurrence in many children, and it's a developmental stage that usually corrects itself.

However, the Speech Foundation, now celebrating its 40th anniversary, does point to several behaviors which could indicate a more serious problem in its book If Your Child Stutters: A Guide for Parents.

Some of the signals to watch for include: rapid repetition of sounds with tensing around the mouth, jaw or neck muscles, prolongation of sounds (like Mmmmommy) with a rise in pitch or loudness which may be accompanied by tension.

Fraser says that when these behaviors occur, the child may be moving into more serious disfluencies.

To obtain If Your Child Stutters: A Guide for Parents or for the name of a licensed speech-language pathologist in you area, call 1-800-992-9392, or write: Speech Foundation of America, P.O. Box 11749, Memphis, TN 38111.

New "3Rs" being taught in schools

This school year, parents, teachers and students will begin learning a new set of threes "Rs" for the '90s—reducing, recycling and reusing. But you don't need to wait until school begins to start an environmental education. Now is an excellent time to take steps that will help the earth survive into the year 2000 and beyond.

Here are a few back-to-school environmental essentials for students, teachers and parents to work on together.

•Don't pub a sack on it: Instead of stocking up on paper bags, use a lunch box or canvas bag—many come in contemporary colors and styles. And when packing your child's lunch, consider adding a beverage in a recyclable aluminum can or glass container, or use a thermos. To avoid throw-away plastic foam cups in the school cafeteria, give your child his or her own mug or glass.

•Reduce your paper trail: Americans consume an average of seven trees per person each year—that is about 1.5 billion trees a year. To same the trees, re-use scrap paper as note pad material. Or, buy recycled notebook and writing paper. If your store does not carry it, ask them to.

•Use good wood: Sadly, some U.S. pencils are made from jelutong, a type of wood found only in the endangered tropical rain forests. These special forests are home to three-fourths of all living creatures and are vital to help maintain the earth's climate control. Yet each year we are losing an area of tropical rain forest the size of New York state!

Purchase pencils such as Faber-Castell American Naturals, which are made of wood from sustained-yield cedar forests in California. These pencils also do not contain any lacquer or varnish or plastic filler. Your choice of American Naturals shows that you care about the environment.

•Educate the teachers: If your child's teacher isn't including a unit on the environment, ask him or her to do so. For a complete guide to low-cost teaching materials, you can order the Sierra Club's "Educator's Guide to Environmental Materials." Send $8 to the Sierra Club, Information Dept., 730 Polk Street, San Francisco, CA 94109.

•Teach your children well: It's important for children to know that they can make a difference and it is up to parents to show them how. Whether it's a recycling program at home or school, turning the water off when brushing teeth, or not using plastic foam containers, parents set an example. For instance, when shopping for school supplies, parents should take special care to look for products with environmentally friendly seals on them.

It has been said that ours is the last generation with the resources and time to save the earth, so it's up to all of us, young and old, to do our part to ensure the future of the earth.

For more information, see 50 Things Kids Can Do to Save the Earth, published by Earth Works Group, Berkeley, CA., in you local book store. There's also an environmental magazine for children, P-3, available by writing to P-3, P.O. Box 52, Montgomery, VT 05470.

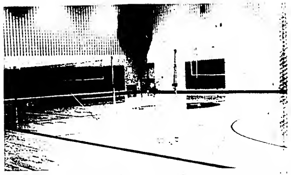
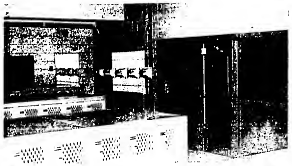
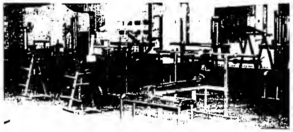
Four counselor offices are in this addition to Lincoln high school. Bill Stock is shown "counseling" Glenn Chiodo in the front and main office of the new addition.



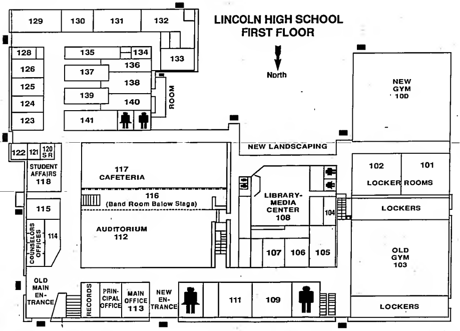
The new gymnasium in Lincoln high school is used for practice and phy-ed classes and is constructed with special occoustical materials, which help minimize sound.

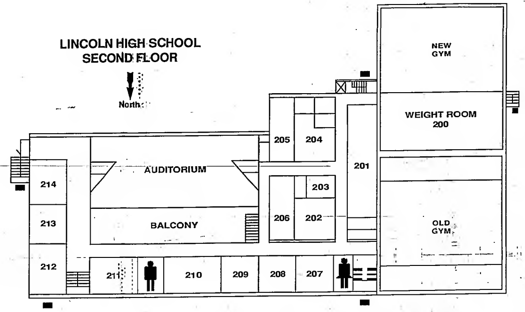


Boys and girls locker rooms were added to the new high school during the year-long addition process. The boys and girls locker rooms are across the hall from the new gym.



The weight room is used for classroom use, athletes, and for anyone who chooses to lift weights before and after school. Wrestling mats are also placed in this room for practice.





Lincoln offers its students activities beyond athletics

by Amy Isaacson
Times Reporter

If you're not a person who likes to stay after school to play sports, but you enjoy extra-curricular activities, there are things for you to do, according to Bill Stock, a counselor at Lincoln high school.

There are advantages to taking part in these activities. There are no participation fees, and the opportunities are endless, and many of the activities deal with community service and leadership skills.

Annual Staff - (Otherwise known as yearbook staff) is for people with a creative mind, willing to produce a quality yearbook. Staff members take photos, write stories and put together the yearbook.

Class Officers - Every year each class holds elections for a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. These four people are involved in making decisions in class activities.

DECA - Distributive Education Clubs of America is open to students in these classes.

Drama Club - This is for anyone who is interested in any aspect of theatre for fun and learning experiences.

Fall/Spring play - Try-outs are held each season, and the play usually consist of three acts.

German Club - Students who are enrolled in German courses are welcome to join in occasional meetings and fun dealing with Germany.

HOSA - Health Occupation Student Association is a medical career club which competes with other schools in the health occupation field. Persons enrolled in the Medical Careers class are welcome to join this club.

Key Club - This is affiliated with Kiwanis and is a service organization for serving the community in any capacity.

Knowledge Bowl - A group that plays a modified "Trivial Pursuit" with other schools, dealing with materials that are covered in the high school curriculum.

Library Club - Anyone interested in maintaining the library may join this club. An annual field trip is taken in the spring as well as awards for the services performed.

Lighting Club - Students who operate the stage and auditorium lights for all auditorium productions.

Mock Trial - Open to juniors and seniors, this is a competition between area schools. All schools do the same case with lawyers and witnesses and is even rated by a real judge.

Photo Club - Anyone is welcome to join and learn about cameras, film development and print development. Several field trips are taken during the year.

Project 4 Teens - These are students who make a personal commitment to not use drugs or alcohol and promote that lifestyle in school and community.

SADD - Open to students interested in preventing drinking and driving.

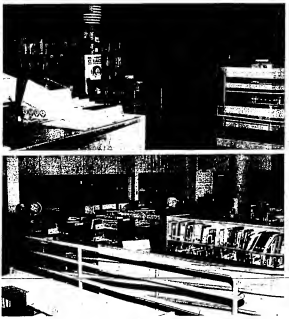
Speech - Anyone interested in competitive speech activities may join.

Student Senate - Each year representatives are elected to represent the entire student body.

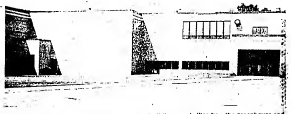
Ushers - This is now open to both boys and girls. Ushers help during all Lincoln auditorium productions throughout the year.

VICA - Vocational Industrial Clubs of America is open to students in vocational education classes.

World Language - This is a combination of German and Spanish club. Each year an International Week is held and many festivities are planned.

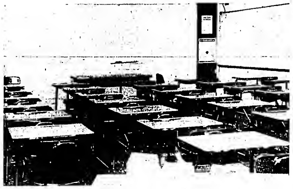


The media center in the new addition to Lincoln high school has private rooms for students and also allows students to use audio and video tapes to be used in the classroom.



A south entrance and landscaping was added to the new high school. On the top of the building are skylites from the greenhouse and to the left of the entrance is the media center.

The new and old entrances to the high school are shown here. The new entrance is not actually an entrance because it can only be used as an exit in the case of an emergency.



One of the many remodeling projects to the old school is this English room which used to be a science room. The cost of the remodeling to the old school was about $800,000.

The interactive television room is where students are able to take classes not offered in Lincoln, but are available through this new facility.

The lecture area and the lab area are separated in the biology room. In the upper-right is the greenhouse and private student and instructor labs are to the right of that.

Changes made at LHS

Lincoln high school has seen a number of changes in the past year. Some of those changes include new science facilities, media center, physical education facilities, renovations to the old school, landscaping and new offices. The $3.5 million project began in May of 1989 and was completed for the 1990-91 school year. Along with the addition came completion of an $800,000 project that involved extensive remodeling of old science rooms, the old library and changes to other areas.

A new exit from the school was also included in the project and other improvements such as an extension to the cafeteria to seat approximately 50 more students. Acoustical tile, carpeting and lighting were installed in the the band and choir rooms.

The remodeling also enabled the business education program to return to Lincoln from the school district service center.

The addition of the new science facilities not only provides a safe environment for student instruction but improves the overall quality of activity in science. With additional space, students are allowed to conduct individual lab experiments and are able to do classroom experiments that were not possible in the old facilities.

The media center addition allowed an increase in the size of the book collection. The new facilities allow for both student and teacher-prepared materials such as slides, audio tapes and video tapes to be used in instruction.

The telecommunications facility allows Lincoln to offer classes that were not in the curriculum by sharing instruction with the University of North Dakota, technical institutes in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Curricular offerings are also shared with neighboring high schools throughout the region. Additional space also allows for introduction of technologies such as microfiche and computer utilization.

The addition of the physical education stations greatly reduce the overcrowding conditions in the old gymnasium.

Additional physical education courses are now offered on an elective basis to 11th and 12th graders and the district does not have to rely on transportation to external sites from the Lincoln building to provide physical education experiences.

Shown on this page are some of the new facilities and also some of the remodeling done to the high school in the past year.

Head Lice appears among students returning to school

A local hairstylist in Thief River Falls has reported incidents of customers with head lice. As school starts soon, the following story on head lice was released. It was prepared by the Minnesota Department of Health.

The head louse is one of three types of lice that infest people. Head lice are tiny insects (about 1/10 to 1/8 of an inch long) that make their home in human hair and feed on human blood. They multiply rapidly, laying little silvery-colored oval shaped eggs (called nits) which they glue to the base of the hair close to the scalp.

Although it's hard to see head lice, you can see the nits if you look closely. They are most often found in the hair behind the ears and at the back of the head and neck. Nits should not be confused with dandruff. Dandruff can be easily flicked off the hair; nits cannot because they are firmly attached to individual hairs.

Anyone can get head lice. They are not a sign of being dirty. Most people don't know they have lice until they see them. One telltale sign of head lice is a persistent itching of the scalp which is sometimes accompanied by infected scratch marks or what appears to be a rash.

Head lice have no wings and do not fly or jump, but they spread quickly. You can "catch" head lice through:

1) direct contact with an infested person or stray hairs that have nits;

2) personal items such as combs, brushes, other hair-care items, towels, and pillow cases which are shared;

3) clothing, headgear (hats, scarves, football helmets), ribbons and other head coverings which are shared.

Shared school lockers and unassigned wall hooks for coats have been associated with higher rates of infestation than individual lockers and assigned coat hooks.

If you have questions concerning diagnosis and treatment of head lice, call your doctor. The recommended treatment is shampooing with either a prescription or nonprescription medicated shampoo and repeating this treatment one week later. The lice are killed with one treatment; however, some nits may survive the first treatment but will be killed during the second.

Dead nits do not fall off the hair after treatment. Because they are strongly cemented on, they are often difficult to remove. A clean fine-toothed comb may help to remove nits after shampooing. Nits remaining in the hair after treatment should not be confused with live nits. Head lice lay their eggs very close to the scalp and they hatch before the hair grows more than one-fourth inch. Nits found any farther along on the hair shaft than one-half inch will have already hatched and been killed during treatment.

Head lice can survive off the human body for two or three days. Any nits which fall off the head will not hatch. To keep head lice from returning you should:

1) Wash bedding in hot water (above 150 degrees Fahrenheit) and dry in a hot dryer or iron with a hot iron. Wash and dry recently worn clothing (including coats, caps and scarves) in hot temperatures. Clothing or bedding that cannot be washed may be dry cleaned or sealed in a double plastic bag for two weeks.

2) Disinfect combs, brushes, and similar items by: soaking in the medicated shampoo for four minutes or, soaking in a two per cent Lysol solution for one hour; or boiling in water for 10 minutes.

3) Clean floors, furniture and carpeting by thorough vacuuming only. The use of insecticide sprays is not recommended.

Remember, if one person in a family, camp, or school has head lice, there's a good chance others will too. Check everyone and use the same treatment if necessary.

The Minnesota Department of Health makes the following recommendations to schools concerning head lice:

— Infested children should be dismissed from school until the first shampoo treatment is completed.

— parents of children in a classroom where head lice have been found should be informed and asked to check for possible lice in their children's hair.

— School districts should make their own recommendations on "head checks" after the first case is identified.

International business careers a big plus

When Suzanne Brack was applying for a job in the international marketing division of a British-based bank, she had one distinct advantage. As a junior at New Jersey's Ramapo College, Brack spent six months in Sheffield, England as an intern for a marketing consulting firm.

"Having international experience was definitely a big plus when I was looking for a job," says Brack, who is now an assistant account executive in the New York office of Lloyds Bank, PLC. "I learned to work with people from other cultures and apply my business skills in an international market."

Due to a shaky economy, this year's college seniors will find the job market tougher than ever. Having an international edge may make all the difference in the world. With the unification of the European Economic Community in 1992 and the expansion of American businesses to other overseas markets, employees will need to work with people from other cultures and answer the needs of foreign markets. Colleges and universities across the country are preparing students to work in this increasingly international milieu.

"Adaptability, flexibility, and the ability to learn foreign customs and overcome your own cultural norms are some of the keys to succeeding in an international career," says Mark Peterson, a marketing instructor at Buena Vista College in Storm Lake, Iowa. Business students at Buena Vista are as likely to study mergers and acquisitions in Germany as they are to study them in the U.S. They also gain exposure to different cultures through a special on-campus Academic and Cultural Events Series and are encouraged to travel and study abroad.

Not surprisingly, language training is also important for careers requiring travel or cross-cultural communication. "Employers like to see strong grounding in business and economics with a focus on disciplines such as marketing, management or accounting tied in with advanced language study and cultural preparation," says David Green, director of the International Business Program in France at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minnesota.

Concordia students participating in the program spend a semester studying at a graduate-level business program at the University of Rennes followed by three months interning for a major French company, or for the French office of a large American firm. The College offers similar programs in Mexico and Germany and runs the unique Concordia Institute of German Studies, which offers college students a chance to earn a complete German minor in four months, or a major in eight.

"Companies really appreciate the initiative and motivation students show when they study and work abroad; those are the kind of characteristics they're looking for," notes Green.

Another resume builder for international careers is the Peace Corps. In addition to living in a foreign country, volunteers gain the kind of independence, responsibility and practical experience employers like to see. A solid background in the liberal arts is also crucial to success in the international business arena.

New method of algebra being taught

A new algebra curriculum may change the way the subject is taught in schools nationwide by the turn of the century. Dr. M. Kathleen Heid, Penn State associate professor of education, and Dr. James T. Fey, University of Maryland professor of mathematics, have collaborated for six years to develop an innovative computer-based algebra curriculum for junior high school students.

"Most students learning algebra the way it's currently taught will probably forget it not long after the course is over, or never use what they will remember," Heid notes. "But unlike present algebra courses, this course teaches and encourages students to notice algebra in their daily lives and remember how to use it.

"In essence, the course promotes the use of computers in order to allow the student to concentrate on solving real-life problems, instead of concentrating on how to hand-manipulate symbols to solve equations," says the Penn State researcher.

Helpful tips for parent/ teacher communication

Monitoring a child's success at school is a top priority for many parents. But, when that eventful parent/teacher meeting presents itself, some parents may feel a bit nervous or apprehensive.

In "Tips on Communicating With Your Child's Teacher," a new brochure created by Little Caesars Pizza--with the assistance of teaching experts--parents are presented with helpful information on how to best establish a working relationship with their child's teacher.

The brochure outlines:

1) good student/teacher/parent communication skills,

2) tips on meeting with teachers,

3) effective homework monitoring,

4) attendance procedures,

5) how to handle disciplinary situations, and

6) dealing with grade problems.

"By creating a good rapport with your child's teacher, a parent establishes an open line of communication between home and school," said Lisa Ilitch Murray, vice president of Corporate Communications and National Training for Little Caesar Enterprises, Inc. "That understanding can create the best learning environment for children of all ages."

The brochure stresses that teachers need to know that parents are interested in their child's education, and that parents should realize that teachers welcome parent participation on many levels.

Some tips that parents should keep in mind when meeting with a teacher include:

1) Remain open-minded, but be objective.

2) Relax! Remember, the teacher has the child's best interests in mind.

3) Prepare questions for the teacher before the visit. Take notes, if needed, for reference.

4) Become an involved parent-volunteer, chaperone, join the parent/teacher group, be a tutor or mentor.

5) Determine if your child should be present during a parent/teacher conference.

6) Make arrangements in advance to observe your child in the classroom.

7) A parent is a child's best advocate-be positive, be informed, and be involved!

The brochure's 'Working Together' section shows parents methods for understanding disciplinary problems their children may encounter. Areas include obtaining facts from their child and the teacher, to offering alternatives to help remedy the problem.

And, in the area of homework and special tutoring, parents can learn how to work with their child's teacher or counselor to prepare daily or weekly progress reports to help ensure improvements.

Loafing can be good

If you're a very active person, it might be a good idea to learn the art of loafing. Psychologists say that even a few minutes a day of doing nothing may help you tackle your work with renewed enthusiasm. A refreshing cup of hot tea may be just the right accompaniment for this type of break. By slowing down just a bit, you'll be surprised how you'll suddenly find the time to more fully enjoy your family relationships.

Back-to-school in TRF means back-to-family

As summer draws to a close, you and your child can look forward to making great times together by bringing the back-to-school experience home.

According to psychologists, back-to-school time is a perfect time for families to strengthen their bonds and for parents to nurture a love of learning in their children. Many current research studies show that when parents are involved with educational activities in the home, their children's school achievement scores are higher.

"Learning shouldn't end at three o'clock," says Dr. Linda Alberg, child psychologist, former professor and author of many books for parents and teachers. "Teachers can't always give students individual attention, but families can. When parents or older siblings help a child with homework or other learning activities, the child understands more, remembers more and has a more positive attitude toward education."

Experts say you shouldn't shy away from the idea of studying with your child. People like First Lady Barbara Bush strongly support family reading and other educational projects at home. Here are a few simple steps recommended by Faber-Castell, the most trusted name in quality school and craft supplies, to get you started.

• Adopt a positive attitude. Your child will sense if you are bored or uneasy, so relax and get comfortable. Find something in the subject matter to interest you, and don't worry if you are not an expert in the field you are studying. Learning and working right along with your child, rather than being just a spectator, is your goal. It's important for both of you to have fun.

• Plan a regular routine. Get in the habit of learning together on a regular basis. Add some structure to your learning schedule by making one or two nights a week "family learning night." Soon you will both be looking forward to these sessions.

• Find a suitable location. You'll want a place to work that is well lit, comfortable and away from distractions. There should be enough room for you to work side-by-side, where you can both see your project or read from the same book. Often, the dining room table is an ideal place. If this is not possible, sit together in the living room (with the TV turned off!)

• Have the right materials. At the very least, you will want the basics—plenty of paper, both lined and unlined, and something to write or draw with.

• Select a worthwhile subject. This is where many people get bogged down in uncertainty, but don't despair. Your subject matter can come from almost any source. One thing you can do is ask your child's teacher what will be taught during the year, and match your home projects to the school's.

But don't be afraid to strike out on your own and teach your child about other things, especially subjects in the news or things of special interest to your child.

One special idea that will work for almost any age is to do a series of educational projects related to your own family. These can include:

• Family geography. Buy a globe or atlas and look up where your ancestors came from and where your relatives live now. Get a book from the library and take turns reading aloud about your family's country of origin and how that country's lifestyle differs from yours.

Draw a map and color it, then put a star on your family's home town and a dot on all the cities where your relatives live.

• Family history. Show your child that families have histories too. Talk to your parents, grandparents and relatives to see how far back you can trace your family tree. Look in the attic for old newspaper clippings and other sources of information. Then draw and color your family tree, naming as many ancestors and relatives as you can and showing how they are related to your child.

•Family environmentalism. Taking care of the environment is everyone's concern. Make a list of the different ways your family helps keep our planet healthy. Do you recycle glass, cans or newspapers? Find out where these products come from, where they go and how they are reused to make other products. Make a chart showing the "life cycle" of an aluminum can or glass bottle.

Have you ever planted a tree in your yard or flowerpot. Study together about how trees contribute to clean air and provide homes for wildlife.

With a little advance planning, the right supplies, and a proper attitude, family learning can be a positive and rewarding experience for everyone.

How to handle allergies

Their noses may be tinier but, once allergy season arrives, kids can sneeze, sniffle and wheeze just as much as grown-ups. While parents can scrub and clean their child's bedroom until it's dust-free, the fact remains that school is your child's home away from home. Each day as a child enters the wonderful world of finger painting, fractions and fiction he or she must also contend with a classroom's potential allergy traps.

You can alleviate some of the suffering by teaching your child the ABC's and 1-2-3's of avoiding allergy irritants at school, recommended by Allerest.

•Tell your child to stay away from items such as blackboards, blackboard erasers, bookcases, mats, and closets. They accumulate dust quickly, and may aggravate allergies.

•If there is a pet in a classroom, your allergic child shouldn't be there. If it is impossible to switch rooms, remind him or her to at least take a seat far away from the animal and try to limit contact with it.

•Avoid activities or hobbies that involve glue and paint, and also be careful in classes such as art and science, which frequently call for using chemicals. Exposure to these products only increases the chance of triggering an allergy.

•If you son or daughter is carpooled to school, make sure that the car doors and windows are kept closed so that pollen doesn't get trapped in and circulate.

•Discourage your child from playing outdoors on days when pollen counts are especially high. Try suggesting fun activities that can be done inside.

You've successfully trained your child to say the word "please" and to look both ways before crossing the street, so teaching them these tips should be a breeze! Remember that you're never too young to develop good habits, especially if you're an allergy sufferer.

If your children have minor allergy symptoms, they can be combatted with a non-sedating, over-the-counter medication, such as Allerest; more serious and chronic symptoms should be treated by an allergy specialist.

How to face acne problem

There are no reliable statistics on exactly how many people in America suffer from acne. What we do know, however, is that it runs to the millions and it affects at least three-quarters of the nation's students. So, rest assured, you're not alone!

Unbelievable as it may seem, no one knows exactly what causes acne, and there is still no cure. Doctors generally agree that acne is caused by the over-production of oil by enlarged oil glands (most often found on the face, chest and back) and that this condition generally starts during puberty. The good news is that acne usually clears up by the time you reach your 20s and that there's a lot you can do to help control it in the meantime.

The experts at the Neutrogena Skincare Institute offer the following pointers to make life a little more bearable for acne sufferers:

•Don't over-cleanse! You can't wash acne away. Aggressive over-cleansing can aggravate acne problems and cause inflammation so that your face cannot tolerate any treatment medications your doctor might prescribe. Washing twice a day with a milk cleansing bar for acne-prone skin is sufficient.

•Do use an antiseptic cleanser to clean up excess oil in between washing, but make sure it is mild and alcohol-free. An alcohol-based product may be too harsh for your sensitive skin and may make the problem worse. Look for an antiseptic such as Neutrogena Antiseptic Cleanser, which is mild and alcohol-free and kills bacteria for up to six hours.

•Don't pop or pick at pimples! Though its a big temptation, this is not a fast way to rid you face of acne. In fact, it may actually worsen the condition and can lead to scarring.

•Do be aware of situations that might aggravate acne, such as sitting with your chin in your hand, wearing headbands, football helmets and other tight or rough clothing. Acne problems can be further complicated by heat and humidity, so try to stay cool.

•Don't let anyone convince you that acne is caused by dirt. You can have the cleanest skin in the world and still develop acne.

•Do moisturize your skin if it is over-dried by modern acne treatments like Retin-A®, Accutane® and benzoyl peroxide. Just be sure it's a light waterbased moisturizer and apply it only to dry areas.

•Don't think you must wear strong-smelling medicated ointments all day to keep acne in check. An acne treatment, such as Neutrogena Acne Mask, applied at home to the affected areas, can be left on for 20 minutes and then rinsed off with water. The mask contains five per-cent benzoyl peroxide to help heal pimples fast and prevent future breakouts.

•Do consult a dermatologist if you have a bad case of acne and your breakouts persist.

•Don't give up, even though you may feel it's hopeless. Take heart: There are many wonderful treatments available today to help you control acne. By learning the "do's" and "don'ts" of acne, you should really see a difference in your skin and perhaps blitz those zits for good!

Scoliosis: How to Curb the Curve

Here's encouraging news about scoliosis, an abnormal curvature of the spine: early identification and prompt treatment of this disease provide a good change of slowing or halting its progressive curvature. Scoliosis is more common than most people realize. It appears in 5 to 10 per cent of all adolescents to some degree. More than two-thirds of those affected are female.

Ask Your Doctor

Parents should consult a doctor if they suspect scoliosis in their child. Signs include a curved back or a prominent shoulder blade or hip. If x-rays are suggested to confirm or monitor a diagnosis, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) suggests parents ask that filters, fast screen/film combinations, and breast shields be used to minimize radiation exposure during examinations.

Information on identifying scoliosis, on its safe and effective treatments, and on reducing scoliosis radiography is available in a recent FDA article, "When the Spine Curves" (FDA) 85--4198. To receive a free copy, write to: FDA/HFZ-265, Rockville, MD 20857.

Compromise is key to solving conflicts at home

"I really want to join the basketball team and I promise to keep my grades up too!"

"Can't I have an after-school job this year?"

"Now that I'm in high school, I'm going to need a bigger allowance."

Has a feeling of deja vu hit yet? Children in almost every household have gazed at their parents with the wide-eyed, innocent "pretty please" look or shot them with an "I'm not a child anymore" expression while citing one of the above quotes in their own particular way. Each issue is indeed a challenging one and requires negotiation and compromise.

When a child asks permission to join a team or club, first, find out as much as possible about the activity. Then discuss your concerns with your child. Make sure both of you have a realistic understanding of how much time the activity will affect the child's other activities.

In general, after-school activities are a great way for children to make friends and build self-confidence. But it's important that they may have to sacrifice some of the time they formerly spent on phone calls and other fun activities.

Younger children in particular tend to forget that there are only so many hours in each day. It might be helpful for you and your child to make out a rough schedule showing what the child will be doing during each hour of every day of the week. This will help you both to set priorities.

Make it clear that schoolwork comes first, and that you still expect chores to be done. by discussing these issues, you can ensure that your child knows what he or she is getting into, and is really committed to the activity, rather than joining on a whim.

A job can be a very positive experience for a teenager. It can also be a big mistake. A teenager who is involved in after-school sports or clubs should be strongly discouraged from giving these up to take a minimum-wage job flipping burgers or pumping gas after school. On the other hand, working a few hours on the weekend probably won't involve much sacrifice and will allow the teen to make a little spending money.

Allowance increases are always being negotiated by parents and children. Before giving in to this demand, talk with your child about his or her spending habits. Does he or she spend the allowance immediately on junk, or make careful, considered purchases? A child who wants more money should be able to demonstrate that he or she will manage it sensibly.

In all these situations, parents should be willing to communicate, negotiate and compromise. If you have to say no to a request, make sure the child understands the reason for your refusal. By keeping the lines of communication open, you can help ensure a more enjoyable school year for you and your child.

Concordia College plans Centennial events in '91

Concordia college in Moorhead will celebrate its centennial with a variety of special events during the 1991-92 school year, according to Dr. Carl Bailey, physics professor emeritus and chairman of the centennial commission.

The school year begins with the centennial corn feed Wednesday, August 28, followed by a gathering by the campus bell tower where President Paul J. Dovre will announce the official start of the centennial year.

Opening convocation of the centennial will be Thursday, August 29, at 9:40 a.m. in Memorial auditorium. Speaker will be Art Simon, founder and president of Bread for the World.

New instant lottery game starts Aug. 20

Starting August 20, Minnesotans will have a chance to play the Minnesota State Lottery's newest instant game, Lakes and Loons. The game gives players a chance to win a top prize of $5,000 instantly.

The game features a Minnesota outdoors theme with a design of a loon swimming in a lake. Bobbers, nets, cabins, stars, fish, boats, trees, fishing hats and loons are the game symbols. To play, players simply scratch the coated lake on the ticket and match three like symbols. To win, symbols do not have to appear in a straight line. Players matching three like symbols win the prize shown on the prize chart of each ticket. If a player matches three "loons" they win $5,000. Other prizes include a free ticket, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500.

About 25 million tickets have been printed with almost $13,494,000 in total prizes. Lakes and Loons offers overall odds of winning at 1 in 4.15. Tickets cost $1 and will be sold at approximately 4,000 Lottery retailers statewide.

"Our research has shown Minnesotans have an affinity to Minnesota based themes. In the land of 10,000 lakes and 12,000 loons, we thought a Lakes and Loons theme would be a perfect summer tie-in," said George Andersen, Lottery director.

A toll-free player hotline offers pre-recorded information 24 hours a day with how-to-play tips, game information, winning numbers information, and prize redemption rules. Call 297-7371 in Twin Cities metro area and 1-800-657-3846 in greater Minnesota.

Small grain yields are below normal

Small grain yields and quality in Minnesota are reported as below normal because of excess moisture and severe infestation of rust and other diseases, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

Planting delays in much of Minnesota got crops off to a slow start but warmer than average temperatures in June and July helped crop development move toward above normal conditions.

The oat crop was hardest hit among Minnesota small grains. The state estimates shown in the August 1 crop report of the agricultural statistics service are subject to change due to weather, insects and other factors. The service's forecasts are as follows:

Corn for grain production is estimated to be 755.2 million bushels, down one per cent from 1990. Yield is forecast at a record 128 bushels per acre, up four bushels from last year.

Soybean production is forecast to increase 12 per cent from last year to 201.7 million bushels. If realized, this would be a record output. Expected yields of 37 bushels would be only two bushels below last year.

Spring wheat crop is forecast at 75.1 million bushels, a decline of 56 per cent from last year. Thirty-six bushels per acre is the estimated yield, a decrease of four bushels from the July 1 forecast and 13 bushels below last year. Durum wheat growers are expected to produce 1.1 million bushels, a 20 per cent decrease from 1990's production. Yield estimates indicate a nine-bushel decline to 35 bushels per acre.

Oat production should be about half of last year's output, coming in at only 27 million bushels. Yield is forecast at 45 bushels per acre, a decrease of 21 bushels from last year.

Barley producers should expect a 13 per cent decrease in production. An estimated 43.8 million bushels are expected. Yield is slated to decrease 13 bushels to an estimated 50 bushels per acre.

This year's dry bean production is estimated to be 1.8 million hundredweight, up two per cent from 1990. Yield is expected to be 1,500 pounds per acre—200 more than last year.

Alfalfa hay output is forecast at 5.94 million tons, a 16 per cent increase from 1990's crop. Yields should be around 3.3 tons per acre, which is up from 3.2 tons last year. Other hay production at 1.44 million tons is unchanged from last year. Yield is estimated to be 1.8 tons per acre.

The sugar beet crop is up 11 per cent to an estimated 5.96 million tons. Yields are shown to have an increase of 1.7 tons to 16.5 tons per acre.

Summer potato production is expected to be 2.2 million hundredweight, a 20 per cent increase over 1990. Yield is estimated at 300 hundredweight per acre, the same as a year ago.

YOUR HOUSE OF WORSHIP MAY OFFER A GOOD SCHOOL

The approaching school season reminds us that there are several options for our children's education. We have a fine public school system in this country, which does its best for our children; both in teaching them and in trying to protect them from evil influences, and it should be remembered that even the best school in the world cannot do the parents' job. However, there is an alternative. Many Houses of Worship provide their own elementary school, beginning with kindergarten. They offer a full curriculum, maintain discipline, and establish a solid foundation of faith and moral values. There is no better place to give your children a good start in life, and now is the time for you to look into it.

The greatest natural resource that any country can have is its children.

Library Ball October 5 recalls origin of library

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

History will be repeated in Thief River Falls Saturday, October 5, when a Library Ball will be held beginning at 8 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Dick King and the Classic Swing Band from Grand Forks, ND, will provide music for the evening of dancing which will be a fund-raiser for the Thief River Falls public library.

Tickets at $50 per couple will go on sale soon and will be limited in number. Watch for announcements in the Times and Northern Watch.

The ball will be reminiscent of Library Balls held in early years of the library when a Library Ball opened the social season in the autumn of each year.

"Formal attire was worn to the Library Balls which were started Oct. 12, 1912," wrote Emma Backe Ward, who became librarian at the Thief River Falls public library in 1913.

"The dances were continued for many years by members of the board to raise money for the library. They opened the social season in the autumn of each year and were held in the ballroom of the old auditorium (which had lovely hand painted murals on the walls).

"Each ball opened with a grand march; fruit punch was served and the music was always good. One year the board donated $500 to the library from such an affair. The money was used for the purchase of books, furniture, stacks, chairs and tables.

"The second Library Ball was held Oct. 10, 1913 and proceeds were set aside as the nucleus of a fund for a new library site. The site for Carnegie Library was subsequently purchased by the city from Mr. Frank Liemers for $2,000."

The library itself had been started when a few public-spirited wives of civic leaders decided that a book collection was needed for everyone to use. They organized a group to fill this need and the first library board was formally formed April 13, 1901. Mrs. James Meehan was the first president, later succeeded by Mrs. C. L. Dobner.

Public subscription raised $500 to purchase the library's first books. Thereafter the library was supported by subscription plus proceeds from teas, balls and suppers. The little library was located on the north side of Second street, west of the alley between Main and LaBree avenues, in a frame building on the north side of Second street.

In the spring of 1902 a one-story library annex was built on the north side of the old city fire hall at First Street and Main Avenue. The city appropriated $200 for this structure, the first financial aid received from the City of Thief River Falls.

The building was divided into two rooms, one for books and the other for reading and the office of the librarian. The reading room contained three tables: two served as stands for the traveling library and the third table was to sit at while reading. L. G. Browning was the first librarian and paid $14 per month.

Mrs. Ward notes that the library was located in the basement of the old city auditorium when she became librarian in 1913. "The library stacks were only partly filled with books," she recalled. "Imagine my surprise one day when I found a youngster sound asleep in an empty shelf."

Mrs. Ward also recalled when George Edgar Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota, was in Thief River Falls and gave her advice on how to approach people for donations.

"Do not be bashful!" he had said. "Just ask everybody for books and donations. Go right up to them and ask!"

"I did ask president Vincent right

Filing period for TRF city council begins Aug. 27

Beginning August 27, applications for Thief River Falls city council will be accepted. Seven of the eight positions on the council will be up for re-election, making this year's election extremely unusual. Filing for positions on the School District 564 board of education at Thief River Falls will also open on August 27.

Positions to be filled by election on November 5 include: a two-year position for mayor, a four year term for first ward alderman; a two-year term for second ward alderman; a four-year position for third ward alderman; a four-year term for fifth ward alderman; a two-year term for alderman at large; and, a four-year term for alderman at large.

It is unusual for so many positions on the council to be filled during one election. Mid-term vacancies explain why at least two positions not normally on this ballot that are on the ballot. Normally, positions on the council are for four years, but this year, alderman Greg Brekke's second ward position will be filled by a two year term because Brekke was appointed to fill the unexpired term held by Ken Murphy, who was elected to the County Board of Commissioners. In addition, Jean Heinrichs, who holds one of the two aldermen at large positions, was appointed to fill part of the unexpired term of Don Liden. This year, the council also changed the term of office for mayor from four years to two years. In two years, the election of city council candidates will return to normal providing there are no positions to fill mid-term.

Individuals occupying the positions on the council now include:

Election update:

Interactive TV link aids area education

Known as Northwest Education Link or NWEL, an interactive television system linking the technical colleges in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and the University of Minnesota—Crookston was used by more than 500 students in its first year last year.

Through interactive television technology, teachers and students in any of the four schools in the three communities can teach and attend classes together without the need to travel. Specially equipped classrooms allow students and teachers to see and hear one another over television.

Teachers can team teach from different locations, students can ask questions, give reports and work together on projects even though they are many miles apart.

With the system it is possible for education to get better in a time of declining dollars, shrinking populations and increasing costs. When it is not feasible to offer a class due to low enrollment in one of the schools, it is possible to pool student and teacher resources at more than one school and permit the class to be offered.

"ITV technology has helped network members improve or maintain programs through cooperation and sharing," states Jeff Sinks, media resources producer and NWEL coordinator at UMC. "Students and teachers gain the added convenience of not having to travel to teach or attend classes in other communities."

These new educational partnerships are and will likely continue to have a major impact on students and faculty at the schools involved. This year, for instance, the German language program at Lincoln high school will be extended to UMC to permit German to be added to the UMC offerings.

"This cooperative application strengthens Thief River Falls' language program and allows UMC to offer a course that would otherwise

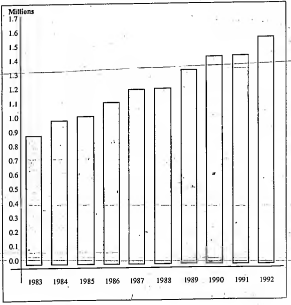
History of Tax Levies for Thief River Falls



TRF city council discusses budget

Thief River Falls city council met in an adjourned meeting Tuesday night to discuss 1992 budget planning. Other than the budget little else was discussed, however, Mayor Bob Carlson did ask the council about reports that the Red Lake Band was negotiating for the purchase of the former Red Owl building for a casino.

City Attorney Ihle said only that preliminary discussions were held and that the Chamber of Commerce and Jobs Inc. handling the discussions not the city.

Thief River Falls city council will either have to find ways to cut or fund a projected deficit of $212,966. The most immediate concern, however, is the amount of tax levy the city must certify by September 1.

State law requires that the levy be certified by September 1. The state also determines the maximum amount the city can levy for in taxes. But even by exercising the maximum amount the city still comes out with a budget deficit of over $200,000 and salary negotiations haven't been completed.

A number of options and/or solutions remain open to the council. For instance, the use of liquor reserves for a central business district are not included in the general fund revenue, the revolving capital outlay fund grants of $100,000 in 1992 have not been allocated to date, and the estimated reimbursement for force account work by the sewer department should cover the proposed capital outlay for 1992 in addition to a street sweeper.

The levy limit set by the state would raise $1,252,477 not including special levies. The levy represents a 6.8 per cent increase over the previous year.

In all, special levies and the levy will raise an estimated $1,587,022 of which $1,302,198 is available for general fund purposes.

Thief River Falls Finance Officer Roger DeLap estimates that there will be a local collection rate of 96 per cent. The estimated HACA, Transition Aids, and Disparity Reduction Aids will be reimbursed by the state at 100 per cent. The proposed 1992 tax levy works out to be an estimated $826,839 locally, and $760,183 to be reimbursed from the state.

The city council must certify the city's levy by September 1, according to Truth in Taxation laws. After September 1, the certified levy cannot be increased, only decreased, prior to the final certification in late December. Public hearings on the budget will be held early in December.

Meeting on casino set for Sept. 17

Last Thursday, Don Stewart, community development director, advised media representatives attending a news conference on a proposed casino, that a joint meeting between the Thief River Falls city council and the Pennington County Board of Commissioners, had been proposed for September 17 at 5 p.m., not 7 p.m. as reported. That meeting is open to the public, of course. Thief River Falls city council will meet on Tuesday night to discuss the recommended September 17 meeting.

Information about the proposed casino was presented in the Friday edition of the Northern Watch. Copies are available at The Times.

Currently, the casino would be located at the former Red Owl building on Highway 59 south. The Red Lake Band of Chippewa is still negotiating for the purchase of the building.

Watch for details in The Times on dates, times and places for meetings on the proposed casino.

Speaking Of . . .

. . . I'll Let You Know What I Think

Who would have thought it? The Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians might reclaim lands in Thief River Falls! Who would have thought it? They want to build a casino on that land, right in Thief River Falls! Who would have thought it?

Being rather out of the main stream, the first I heard that the Chippewa tribe might bring a gambling casino into our fair city was when I read it in The Northern Watch. What a surprise! It was such a surprise, in fact, that I couldn't believe what I was reading. I didn't know what to think.

My first thought was, "This is a fairy tale story that someone made up, right?"

My second thought was, "This isn't a fairy tale story and I want to know more about it?"

My third thought questioned the effect of this news on the people of our fair city, "How many people are reading this article and getting all excited about it right now, and are they excitedly thinking it is good or excitedly thinking it is bad?"

After mulling this news over in my little brain for a while, I came up with lots of questions that needed answering.

—How will this affect Thief River Falls' businesses? Will it be good for them?

—How will this affect the ordinary people of Thief River Falls?

—Will there be more jobs?
—Will the schools be affected?
—Will it bring people from out of town to live in our area?
—Will it bring out of town visitors and revenue into our area?
—Will Thief River Falls prosper from this?
—Will it change Thief River—for the better—for the worse?
—What will be the long-term effects on Thief River Falls?
—How will this affect me, personally, and my family?

Well, here I sit, filled with these questions. I must admit in the past I've been known to moan and groan a bit about the need for new businesses in Thief River, about too many homes up for sale and too many business places empty in the downtown area, about the need for tourist attractions, about the cooperation of the townspeople. Ah ha. Here were are with a new business on our doorstep and what is my problem? I'm filled with questions.

Well, I decided right then and there, with all the questions I had, that I'd better hike myself off to the open meeting of the city council and county board that has been tentatively scheduled for September 17 at 5 p.m. at the city auditorium. I decided I'm going to write down my questions beforehand, and then get to the meeting in plenty of time to get a good seat and listen to all the opinions and, hopefully, get the answers to all my questions.

I decided that I'm also going to keep by narrow, skeptical, little mind wide open when I go to this meeting, instead of having it filled with prejudiced misconceptions, misunderstandings and downright falsehoods that I will have picked up from discussing the subject with everybody and anybody that I know, most of whom, by the way, will know no more than I do about the subject.

In other words, I plan to be ready to listen to the facts presented at the meeting, think things over, then come up with an opinion all my own on whether or not I think Thief River Falls should have a casino. I'm going to base my decision on the facts, and not rumors or the opinions of others.

But right now, until I have had a chance to get informed, I would ask that you please not ask me what I think of a casino in town. I'll let you know soon enough.

Marshall County enrollment to show decline

Total student enrollment at Marshall County Central Schools will be much less than last year, according to Gene Busch, superintendent of schools. September 3, the first day of school, 425 students kindergarten through grade 12 are expected compared to 452 last year. Smaller class size in primary grades contributed to the decline this year, Bush said.

Due to the state requirement for Foreign Language offering in the High School, a new staff member will be added this year. Margot Dahl was recently hired as Spanish teacher. She is from Kennedy. An additional special education teacher for grades 1 through 10 will be hired later this month. Also a recreation aide will be hired before the school term begins in September.

All students will notice improvements in all schools again this year. New students desks for grades 3 and 5 in Newfolden and grades 5 and 6 in Viking and also new classroom desks for the English department will be added. A network system with additional computers and new furniture have been added to the business and math departments in the high school. About 10 new sets of textbooks will be added for different high school subjects. New courses have been added in the social studies department also.

Parents of all students were recently notified of the new pre-paid ticket system for the breakfast and lunch program. Tickets will be purchased at each school office for students in each building. Lunch prices for regular students are $1.30 for lunch and breakfast at $.70. Reduced prices are $.40 for lunch and $.30 for breakfast. All extra milk will need a ticket also at $.15 per carton.

No major changes are planned for the bus routes this year. Students should meet the bus early the first day so a regular time can be established by each driver.

Phone numbers for the schools are: Viking elementary 523-4425; Newfolden elementary 874-8805; High school office 874-7225; Supt. office 874-8530; Bus Garage 874-6672.

Vocational educational classes at the Center School in Thief River Falls and all classes and opportunities at the Marshall County Central Schools in Viking and Newfolden will be offered without regard to sex, race, color, national origin or handicap. Any complaints regarding this compliance should be directed to the Supt. of Schools. Marshall County Central is an equal opportunity employer/educator.

draw too few students to be offered," Sinks said.

Partnerships in language offerings is expected to expand in the next year and a half as Red Lake Falls comes on-line with its global studies offerings. Cooperation among connected schools can allow high school and college students access to five or more foreign language courses in a four-year program. Schools tied by ITV will achieve stronger faculty bases and expanded curriculums than would otherwise be affordable for individual districts.

Rural schools that work together through technology can afford to build curriculums that are presently affordable only in larger metropolitan districts. Parents of high school students can save considerable sums through access to college courses that are paid for by the state through post-secondary options programs.

College students can choose from a wider variety of programs and courses. Adults and professionals can upgrade their skills or reach their educational goals from within their own communities.

"The future is bright for schools tapping this technology as an affordable way to bring more opportunity to students and faculty," Sinks added.

then and there for a donation," Mrs. Ward recalls, "and he gave us two fine books."

Dedication ceremonies and the formal opening of Carnegie Public Library took place May 12, 1915, and the city auditorium was filled with over 1,500 people for the event.

By World War I library patrons had increased to about 3,000 people, half of whom were children. "Library hours were long," Mrs. Ward relates. "We were open seven days a week, including holidays. One library member stated that the reason for keeping open Christmas eve was 'so the bachelors in town would have a place to go.'"

Just as the library afforded opportunity to people in its early years, it has continued to serve the public to the extent that provision of funds has allowed over the years. In 1966 the present building opened its doors as a successor to the Carnegie Public Library building across the street. Two years later it became the headquarters for the Northwest Regional library.

Thief River Falls public library now has 51,726 books on inventory and a file of 7,600 registered borrowers. During the past year 61,425 people came through the doors of the library and circulation of books and other materials totaled 82,503 transactions. About $12,000 is expended each year on purchase of new materials. The Library Ball October 5 is intended to be one means of securing additional funds to increase that expenditure substantially during the 90th anniversary year.

Dear Readers,
When parents lose a child to death, it is one of life's cruelest blows. Loving and remembering the child, including the hopes and dreams they had for the future, is never ending. There isn't much you can say to a parent after their child's death. All you can do is acknowledge and share their pain.
Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Blandin awards organization grants

The Blandin Foundation has announced grant awards totaling $2 million to non-profit organizations throughout rural Minnesota.

The Blandin Indian Education Program awarded $285,800 to projects and programs targeted at improving the number of Minnesota's Indian youth graduating from high school. (Educational attainment levels of Indian children rank well below those of any ethnic grouping in the state.) Awards went to three school districts: Bemidji — $54,000, Walker — $54,000, and Cass Lake — TAPP — $27,000; and attendance monitoring — $54,000; Leech Lake Reservation — $54,000; Fond du Lac Indian Reservation — $5,000; and to Bemidji State University — $37,800.

Economic development efforts received a boost as well. Minnesota Diversified Industries was awarded a program related investment of $500,000 to construct a manufacturing facility in the Hibbing area to employ handicapped people. The plant will produce carrying containers ("totes") for three of the six regions of the U.S. Postal Service and employ 110 workers, 75 per cent of whom will be people with disabilities.

An additional economic development project which received funding is Duluth Lighthouse for the Blind. The organization, which has received Blandin support in the past, employs blind workers in the manufacture of toilet tissue for the United States Navy. A new program-related investment of $100,000 and a grant of $50,000 will allow Lighthouse to expand its operations creating new jobs for 27 blind workers. Both of these projects will assist economic development in the region and provide meaningful employment for people with disabilities.

Grants totaling $65,000, were made to 13 rural Minnesota communities to initiate the D.A.R.E. program (Drug Abuse Resistance Education). D.A.R.E., endorsed by the Minnesota Attorney General's Office, is a successfully evaluated drug abuse education program that provides a 17-week program for fifth and sixth graders, their teachers and parents. It uses specially trained, uniformed law enforcement officers to teach pre-teens the skills necessary to resist experimentation with drugs and alcohol.

In the environmental area, the Foundation awarded $200,000 to the Freshwater Foundation to support the Lake Management Initiative leading to an improved lake management/water quality monitoring system for the entire state of Minnesota. Wolf Ridge Environmental Learning Center received $300,000 for a membership compaign, marketing and administrative expenses.

Ten other awards were made to projects in the arts, education, economic development, and health and human services.

U.S. House Ag. committee to meet in Moorhead

U.S. Representatives Collin Peterson and Byron L. Dorgan have announced that the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains will hold a hearing on loan rates and target prices in Moorhead, Minnesota on September 10. The subcommittee agreed to hold the hearing in Moorhead as a result of a request by Congressmen Peterson and Dorgan. The hearing will be held at the Regency Inn from 1 to 5 p.m. September 10.

"We need to understand how the 1990 Farm Bill is affecting farmers," said Congressman Peterson. "Right now farmers are operating at a loss; they're winding up owing money on the loans they've taken against their crop. We must do something before we lose these farmers. Agriculture is the economic base of our entire region."

"The fact is the current farm program isn't working" added Congressman Dorgan. "The collapsed grain prices are a disaster for our farmers and we have to find a way to get better grain prices."

"The administration keeps saying that the world market will eventually increase prices and the GATT talks will help open things up. But many of our farmers cannot afford to lose money year after year waiting for things to get better," Peterson concluded. "Waiting for the world market, like the Administration suggests, will guarantee that more farmers will be out of business and our economic base will continue to be eroded."

The hearing is jointly sponsored by Dorgan and Peterson. There will be two hours devoted to public comment. Constituents from Minnesota and North Dakota are encouraged to attend.

Boy Scouts' drug education program noted

Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy has recognized the Boy Scouts of America's drug abuse educational program as "an important and effective tool in teaching our youth about the detrimental effects of drug abuse." Bob Martinez, who was recently sworn in by President Bush, released the official statement praising Drugs: A Deadly Game.

The recognition from Martinez was issued after he learned Drugs: A Deadly Game was incorporated as a supplement in the 1990-91 curriculum for more than 200,000 Florida students. The South Florida Council of the Boy Scouts of America coordinated what has become the single largest school system distribution of Drugs: A Deadly Game. Coca-Cola Enterprises and the Ryder Foundation provided grants to implement the program in the Dade, Broward, and Monroe County school districts.

"I was glad to hear of the actions of the Boy Scouts of America in the war against drugs and other substances," said Martinez. "Efforts such as yours demonstrate the commitment of this nation to reclaim its streets, cities, workplaces, and most importantly, its youth from the ravages of illegal use of drugs."

Drugs: A Deadly Game is the country's largest multi-faceted drug awareness campaign and winner of the prestigious Presidential Citation for Private Sector Initiatives. The materials include a comic book-style brochure, teacher's guide, poster and video developed by the Boy Scouts and underwritten by the Coca-Cola Foundation and Coca-Cola USA. In the four years since Drugs: A Deadly Game was created, 15 million brochures have been distributed nationwide to warn young people against the dangers of substance abuse.

FMS leadership team enrolls in training session

Franklin Middle School leadership team underwent a week of training August 11-16 in Grand Rapids on how to make its school more effective.

The objective of the training session was to help good schools become even better.

The Minnesota Education Effectiveness Process (MEEP) was developed in response to legislation first enacted in 1983 calling for a state plan for school improvement using current research on learning, instruction, organizations and change. The training the leadership team attended is one component of the program.

Current educational research and literature provide a basis for decision-making in MEEP. "This research indicates that effective schools have clear and high expectations of students," said Mary Lillesve, supervisor for the Educational Effectiveness Process at the Department of Education. These schools encourage leadership, goal-setting, and staff development within each school building, and teachers having a strong role in designing programs. Staff cooperation, parent involvement, flexible grouping, curriculum articulation and a variety of instructional models are some of the concepts that are emphasized. School personnel study these characteristics of effective schools and learn to use the information to assess present practice in the building and make plans for improvement.

Attending the workshop were leadership teams from 33 of the 100 schools beginning training or retraining for the 1991-92 school year. Each team included central office staff, building principal, and teachers. Some teams also included school board members, parents and support staff. The following people represented Franklin Middle School: Walter Redinger, Ginger Bendickson, Mary Almquist, Pam Carlson, Cay Donlin, Jeanne Olson, all teachers; Judy Johnson, Cheryl Lee, parents; and Milt Hoff, Robert Duncan, administrators.

"Staff from the Minnesota department of education and the educational cooperative service units assist participants in using processes which lead to improvement in the school's learning environment," said Carol Evert, Education Effectiveness specialist.

After the workshop, the leadership team works with the rest of the school staff to assess the school's strengths, identify needs, and develop an individualized improvement plan.

The program was piloted by 26 Minnesota schools during the 1984-85 school year. Approximately 100 new schools have become involved in the program each succeeding year through an application process. At the present time 691 schools are involved from across the state.

Roseau transit system notes first anniversary

September 3 through September 9, RCAT will be celebrating their first year anniversary.

RCAT is a non-profit service which provides transportation available to all County residents. Over the past year RCAT has provided over 12,000 rides within the county.

Although the Roseau County Committee on aging supervises the program, the service is not just for the elderly. It is a service offered county-wide with riders asked to pay a fare based upon where they are going. It is definitely a plus to have a transit system available when your car doesn't start, if you currently don't have a vehicle or are unable to drive for any reason.

RCAT is currently not being funded by any outside means, and is standing on its own merits, paid for and funded by fares, county and municipality aid and through the dedication of Sandy Otto and the Roseau County Committee on Aging in fund-raising efforts.

Dear editor:

The people of Minnesota should be proud of Rep. Wally Sparby and Senator LeRoy Stumpf for their support of health care access and reform last spring. Every working person and family, small business person and retired citizen owes them a big 'Thank You.'

That bill — vetoed by Governor Carlson — would have opened the door of affordable health care for hundreds of thousands of us with inadequate or no health insurance.

It would have brought an end to insurance company practices that make older people pay 10 times as much for insurance than a young man, and women twice as much as men. Insurance companies would no longer deny coverage or inflate premiums simply because of the kind of work you do, the part of the state you live in, whether you're single or married or because a distant relative had a serious illness.

The bill included an affordable package for small businesses and long term reform that would save us millions of dollars in health care costs. And the bill made sure our local insurance agents would play an important and profitable role in getting affordable health insurance to their customers.

Despite all this, the vote Sparby and Stumpf cast was not easy. They got continual pressure from some 70 insurance industry lobbyists and the Governor to vote against health care access and reform. Their vote was a classic example of putting principles ahead of high priced pressure. The people of Minnesota owe them a sincere 'Thank You'.

Sincerely,
John Clawson, President
Minnesotans for Affordable Health Care

Dear editor:

One lesson the United States must learn from the Iraq war, and should have learned (but did not) from the 1973 and 1979 oil crises, is the need to reduce our oil consumption enough to eliminate all need for imported oil. The suicidal dependence on imports for 50 per cent of our oil supply was the cause of that war. It is imperative that we become independent of imported oil, to avoid future crises and/or wars.

It should not take an expert to see the principal cause of this problem. Anyone with reasonable intelligence, and who has not been brainwashed by the oil, automobile, trucking, road-building, cement, and aviation industries, should be able to look at the street, highway, and airport congestion, and make an educated guess that this is the cause of the problem.

One approach would be to make automobiles more fuel-efficient. This might help, but this alone would be counter-productive, because it would make driving cheaper, which would put still more cars onto the roads.

The transportation policy of the U.S. must be changed from the one which has existed for 70 years, and which does everything to encourage air and highway transportation, but ignores rail transportation; to one which would get as much passenger and freight traffic as possible, back to the railroads. The railroads are far more fuel-efficient than cars, trucks, or airplanes, although much under-used; and if they were electrified, would require no oil whatsoever for fuel. This policy change would also reduce air pollution, and help the environment.

The first steps to take should be: Re-regulate the freight railroads to stop any further abandonment of lines, and re-regulate the trucking industry to limit the size of trucks. Trucks should be made to pay a stiff weight-distance tax, so they would pay more of their share of highway upkeep. This would make them increase their rates, which would divert more traffic to the under-used railroads, where it belongs.

The gasoline tax should be substantially increased. This would encourage use of public transportation. Some of this additional revenue could be used to catch up with highway maintenance, but some must be used to fund mass transit, including commuter railroads, and rail rapid transit systems, and Amtrak inter-city train service.

Please remind your legislators of the need to get these priorities right. Interested persons could also join the National Association of Railroad Passengers, 900 Second St., N.E., Suite 308, Washington, D.C. 20002, which is working to save and improve our railroad services.

Very truly yours,
John J. Bowman

Virginia report studies gambling in small town

The average Virginia, MN, area resident spends more than twice as much on charitable gambling and nearly twice as much on the lottery as other Minnesotans, according to a report released by the Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS).

Research was conducted by the Center for Addiction Studies, University of Minnesota, Duluth, under contract with the Department's Mental Health Division. Researchers were: Mikal J. Aasved, Ph.D., a Minneapolis-based free lance researcher and J. Clark Laundergan, Ph.D., director of the Center for Addiction Studies and a sociology professor at UMD.

Their report, "You Betcha! Gambling and its Impacts in a Northern Minnesota Community," showed that $42,414 is spent every day on legal gambling in the Virginia area (Virginia, Mountain Iron, Eveleth and Gilbert). The area's annual per capita expenditure of $825 is nearly twice that of the $452 figure for the state of Minnesota as a whole.

The report is Minnesota's first community impact study on gambling and its effects. Such research provides helpful information as DHS develops compulsive gambling treatment programs, Commissioner Natalie Haas Steffen said.

"In some ways, the value of this research is similar to an environmental impact statement when a construction project is being planned," Steffen said. "Minnesota culture and gaming regulations have created a unique gambling environment that we need to understand if we're going to develop responsive intervention and treatment."

The study showed the area's daily charitable gambling spending ($35,136) is nearly five times that of the lottery ($7,278).

In 1990, the total amount spent on charitable gambling in Minnesota was $1.28 billion, of which $12.8 million came from the Virginia area. That means nearly one per cent of spending was done by less than one-half of one per cent of the state's population.

Lottery sales in Minnesota approached $367 million by May 31, 1991. Of that, $16.5 million came from St. Louis County, and $3 million came from the Virginia area.

Gambling has a significant economic impact on the area, the report said. Altogether about $2 million — more than $100 per person — left the area last year and was permanently lost as revenue.

As a result of this study, the authors suggest that:

1) Problem gambling education and prevention programs should be developed and initiated;

2) Local Gamblers Anonymous telephone numbers should be posted along with the state's gambling hotline number (1-800-541-4557) at all charitable gambling sites;

3) Facsimile pull tabs, which when opened reveal the state's gambling hotline number, could be printed and discretely given to potential problem gamblers by pull tab dealers; or

4) The state's gambling hotline number should be printed on the outside of every pull tab sold in Minnesota;

5) The gambling hotline number should be printed on all lottery tickets sold in the state; and

6) There should be greater public accountability of Minnesota State Lottery proceeds and the voters of Minnesota should have a greater voice in determining how they are spent.

Wheat groups form committee

Thirteen state wheat commissions and the National Association of Wheat Growers Foundation have organized the Wheat Utilization Committee to develop and support national research and educational projects to increase the utilization of wheat.

The committee answers the need for more direct producer involvement in national wheat research and education issues.

The first organizational meeting was held in July, 1991. Phil McLain, a North Carolina wheat producer, was elected committee chairman.

Eleven research proposals were presented during this meeting as potential topics to receive committee funding. The Committee is currently funding two research projects (1) exploring the use of small wheat starch granules in pharmaceutical tableting and cosmetics and (2) supporting a public sector — private sector partnership investigating thermoplastic processing of starch and promoting the commercialization of starch based polymer technology.

NAWG Foundation Director Dick Stuckey is optimistic that funds will soon be raised to support a third proposal.

Current members of the committee are wheat commissions from Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, and Washington.

Membership on the committee is obtained by the payment of annual membership dues, $2,000 for one vote or $1,000 for one half vote.

The NAWG Foundation was established in 1978 to foster charitable, scientific, and educational programs to provide lasting benefits for the U.S. wheat industry and consumers.

Impressions . . .

On Friday night this August, about 40 high school age kids from the Red River Valley area Covenant churches left from our church's parking lot to travel to a Senior High Convention in Indiana. Among the group was one of our sons.

As I said good-by to this son of mine, I realized that I was not the only parent bidding farewell to their youngest offspring. We did well. Parents and kids alike bid farewell with maybe just a teary eye—which couldn't be seen because of the darkness.

Sending my youngest nearly 1000 miles away from home leaves me in a state of wonder. Where has the time gone? Where have all the days and years and moments of our lives gone? Where is that baby for which I so tenderly cared? Where is that toddler whose bumps and bruises could be so easily healed with a kiss? Where is that first-grader who so proudly found out how to read? Where is that junior high student discovering for the first time the wonders of changing classes every hour?

We Parents come to a time in our parenting when we find that we have to say that we have done what we hope is the best for these children of ours, and then with our hopes to sustain them, we find we must send them on their way.

We need to rely on trust to do that. We need to trust that what we have instilled in them as we raised them will see them through the choices of their lives. We need to trust that in spite of our many failures with them, they can see past our failures to our love for them.

We need to trust in our children for the small things of life as well as the bigger decisions they will need to make. We can't be there to remind them to comb their hair, brush their teeth, and wear clean clothes. We need to trust that we instilled basic values of good taste and cleanliness in them. Likewise, we will not always be there to tell them that what they are planning to do is wrong and can only lead to trouble. We need to trust that the words we have preached throughout their years, and the examples we have tried to be, will lead them through and around the difficult times of their lives.

We need to not only trust our children and trust what we have instilled in them, but we need to also provide them with hope. Without hope, life can seem all but impossible. As our children are young we instill hope in them easily. Each time we tell them that they will be receiving a birthday present, or we tell them that a favorite friend is coming to visit, we put a piece of hope inside of them. As they age, it's harder to place hope inside of our children.

But, we parents must not allow our children to not hope. As we show them our trust in them, we give them hope. As we encourage them, we give them hope. As we offer words of parental wisdom, we give them hope. As we offer comfort on bad days, we give them hope. As we write letters to them, and place phone calls, we give them hope. To know that we parents care enough to hope for the very best for our children is a blessing we can bestow on them.

Children need our trust and our hope for them, but mostly they need our love. With a parent's love supporting him, a child can overcome many obstacles in life. Knowing that a parent will love him, even if they don't like what he is doing, will help a young person live a life of worth. A parent's love will sustain a child in the good times of his life, but it will also give him a reason for living during the bad times of his life.

We parents naturally worry. We wouldn't be caring parents if we didn't. But amidst our worry for our children, we need to have the confidence that we have tried to do our best. We need to leave the results with our children. They need to make mistakes, and to learn from their mistokes. They need to be trusted by us to live their own lives. They need to make mistakes, and to learn from their mistakes. They need to be trusted by us to live their own lives. They need to be able to hope to themselves even more than we hope for them. They need to be able to live lives of love, even as we sustain them with our love.

Once in a while our children reward us parents with a glimpse that their lives will turn out to be lives of value. As I saw senior high kids bidding farewell to their parents, I realized that maybe, just maybe, they really were ready to embark on a trip so far from home. As these children remembered that we parents needed that good-bye hug I realized that our years of parenting are not in vain. These babies have grown into young people who actually care about their parents. With that glimmer of trust and a hope for the future, we could with confidence send our children on such a far away adventure—hoping and praying for the best for them as they journey.

Caught In Tax Trouble

Government is a complicated business. Elected officials get caught in the complexity in the same way that other people do. A recent sales tax law is one example. It is causing frustration and will be changed.

I used to chair the sales tax division of the tax committee so I know how technical some of the rules are. During the past session there were a few sales tax changes and now the nitpicking is in full swing.

The 1991 Omnibus Tax Bill eliminated the sales tax exemption for "isolated and occasional sales" of tangible personal property used in a trade or business. This means, for example, if you own a machine shop and sell a used drill press, it would now be subject to a sales tax. Before the law took effect on July 1, it was not.

The biggest trouble with this change is its affect on used farm equipment sales by farmers and auctioneers. The problem is that the Revenue Department believes that because the "isolated and occasional sales" exemption was dropped, farm equipment sales now come under the tax along with other business equipment. The tax rate on these sales is 2.5 percent, not 6.5 percent.

The House and Senate tax committee chairs have told the department this was not what the Legislature intended. They say they wanted used farm equipment to remain exempt, and deliberately cut out a used equipment tax proposal. Revenue Commissioner Dorothy McClung says she had to follow the law the way it is written, and says that legislative intent on equipment sales was not very clear.

So what happens next? The tax committee chairs say they will change the law during the next session to make it crystal clear what their intent is. Because of their influence, the change will certainly happen. Between now and then there will be headaches for people in the auction and farm equipment business.

This is not the way things are supposed to work. I do not like any type of sales tax on used farm equipment. During the next session, I will work to make sure this mistake is corrected so that we will not have to face this problem again.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By Congressman Collin Peterson
Minnesota's Seventh District

Former Minnesota House Majority Leader Willis Eken and former St. Cloud Mayor Al Loehr will join the staff of Congressman Collin Peterson this fall to help with farm, veterans and senior citizens issues.

Eken, currently president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, will start about October 1 as an agricultural aide to Peterson. He is resigning from the Farmers Union, effective September 1. Eken was a state representative from 1971 to 1984, and was majority leader — the second-ranking position in the House — from 1981 to 1984, when he left the Legislature to take over the Farmers Union presidency.

In his new role for Peterson, Eken, a 60-year-old former farmer from Twin Valley, will be the liaison with farmers in the 7th Congressional District.

"This is a real opportunity," Eken said. "I look forward to working with the congressman to continue the fight for family farmers."

Loehr, 63, was mayor of St. Cloud from 1970 to 1980. Previously, he was state commissioner of veterans affairs from 1965 to 1980. Previously, he was state commissioner of veterans affairs from 1965 to 1969 and state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in 1962-63. Loehr also was committee administrator for the Minnesota Senate Committee on Local and Urban Affairs in the 1980s.

Loehr will start part-time September 1 working with veterans and senior citizens in Benton, Stearns and Morrison counties.

"I had the opportunity to work with former Sen. Peterson in the Minnesota Senate as a staffer," Loehr said. "I recognized his contribution to good public policy. I also was an early supporter of his the first time he ran for the DFL endorsement for Congress in 1982."

Peterson said that his staff operations will be greatly enhanced by the additions of Eken and Loehr.

"It's a big plus for us to have two such respected leaders on board," Peterson said.

Law enforcement officials were kept busy during the past week collection information about several burglaries and thefts in the area.

Clarification: Spencer Solnes, 21, Thief River Falls, was charged with theft over $200 in connection with one of three theft reports received from the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

Burglaries. On August 16 at 5:35 p.m. a resident of St. Hilaire reported that a house had been broken into. Two storm windows had been removed, along with a basement window and a garage door forced open. Various clothing items that had been packed in boxes had been scattered, a power cord for the garage door had been pulled out, and entry to the house was gained through the garage door. Damage loss was estimated at $50. The incident is under investigation.

Upon arrival of Pennington county sheriff's deputy and police officers they found an individual by the front door window and in possession of a switch blade. Second annual Thief River Falls Jamboree will mark the opening of the 1991 high school volleyball season Wednesday.

Varsity and junior varsity teams from Cass Lake, Argyle, Marshall County Central, Blackduck, Detroit Lakes, Fosston and Fisher will join the host Prowlers for the preseason event at Lincoln High School. Play starts at 3:30 p.m. Varsity matches will be played in the old gym, while junior varsity matches take place in the new gym.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

The Prowlers will also participate in a varsity-only jamboree at Warren Friday before beginning regular season play Tuesday at home against Warren.

Thief River Falls head coach Helen Anderson said the Prowlers varsity unit heading into the jamborees would include seniors Amy Eriksen, Kathy Kvack and Pam Puppe; juniors Nessa Anderson, Kristen Baughton and LuAnne Maslowski; sophomores Toni Chiodo and Jaime Martell; plus freshmen Carrie Lawrence and Kelly Skeim.

Junior varsity squad includes juniors Amy Enge, Kara LeMmne, Kristi Lindberg and Alison Peterson; along with sophomores Becky Hanson, Keri Helthusen, Traci Lindberg, Dana McGenty and Allison Myers.

Some players from the C squad and junior varsity ranks may also be included in Wednesday's junior varsity scrimmages, said Anderson.

Those on the freshman squad include Jenny Drury, Michelle Hanson, Jana Johnson, Krista Kees, Kari Kirkeby, Andrea Moe, Amber Peeples, Keri Schemmer and Jayne Stanna.

Anderson's coaching staff includes Jodi Bendickson, Scott Hetherington and Peggy Lawrence.

"We've got some potential," said Anderson. "We've got some talent, but we're young and inexperienced."

Thief River Falls will open its regular season schedule Tuesday, Sept. 3, at home against Warren.

Football made its 1991 debut at Prowler Field Saturday during the 19th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview. Ten teams were on hand for the varsity and junior varsity scrimmages that were followed by the fund-raising roast pork/corn-on-the-cob picnic dinner served by the Sports Boosters. The Prowlers were lined up on defense in this scrimmage session against Grand Forks Central. Thief River Falls will open its regular season schedule Thursday with a 7:30 p.m. Section 8A match-up against Park Rapids at Prowler Field.

Thief River Falls opens 1991 high school football season against Park Rapids

Prowlers host Panthers Thursday

A Thief River Falls team that hopes to move up in the Section 8A high school football ranks this fall will find out in a hurry where it fits into the sectional picture with a 1991 season that begins with three straight Section 8A games at Prowler Field, including the regular season opener Thursday against Park Rapids. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Defending Section 8A champion Detroit Lakes and 1989 champion Staples will follow the Panthers into Thief River Falls before the Prowlers take their show on the road for the first time September 20 for a nonconference game at Belcourt, ND.

Thief River Falls went 3-5 a year ago before losing to Fergus Falls 27-0 in the first round of the Section 8A playoffs – the Prowlers' first post-season berth since 1987. Among the Thief River Falls wins was a 13-0 decision at Park Rapids to end a string of 10 straight losses in season openers. Two of those setbacks were at the hands of Park Rapids after the Panthers replaced long-time first-game foe Grand Forks Red River on the Thief River Falls schedule.

Four scrimmage sessions in Saturday's Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview gave head coach Jeff Mumm an opportunity to see his team perform in a controlled game-like situation after two weeks of preseason drills.

"I thought we were about where we should be at this point of the season," said Mumm in assessing the Prowlers' Pigskin Preview performance. "We did a pretty good job running our basic plays, but our timing wasn't real good on some of the other things we tried. But each week things get a little better, and we're hoping for some more improvement in that area this week."

Speed has been touted as the Prowlers' biggest asset this fall, and that was reinforced Saturday. But the rest of the game will have to fall in place, said Mumm, if they want that speed to be effective throughout the 1991 season. "We've got a lot of work to do up front," he said. "Our speed made a lot of mistakes look good."

Mumm said he wouldn't be ready to name a starting line-up before the Prowlers complete their final week of preseason drills. "We'll send 11 kids out there Thursday when the line-ups are read, but we're going to use practices this week to look at some different things before we name our starters. We're going to make some adjustments to make sure we have the right people in the right spots."

Mumm said the Prowlers have remained focused on turning the struggling Thief River Falls football program into a winner this fall. "The attitude is phenomenal," he pointed out. "The entire team is on the same wave length. They really want to do well."

Derek Larson putted on the No. 3 green Sunday during his Thief River Golf Club championship match against Jeff Wiltse. Larson defeated Wiltse in the finals for the second straight year.

1991 Golf Club tournament...

Larson wins title rematch

A 1990 rematch produced the same results in 1991 Sunday as Derek Larson defeated Jeff Wiltse in the Thief River Golf Club finals.

Larson won his first club title last August, just prior to his senior year at Lincoln High School, with a championship match victory over Wiltse. Both golfers made their way through the championship flight matches this month to produce the title-deciding rematch. And the St. John's University-bound Larson made it two-in-a-row during the muggy 18-hole Sunday finale.

Larson reached the finals with a quarterfinal victory over Stan Sjoberg and a semifinal decision over Al Buhl. Wiltse beat Bruce Williams in the quarterfinals and downed Tim Delmore in the semifinals.

Jeff Hendrickson defeated Barry Rhineberger, Rick Reierson and Gordy DeLap to win the president's flight.

58 report for NCC football

Northland Community College football team began preseason practice drills Saturday, with a squad of 58 players going through two-a-day work-outs in preparation for the 1991 season opener September 5 vs. the Moorhead State University junior varsity.

Fourteen of those players return from last year's 4-4 team, including Jeff Aberle, Karlsrue, ND; Kris Souther, Stanton, ND; Todd Peterson, Audubon; Dennis Carpenter, Oslo; Dan Boushee, East Grand Forks; Scott Degelder, Pembina, ND; Greg Monson, Grygla; Jeremy Sundby, Karlstad; Kevin Massiah, Alvin Pratt, Reggie Drummond and Walt Rozier, Miami, FL; Jon Sigerud, Goodridge; and Kurt Reck, Mentor.

The roster also includes Bob Blaszak, Apple Valley, a second-year Technical College aviation student who is a first-year member of the team; Flint Gandrud, Audubon, a transfer student from Moorhead State; Robert Brutus, North Miami, FL., a transfer student from nonfootball school Miami Dade Community College; Eric Melcher, Grygla, who played for the Pioneers in 1989, but sat out the 1990 season; Troy Opsahl, Audubon, a transfer student from Moorhead State; and Travis Overbye, Thief River Falls, a second-year Technical College aviation student playing his first year of football with the Pioneers.

Freshmen reporting were Kurt Kluzak, Rosemount; Joel Kilichowski, Ian Miller and Marv Demers, Fordville, ND; Todd Hagen and Trent Myron, Northwood, ND; Jim Kindrick, Kelly Gray, Shane Noble, Daryl Fish and Sean Lanning, Warroad; Derek Landerville and Steve Heggen, Argyle; Jarrod Spoor and Nate Carlin, East Grand Forks; Brett Mills and Jamie Harder, Thief River Falls; Mark Hildebrandt and Blue Olson, Northome; Bernard Hillman, Kelliher; Maynard Kochena, Park River, ND; Steve Doppler and Tyler Dahl, Pelican Rapids; Ben Carpenter, Oslo; Dan Van Norman and Greg Wilcek, Little Falls; Chad Guarnieri, Palm Habour, FL; Jason Stewart, Battle Lake; Kevin White, Miami, FL; Shawn Campell, Arcadia, FL; Jason Smeby, Winger; Steve Niederkorn, Winstad; Jeff Holter, Grand Forks, ND; Joe Buskala, Cloquet; Mike Quinn, Safety Harbour, FL; Sylvester Davis, Tallahassee, FL; Gerald Cook and Orlando Burden, Chicago, IL; Jay Meyer, Fairfax, MN.

First impression of the newest Northland team was a good one, according to Pioneers head coach Rick Nelson. "In my eight years here, we're as cautiously optimistic as we've ever been," he said. "We see some promise. For the most part they came to camp in pretty good shape. It doesn't look like we have any speed demons, but we're not super-slow, either. We're not overly big, but we've got some well put-together kids."

After hosting the Dragons in the traditional nonconference opener, the Pioneers begin their 1991 Minnesota Community College Conference schedule with a Saturday, Sept. 14, game at Itasca.

Dave Geatz stroked this short putt on No. 2 Sunday as he beat Bruce Williams in the championship flight consolation finals of the 1991 Thief River Golf Club tournament.

TRF Fun Roll is scheduled to be run on Saturday

In-line skating (rollerblade) will be featured Saturday during the Thief River Falls Fun Roll at the Arctco parking lot.

Safety seminars, skating exhibitions and races will be part of the activity, sponsored by Northwest Medical Center, Falls/Dakota Clinic, KTRF/KSNR, School District 564 community education, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. and Rollerblade, Inc., a pioneer the sport of in-line skating.

Registration starts at 8:30 a.m.

Rollerblade, Inc. officials and local law enforcement officers will present a safety seminar at 9 a.m. – a mandatory session for everyone who will be participating in the races later that morning.

Thief River Falls skaters Lynnae Broten and Jeffrey Schneider will display their in-line skating skills at 9:30.

All skaters planning to race will then be required to complete a skills course starting at 9:45. Those completing the skills course will receive a Thief River Falls Fun Roll bandanna, which will be needed to enter the race.

The race, covering a half-mile oval, will start at 10. Age groups include 8-under (one lap), 9-11 (two laps), 12-14 (three laps), 15-18 (four laps) and 19-over (four laps). Trophies will be awarded to the first place male and female finisher in each age division.

Advance registration fee, which was $5 prior to August 23, is now $8. Registration on race day is $10. No registration will be accepted after 9 a.m. Saturday. Racers under 18 must have co-signature of parent or guardian.

Rollerblade, Inc. will provide free use of skates to participants who do not have their own. Skate sizes are limited, however, and early registration for these skates is mandatory.

Those attending the event are asked to park in the Digi-Key parking lot adjacent to Arctco.

For additional details, or registration information, contact Gail Holland at 681-4240, extension 210.

The event will be cancelled in the event of rain.

New coach is leading Skippers

Middle River volleyball heads into the 1991 high school season under the direction of a new head coach – Pelican Rapids native and Moorhead State University graduate Debbie Johnson.

The Skippers finished 9-13 a year ago under Julie Tunheim, who left her position with the New-River Record during the summer for a newspaper position out of the area.

It's the first coaching position above the youth program ranks for Johnson. She is being assisted by Danvy Jacobson.

A newcomer to the area, Johnson admitted she doesn't know where the Skippers will fit in skill-wise and record-wise, but she has been impressed with their work habits in early practice drills. "They all have a really great attitude," she pointed out. "They're working hard. They have really good team spirit. They've set some goals for themselves, and they're working hard to try to achieve those goals."

The squad includes seniors Denise Johnson, Holly Gram, Jennifer Lorenson and Rachel Scramstad; juniors Andrea Nelson, Holly Stromberg, Sherie Melby, Alison Toren and Hope Dahl; sophomores Robyn Iverson, Elly Schmidt, Saro Melby and Sheree Nelson; plus eighth grader Krissi Super.

Five seniors were lost to graduation from last year's squad – Kim Peterson, Darci Hanson, LeeAnn Ruud, Michelle Melby and Julie Larson.

The Skippers will take part in a jamboree at Roseau Thursday and will open the regular season schedule Tuesday vs. Grygla/Goodridge in Grygla.

Waterfowl regulations proposed

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) plans to provide some traditional waterfowl hunting opportunity by returning to earlier daily shooting hours and splitting the waterfowl season into three segments, it was announced late last week.

Minnesota will return to the traditional morning shooting time of one-half hour before sunrise for the 1991 waterfowl season. Minnesota has had sunrise shooting hours since 1988, when the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service required sunrise shooting for all states. However, when the Fish and Wildlife Service allowed a return to one-half hour before sunrise in 1989, Minnesota was one of only a few states that stayed with the sunrise start time the last few years. Evaluations have not indicated that the one-half hour delay has been an effective tool to regulate duck harvest, according to Tim Bremicker, chief of the DNR Wildlife Section.

"Season length and bag limit have been proven to regulate duck harvest," Bremicker said. "The Fish and Wildlife Service has evaluated sunrise shooting and found no evidence that it substantially reduces duck harvest. Duck harvest rates have been very low during the past three years as a result of the reduced season length and lower bag limits, even though most states were shooting from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset."

DNR Commissioner Rod Sando said the goal of the Minnesota changes this year is not to harvest more ducks, but rather to provide more varied opportunities for hunters.

"Although these new regulations will restore some traditional components of the waterfowling experience, restrictions on total season length and bag limits will continue and should provide ample protection to duck populations," Sando said. "However, I am concerned that we not send the wrong message. I want to make it clear that the DNR remains very concerned about the status of ducks. I personally urge all waterfowl hunters to make certain that they fully comply with federal and state regulations," Sando stressed.

Remaining in place for 1991 will be the noon start of shooting on opening day of duck season, which has been in effect since 1947, and the 4 p.m. end of shooting hours through the Friday of MEA weekend. "These regulations have been shown to be important for protecting our local breeding ducks in Minnesota, and they will be continued," said Bremicker.

Minnesota also plans to divide the waterfowl season into three segments to provide later season hunting. "Because of the very short seasons since 1988, some Minnesota waterfowlers have been expressing a desire to hunt into mid-November. The three-segmented split season will allow Minnesotans the chance to hunt later without curtailing a significant part of waterfowling hunting in October. This option will allow needed flexibility in how seasons are set for the next five years," said Bremicker.

"Minnesota's waterfowl season is tentative until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service finalizes its regulations, which is expected in early September," noted Bremicker.

Proposed dates for the duck season are October 5-13; October 17-November 3; and November 8-10. Goose seasons will be similar to last year, and should begin September 28. Bremicker said this structure gives consideration to migration chronology and freeze-up dates, while maintaining an open season during the popular teachers' convention weekend that begins October 17 this year.

Bremicker said waterfowl hunters should consult the synopsis of Minnesota 1991 Waterfowl Hunting Regulations, issued in mid-September, for further information.

I think our community needs to know about the efforts of someone who has had very little recognition for his dedication in helping our students be mentally and physically better people.

In the last couple of years our high school weight room has had a lot of publicity. The facility is second to none. The variety of equipment we now have has come through the efforts of many kids past and present as well as our service clubs. A huge "thank you" is a small token for what they have done. The usage of this great facility is very exciting!

Throughout all of the efforts and contributions and thanks we have given to others, one person has been overlooked. Coach Jeff Mumm was the person who started this process when he first came to our community. He was the person who got [illegible]

Antlerless deer permit deadline is September 5

September 5 is the last day hunters may apply for a 1991 Minnesotas antlerless deer permit. As that day approaches, Department of Natural Resources License Bureau and Information Center employees are preparing to work extended hours to accommodate the annual surge of last-minute applicants for the antlerless deer hunt lottery. The License Bureau and Information Center will be open from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. September 3, 4 and 5.

In-person applications for the antlerless deer lottery must be made to the License Bureau by 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5. Applications that are mailed in must be postmarked no later than midnight September 5.

"The last few days before the antlerless deer lottery deadline are traditionally the very busiest of the year for us," said Dawn Thell, License Bureau supervisor of counter sales. "On an average day, we see about 200 customers. Just before the antlerless deer lottery deadline, we will see 750 a day, easily."

Those 750 customers a day will have a lot of questions to ask, too, as long as they're already at the DNR's central office, said Sherri Urbano, information assistant at the DNR Central Office Information Center. "The antlerless deer lottery deadline is definitely a busy annual event here," Urbano said. "We will be on hand to assist people with whatever natural resource related information they may need."

During the busiest times, DNR employees will be available in the DNR building lobby to assist with lottery-related questions, and to help hunters correctly complete their applications. Inaccurate completion of lottery applications can result in exclusion from the lottery, noted Karen Beckman, License Bureau assistant administrator.

"The most common errors made on these applications are incorrectly copied driver's license numbers and incorrectly record dates of birth," Beckman said. "And the signature," Beckman said. "People must remember to sign that application."

DNR License Bureau and Information Center are both located on the ground floor of the DNR Building, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155.

DNR News

A brown trout painted by Stephen Hamrick of Savage will be featured on the 1992 Minnesota Trout and Salmon Stamp.

Hamrick's oil painting won over three other finalists in a close contest that drew 35 entries. The winning painting, in golden tones, depicts a brown trout pursuing a fly over a rocky lake or stream bed.

After a final vote to break a first place tie, second place in this year's contest went to B. Walter Peck of Afton, who also painted a brown trout. A brown trout by Jon Q. Wright of Brooklyn Park and a rainbow trout by Dave Brandon of Eagan placed third and fourth, respectively.

This was the second win for Hamrick, who also won the 1986 contest.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which conducts the annual stamp contest, offers no prizes to the winner. The winning artist, however, retains reproduction rights to the work, which is usually reproduced as a limited edition wildlife art print.

Minnesota Trout and Salmon Stamp is required for those who fish in designated trout stream, designated trout lakes, or Lake Superior. It must be purchased by residents over the age of 16 but under the age of 65, and by non-residents over age 16. They must also purchase a regular fishing license.

DNR sells approximately 90,000 to 95,000 stamps every year for $5 each, according to Mark Ebbers, DNR Fisheries program coordinator. He said proceeds are used for trout and salmon habitat improvement and stocking programs for streams and lakes.

Judges this year were Beverly Scalze, last year's contest winner; Dr. Mary Henry of the University of Minnesota; sportsman Ross Holmes; Ken Semling of Color-proof Printing; Mark Boilke of Trout Unlimited; and Roger Holmes, DNR director of Fish and Wildlife.

DNR Auction

A public auction of firearms and bows will be conducted by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in St. Paul Saturday, Sept. 7.

Firearms and bows were confiscated from violators of Minnesota game and fish laws. Money received from sale of the firearms and bows will be deposited in the state game and fish fund.

The auction will be held at the DNR Headquarters, 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul, starting at 9 a.m. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m.

Items will be sold on a cash-only basis; no checks or money orders will be accepted. No firearms will be sold to any person less than 18 years of age. Non-residents must have a firearm dealer's license.

No physical inspection of the items will be permitted due to security considerations. A list describing the items will be available at the door.

Included in the action are approximately 240 firearms, including 125 shotguns, 115 rifles, seven compound bows and one muzzleloader.

I think our community needs to know about the efforts of someone who has had very little recognition for his dedication in helping our students be mentally and physically better people.

In the last couple of years our high school weight room has had a lot of publicity. The facility is second to none. The variety of equipment we now have has come through the efforts of many kids past and present as well as our service clubs. A huge 'thank you' is a small token for what they have done. The usage of this great facility is very exciting!

Throughout all of the efforts and contributions and thanks we have given to others, one person has been overlooked. Antlerless deer permit deadline is September 5

September 5 is the last day hunters may apply for a 1991 Minnesota antlerless deer permit. As that day approaches, Department of Natural Resources License Bureau and Information Center employees are preparing to work extended hours to accommodate the annual surge of last-minute applicants for the antlerless deer hunt lottery. The License Bureau and Information Center will be open from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. September 3, 4 and 5.

In-person applications for the antlerless deer lottery must be made to the License Bureau by 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5. Applications that are mailed in must be postmarked no later than midnight September 5.

"The last few days before the antlerless deer lottery deadline are traditionally the very busiest of the year for us," said Dawn Thell, License Bureau supervisor of counter sales. "On an average day, we see about 200 customers. Just before the antlerless deer lottery deadline, we will see 750 a day, easily."

Those 750 customers a day will have a lot of questions to ask, too, as long as they're already at the DNR's central office, said Sherri Urbano, information assistant at the DNR Central Office Information Center. "The antlerless deer lottery deadline is definitely a busy annual event here," Urbano said. "We will be on hand to assist people with whatever natural resource related information they may need."

During the busiest times, DNR employees will be available in the DNR building lobby to assist with lottery-related questions, and to help hunters correctly complete their applications. Inaccurate completion of lottery applications can result in exclusion from the lottery, noted Karen Beckman, License Bureau assistant administrator.

"The most common errors made on these applications are incorrectly copied driver's license numbers and incorrectly record dates of birth," Beckman said. "And the signature," Beckman said. "People must remember to sign that application."

DNR License Bureau and Information Center are both located on the ground floor of the DNR Building, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155.

DNR News

A brown trout painted by Stephen Hamrick of Savage will be featured on the 1992 Minnesota Trout and Salmon Stamp.

Hamrick's oil painting won over three other finalists in a close contest that drew 35 entries. The winning painting, in golden tones, depicts a brown trout pursuing a fly over a rocky lake or stream bed.

After a final vote to break a first place tie, second place in this year's contest went to B. Walter Peck of Afton, who also painted a brown trout. A brown trout by Jon Q. Wright of Brooklyn Park and a rainbow trout by Dave Brandon of Eagan placed third and fourth, respectively.

This was the second win for Hamrick, who also won the 1986 contest.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which conducts the annual stamp contest, offers no prizes to the winner. The winning artist, however, retains reproduction rights to the work, which is usually reproduced as a limited edition wildlife art print.

Minnesota Trout and Salmon Stamp is required for those who fish in designated trout stream, designated trout lakes, or Lake Superior. It must be purchased by residents over the age of 16 but under the age of 65, and by non-residents over age 16. They must also purchase a regular fishing license.

DNR sells approximately 90,000 to 95,000 stamps every year for $5 each, according to Mark Ebbers, DNR Fisheries program coordinator. He said proceeds are used for trout and salmon habitat improvement and stocking programs for streams and lakes.

Judges this year were Bevesly Scalze, last year's contest winner; Dr. Mary Henry of the University of Minnesota; sportsman Ross Holmes; Ken Semling of Colorproof Printing; Mark Beilke of Trout Unlimited; and Roger Holmes, DNR director of Fish and Wildlife.

DNR Auction

A public auction of firearms and bows will be conducted by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in St. Paul Saturday, Sept. 7.

Firearms and bows were confiscated from violators of Minnesota game and fish laws. Money received from sale of the firearms and bows will be deposited in the state game and fish fund.

The auction will be held at the DNR Headquarters, 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul, starting at 9 a.m. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m.

Items will be sold on a cash-only basis; no checks or money orders will be accepted. No firearms will be sold to any person less than 18 years of age. Non-residents must have a firearm dealer's license.

No physical inspection of the items will be permitted due to security considerations. A list describing the items will be available at the door.

NOTICE

On October 22, 1986, former President Reagan signed into law the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA). This law requires that all public and private schools kindergarten through twelfth grade be inspected for asbestos and that a plan be prepared and implemented which will give the local schools direction for management of any asbestos containing building materials which have been identified in their building. This law also requires periodic surveillance and re-inspection to monitor compliance.

The Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist Elementary School was inspected on August 15, 1988; asbestos containing building materials were found in the school and a management plan has been prepared for the school. This plan is on file in the school administrative office and can be examined during school hours by interested persons by contacting the Principal, Duane Madden, at the school, 1004 Tindolph Ave., 681-4606.

In order to comply with the AHERA law and the findings of the inspectors we have trained personnel in the surveillance of asbestos containing areas.

NCC presents View of Future

Northland Community College Foundation will host a presentation entitled "Beyond the Gee-Whiz View of the Future" on September 3, 1991, at 1:30 p.m. in the NCC theater. The presenter, Professor Howard Didsbury, holds degrees from Yale, Harvard, and American University.

H.F. Didsbury Jr.
NCC Speaker

Professor Didsbury takes a practical approach toward understanding futuristic studies. In his presentation Dr. Didsbury will address the "gee-whiz" technological view of the future, overwhelming statistics and probabilities, and the more calculated or probable future that awaits — a future strongly influenced by social and political forces.

Professor Didsbury is a member of the World Future Society and recently presented a pre-conference course, "An introduction to the Study of the Future", in conjunction with the recent international meeting of the World Future Society. Professor Didsbury is a professor of history and executive director of the Program for the Study of the Future at Kean College of New Jersey.

The World Future Society is a non-profit educational and scientific organization of individuals who are interested in how social and technological developments are shaping the future. With a membership of over 30,000, the Society strives to serve as a neutral clearinghouse for ideas about the future, including forecasts, recommendations, scenarios, alternatives and more.

Founded in 1966, the Society now publishes "The Futurist", a bimonthly journal of forecasts, trends, and ideas about the future; "Futures Research Quarterly", a scholarly journal for the professional futurist; "Future Survey", a monthly digest of future-oriented books, articles, and papers; and "Newsline", a networking newsletter for Society members. The Society has also published more than two dozen books on the future.

The Society has held six General Assemblies — meetings of futurists from around the world — and a number of specialized conferences, including "Working Now and in the Future" and "The Global Economy: Today, Tomorrow, and the Transition". The next General Assembly is scheduled for June 27 through July 1, 1993, at the Sheraton Washington Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Farm profits fall below '90 levels

Second quarter farm profits fell below year-ago levels although farmland prices exceeded year-ago levels, according to a midyear survey of rural bankers by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

Bankers say the decline in farm profits was mainly due to lower prices for farm products such as milk and durum wheat. Bankers also attribute the decline to increased operating expenses and smaller government program payments.

Not all farm producers saw profits fall. Rain in much of the Upper Midwest helped cattle producers reduce feed costs by increasing hay yields and restoring pasture lands. Also, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says beef and cattle prices were slightly above their high prices from a year ago. Farmland prices were about three per cent higher than last year, and the continued decline in interest rates also helped brake the fall in farm profits.

Survey bankers do not expect much change in agricultural credit conditions in the next three months. Where crop yields are expected to exceed year-ago levels, they do not expect prices to be high enough to push up profits. Bankers in livestock producing areas expect cattle prices to fall below year-ago levels in the third quarter.

At the end of June the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis surveyed 131 rural bankers in the Ninth Federal Reserve district which includes Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota, northwestern Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

As the nation's central bank, the Federal Reserve is responsible for making and carrying out monetary policy. It also regulates banks and bank holding companies, provides financial services and serves as fiscal agent for the U.S. treasury.

Soybean Growers yield contest set

Deadline for entering the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association's yield contest is September 6.

This year's contest is open to members of the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association who grow at least a 10-acre plot of soybeans. Youth that are at least 12 years of age and not older than a senior ('92 graduate) in high school are also eligible.

School openings mean alert driving

Children hurrying back to school will face excitement, adventure and possible danger from traffic, according to a reminder issued by AAA clubs of Minnesota.

Children will be on the street in increasing numbers as motorists drive to and from work. It's important for each driver to help keep youngsters safe. Extra caution is urged when driving in residential areas, at intersections and in the area of schools. Children hurrying to join friends or with many things on their minds may attempt to cross streets and roadways without warning at any location.

Motorists should remember that children cannot see or be seen around parked cars as easily as adults. They also may not have the ability to judge speed and direction of motor vehicles and may think the safest way to cross a street is to quickly run across.

Parents are also reminded to review traffic safety with their children, taking time before school begins to walk with first-time students along the route they will take to school and point out potential hazards. Parents should also find the safest route to school for their children, preferably using crossings that are staffed by school safety patrol members.

School safety patrol members are at their posts every school day and have been instructed in how to help fellow students cross streets safely. Drivers as well as students should cooperate with the school patrol members.

Special caution should also be used whenever a motorist approaches a stopped school bus. If the bus has an extended stop arm and flashing red lights, Minnesota law states motorists approaching from either direction must stop and remain stopped at least 20 feet from the bus.

There is only one situation in which a motorist approaching a school bus displaying flashing red lights and an extended stop arm is not required to stop. That is when the motorist is approaching the bus from the front on the opposite side of a road divided by a physical barrier such as a median of grass, fence, concrete or railing. Motorists approaching from behind the school bus must stop.

All motorists are reminded to keep in mind the annual warning: "School's Open—Drive Carefully."

Construction crew working on the Great Lakes Gas Transmission company pipeline looping project northwest of Thief River Falls prepares one section of the line for lowering in. These workers are applying shrink sleeves on the pipe. Pipe sections are epoxy coated for corrosion protection except for a narrow band at the ends where the sections are welded together. These welded seams are wrapped with a material that is heat shrunk with a propane torch to provide corrosion protection in the weld area.

Suggestions given to newly unemployed

Gone are the days when a loyal employee could count on a long-time career with one employer. If you have been the unlucky recipient of a "pink slip," keep in mind that unemployment need not lead to financial disaster. A positive outlook and wise financial decisions can minimize the damage, says the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

As a rule, if you have lost your job through no fault of your own and are actively seeking another job you are entitled to unemployment benefits. Since each state has different eligibility requirements, you will need to check with your local unemployment office to see if you qualify.

If you receive a severance package, you may have to choose between taking the funds in one lump sum or stretching them out over several weeks or months. CPAs generally recommend that you opt for the lump sum so that you can invest the money and start earning interest right away. What's more, if your former employer's financial stability is questionable, taking a lump sum gives you one less thing to worry about.

When you leave a job, you may receive a sizable sum from your tax-deferred 401(k) retirement plan or pension plan. Because this money is earmarked for retirement, an early withdrawal could trigger trouble. To avoid hefty taxes and penalties, it's best to roll over the proceeds of your 401(k) or other pension plans into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). Any money you don't roll over is taxed as ordinary income. If you are under 59 1/2, you may be hit with a 10 per cent penalty as well.

If you think that you may be forced to use some of your retirement savings to meet living expenses, invest your funds in a liquid account. This way, your money will not be tied up in a long-term investment and taxes and penalties will be due only on the amount you actually withdraw.

Employers with 20 people or more are required to offer medical insurance to departing employees. Regardless of whether you are fired or leave a company voluntarily, you and your dependents can continue to receive health coverage for up to 18 months, providing you pay for it yourself. If your spouse works, it may be cheaper for you to get family coverage under your spouse's plan. But find out if your spouse's coverage will last for the duration of your unemployed period.

If you have a family to protect and most of your life insurance came from an employer's policy, you should also consider picking up life insurance coverage. Term Insurance is generally the least costly way to go.

If you can't meet your monthly payments, talk to your creditors. Most are willing to work with responsible borrowers. Explain your situation and offer to send smaller payments. If paying your mortgage is a problem, you may need to make formal arrangements with your mortgage lender to delay monthly payments. Some lenders may agree to rewrite your loan to lower your monthly payments; others may even offer a "forebearance agreement" that allows you to pay nothing or "interest only" for a few months.

Ag careers aren't all on the farm

Contrary to current belief, the field of agriculture offers numerous career opportunities for both men and women, according to Al Gustafson of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation district.

"Careers in farming and ranching often come to mind when thinking about agriculture, but only 2.7 million of the 21 million people employed in agricultural jobs work on farms and ranches," Gustafson said.

"Other agricultural areas to pursue include biotechnology, veterinary science, agricultural economics, agronomy, soil science and horticulture, to name just a few."

In the United States, 20 per cent of all jobs are in the field of agriculture and every year there is a shortage of about 4,000 people to fill the available ag-related jobs.

"Agricultural jobs aren't just for people living in rural areas either," Gustafson added. "Of all jobs in urban areas, 17 per cent of them are agriculturally related."

For further information contact the soil conservation office at 1305 Dale Street in Thief River Falls, phone 681-3348.

Minnesota's health care leadership is well-known nationally, and health care policy is tops on my Senate agenda, as well. That's why I'm pleased that health professionals from more than a dozen of our state's best hospitals will be joining me at this year's Minnesota State Fair.

We'll demonstrate new ways of detecting and preventing life threatening illnesses and accidents. Or, you can get a free blood pressure check -- by professionals from one of the participating hospitals.

I hope you'll stop by for a visit. My booth is on Commonwealth Avenue, right next to the Grandstand.

Dave Durenberger

Participating hospitals include Chisago Health Services, Divine Providence Hospital in Ivanhoe, HealthEast, Gillette Children's Hospital, Kanabec Hospital in Mora, North Memorial Hospital in Robbinsdale, Ortonville Hospital, Riverside Medical Center in Minneapolis, Minneapolis Children's Medical Center, Minnewaska District Hospital in Starbuck, University of Minnesota Hospitals and Wilson Center in Faribault

A Casino for T.R.F.? Are We Hurting That Bad?

Drowning people, we are told, are so desperate to save themselves that they will reach for anything—even a piece of straw—in an effort to remain afloat. The effort is futile, of course, but the example of "grasping at straws" has become widely recognized as illustrative of an act of desperation which is doomed to futility.

Is Thief River Falls as a community collectively "grasping at straws" as it considers the establishment of a gambling casino here by the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians? As a personal opinion, this editor thinks that may well be the case.

An article in the Northern Watch Friday quoted community development director Don Stewart as saying he had never seen the businessmen in Thief River Falls so excited as they seem to be regarding the casino proposal. Unless the excitement is from anticipation of participating as gamblers, I fail to understand the reason for much excitement.

Spurred by the apparent early success of gambling operations on a couple of Indian reservations in Minnesota, a proliferation of Indian-operated gaming and gambling operations is occurring. Millions of dollars are being spent on facilities and equipment to provide places and means to attract the gambling public. Additional millions are being spent for operations of the gambling facilities. Obviously these expenses will not be paid by gambling winners.

Give the tribal councils credit for cashing in on legal loopholes which permit them to conduct activities which are forbidden to others. But the supply of people and money to sustain these operations is not inexhaustible and the more facilities that exist the thinner the supply is spread. There will be some financial baths taken by investors in some of these operations and we can not expect immunity in Thief River Falls.

Even if the casino is put into operation and proves profitable to the Red Lake Band, the net benefit to the community will probably not be great. With casino operations at Warroad, Mahnomen, Bemidji and who knows where else, how many people can be expected to come to Thief River Falls to lose their money?

In order for the Red Lake Band to operate a casino here, it would have to locate the building on a piece of the reservation. While maneuvering to accomplish that seems possible, it would seem to us that such property would have the same sovereign status that has been accorded to other reservation lands, which makes them exempt from taxation and off limits to non-reservation law enforcement and other legal action.

Representatives of the Red Lake tribal council have offered to contract for a payment to the City of Thief River Falls of an amount equal to what taxes would be if the casino were on the tax roles. This is a carrot which dangles tantalizingly in front of city officials hard-pressed to find revenue sources for community needs.

We would speculate, however, that such payment would have minimal impact on the expense to the area public from increased law enforcement and social services from the overall effect of additional gambling in the community.

It can't be far down the road before the state legislature realizes that Minnesota has all of the negative aspects of large scale gambling with none of the revenue benefits. When that sinks in, legislators of all persuasions will be hard pressed to withhold from other citizens of the state the privilege that is being granted to the tribal councils—especially when that privilege could mean more dollars for state spending. Look for the state to open the gambling floodgates in the not too distant future, and what that will mean to the Indian-operated gambling situation is difficult to predict.

We also don't buy the argument that if casinos are located elsewhere they should be located here. In almost any area an excess of supply means a diminished return. If a casino here, by that reasoning, why not in Holt, Middle River, Strathcona, Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Salol too? Why not in East Grand Forks, Crookston, Warren, St. Hilaire, Euclid? Why not a gold roloc for every hamlet in the state?

According to the Northern Watch story Friday, Stewart's conversations with city council members gave him the impression that "If they are assured that the facility would be one they could be proud of they would probably be in favor of it."

Probably so. We seem to recall comment from the council chambers not too long ago justifying expenditure of a pile of money so there could be a municipal liquor store the city could be proud of. If it's possible to be proud of a liquor store it shouldn't be too hard to be proud of a casino, too.

Has Thief River Falls really reached that stage of desperation? Is it time to be grasping at straws?

Persons interested in what the casino could mean for Thief River Falls one way or another—and every resident should be interested—should plan to attend the joint meeting between the city council and county board September 17. And before then let your views be known to your alderman or county commissioner.

Gladys Johnson conducted the meeting and read a thank you note. They finished a quilt and many pillows which they sell, also got an order for two more. They can use Marshall County's 21 passenger bus to go on trips, so we can understand why they keep themselves so busy. They were up to Roseau awhile ago to the museum and other places of interest there. On Friday they will be taking the bus to Crookston to see what they can see. These facilities that we older folks can enjoy are a real opportunity for many who have never had a chance to see how the other half lives. When the Pledge of Allegiance was said and Table Grace prayed, the hostess, Gladys Johnson served lunch. Ivan Kimbrough won the door prize. The blood pressure clinic was held too.

YOUR TIMES

by Lynne Holt
Regional Coordinator Planned Parenthood of Minnesota

There are nine family planning programs in the Minnesota 7th Legislative District supported by Title 10 funds. These programs are administered by Tri-County Action Program, Ottertail-Wadena Community Action Council and Planned Parenthood of Minnesota and serve over 9,000 low income men and women with preventive health and contraceptive care.

For many of these individuals, the Title 10 family planning program is the only health care available to them: a source of pap tests and breast exams for cancer screening and tests for diabetes, hypertension and various infections. Title 10 programs do not provide abortion care.

The recent Supreme Court decision, the gag rule, puts the continuation of these programs in jeopardy. The gag rule that was upheld is a federal regulation of the Reagan-Bush administrations that provides a script to be used by doctors and other staff in Title 10 clinics. This script does not allow the professional staff to acknowledge that abortion is a legal medical option, even if an individual asks or if health complications indicate a consideration of the option. The script requires direct referral of all pregnant women to pre-natal care without regard for medical concerns.

Clearly, this is an infringement of the free speech of the staff in Title 10 programs and has serious implications for other federally funded programs. It flies in the face of medical ethics that require full disclosure of all medical options for any patient concern so that individuals can choose appropriate care.

The ruling establishes two tiers of medical care: full information for those who can afford private care and no information for those who use Title 10 funded care. Indeed, the Gallup Poll indicates that 74 percent of Americans support the right of individual health care practitioners to advise their patients as they see fit.

The loss of Title 10 funds could mean the loss of family planning clinics in the 7th District and low income individuals would then be without affordable care. It is crucial that the Pregnancy Counseling Act be passed by Congress and signed by President Bush to make it clear that this country supports quality care for individuals who rely on federally funded programs.

From the Editorial Page

"A well posted man sizes up the situation like this: 'It is my opinion that the financial depression reached its lowest notch last year and that we are now on the beginning of a new prosperity never equaled in the history of the Northwest. From one end of the state to the other come the reports of big crops, and the present outlook is that we will receive at least a dollar a bushel for wheat. This with the severe lesson in economy the people have had the last three years, means a great deal. They are really in a position to get along as they never would had it not been for the seemingly disastrous crop failures. This year's magnificent crop will not only infuse new life and hope into those who are already in the country, but will be the means of bringing large numbers of new settlers to the Northwest.'"

SPACE

Turn this empty box into a selling tool!

If you are in business, you depend on advertising to keep traffic coming through your doors. Use your advertising space to your best advantage and you'll benefit! Here are some tips to make your print advertising work for you–

Elements of a good sale ad–

1. A good sale ad has clarity. Copy is direct, specific, straightforward, vivid and brief. It should talk directly to readers, telling them what they need and want to know, in believable, convincing words.
2. A good sale ad has urgency. Time limitations–"three days only," or "sale ends March 15"–and quantity limitations–"only 100 at this price"–provide built-in urgency. But urgency can also be created by such language as "come early for the best selection" and "buy now before prices rise."
3. A good sale ad is well organized. Neatness counts to time-pressured readers. A well-organized ad has a focal point. It makes a specific offer, in unambiguous terms, and presents it attractively, either with or without illustrations.
4. A good sale ad is specific. It does not assume readers know how to deal with percentages, but instead does the arithmetic for them. The offering may be "1/3 off on all Calvin Klein sweaters," but it is better to spell it out too: "Regularly, $45; now $30.".
5. Be honest and forthright.
6. A good sale ad tells shoppers what the "rules" are. For example, it is important to note whether mail and phone orders are invited, or not; whether all merchandise is at all stores or, if not, which stores do, or do not, have the merchandise.
7. A good sale ad gives readers the store location, store hours, and a telephone number, in case shoppers have questions. Loyal customers might know all store locations, new customers, who can help build market share, might not.
8. A good sale ad is an ad that "triple sells." It sells the store, it sells the sale event, and it sells the merchandise.

Brief Bits from Pioneer Village

Donna Myhrer

Buildings and Displays

The Little Oak one-room school building, a feature of Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls, shows a sampling of how a typical one-room school would have looked. The school contains several sizes of wooden desks and a large variety of textbooks from the late 1800's and early 1900's. It has a pump organ and teacher's desk with a special way of locking the drawers. The maps on the walls show the way the world looked in the past and a globe is suspended from the ceiling. In addition, a collection of lunch pails and a wash stand like the kind used in one-room schools are on display.

After school the children would probably have paid a visit to a candy store like the one at Pioneer Village. The store was built by S. T. Johnson in the 1880's and displays showcases of candy and cigar boxes and a potbelly stove.

Special Events

During the month of September, teachers from local elementary schools will be invited to spend up to a half day holding a class in the Little Oak school. The teacher might choose to teach a "regular" class or give the children a tour of the Village and emphasize the role of the one-room school in early America. Any teacher who is interested in holding a class at the Village may call Donna Myhrer at 681-5767 or 964-5245.

Can You Help?

The Pennington County Historical society is seeking volunteers to help write explanations for many of the artifacts on display at the Village. Often when young people visit the museum, they don't understand how things worked or how the items were made and used. Brief descriptions for many of the items would be a valuable addition to the displays. If you or your organization would like to help in this way, please call Donna Myhrer at 681-5767 at Pioneer Village or 964-5245 at home.

Gambling stirs emotions in small MN communities

Residents of small towns share many different opinions with staff from The Times on Saturday

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Proposed gambling Casino in Thief River Falls has generated a great deal of discussion. After meeting on Thursday, August 29, the media of Thief River Falls, represented by John Mattson of The Times, Joel Swanson of KTRF/KSNR, and Dale Olmstead of Niche 99 and KSRQ, decided to visit communities with casinos in operation or in the planning stages in Minnesota to get a feel for concerns of citizens regarding gambling.

The following comments were collected by David Hill and John Mattson of The Times. They are by no means representative of all of the people who live in the communities of Mahnomen, Walker or Cass Lake.

Mahnomen:

The White Earth Reservation Tribal council plans to open a $10 million, 65,000 foot casino and hotel south of Mahnomen on Highway 59. The tribal council plans to open a temporary casino in October.

"When we held a public meeting about the proposed casino nobody showed," said Dean Johnson, city clerk.

Johnson said the only opposition they noticed to the proposed casino came in the form of letters to the editor in the Mahnomen Pioneer.

Patrick Kelly, publisher/editor of the Mahnomen Pioneer, said some letters came in otherwise there didn't seem to be much protest. Kelly said that it seemed that many of the businessmen were for the proposed casino. Some groups, such as ministers and social groups seemed to be against the proposal. Kelly said the Chamber of Commerce seemed to be for it, although the chamber is not very active.

While Mahnomen has not completed the casino proposed by the White Earth band it is still a concern. Johnson said the city is attempting to work out an agreement with the band for something in lieu of taxes. The proposed casino will be located on reservation land but it is within the city limits.

Johnson said what seemed to sway public concern was the jobless rate in the community. Johnson said unemployment was about 8 per cent. Unemployment on the reservation is probably between 70 and 90 per cent.

Johnson said many also realized that they could come in and put the casino in whether the city was for it or not. And, he said, they were also looking at other cities.

Mahnomen has only one small hotel and its airport has a 3,200 foot sod runway. Some tourist business exists because it is near some of the lake territory.

Recent protests involve only concerns of the reservation citizens. According to newspaper articles, protests have been against the tribal council to draw attention to their allegations that the council has run fraudulent tribal elections, mismanaged funds, and brought mafia involvement into the casino project.

A business person at a shoe store said Mahnomen was dying and the Casino was Mahnomen's only hope, whether we like it or not.

A bakery owner said she has heard a lot of things. One place said sales go down because people spend their money on gambling and not on what they should spend it on. She also expected it to increase crime simply because there would be more people in the area.

Another person said she would rather see industry than gambling and would like to see a poll taken of those who attend casinos. She said she would lay 10 to 1 odds that 90 per cent of the people who will be there can't afford to be there.

The operator of a pharmacy said it would only be a plus for citizens of Mahnomen. It cannot affect us any other way than in a positive manner. He believes there won't be a law enforcement

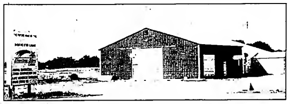
The parking lot outside the Northern Lights Gaming Emporium in Walker began to spill over into the other parking lots by mid afternoon on Saturday. 'Times' Publisher John Mattson and Associate Editor Dave Hill traveled to Mahnomen, Walker and Cass Lake Saturday gathering information about the casinos and their impact on nearby communities.



The Shooting Star casino in Mahnomen will open in this temporary location in October. Behind this building construction on the $10 million casino is underway.

School enrollments increase to 2,441

Opening day enrollment for School District 564 on the first day of school today totals 2,441—an increase from 2,312 a year ago. The number is not totally comparable, however, because this year's total includes 146 people taking high school classes at the Area Learning Center (ALC), an alternative program available to high school age students.

The ALC has students from other districts than Thief River Falls, including satellite operations at Roseau and Warroad. The 146 ALC students listed are from all locations. Last year's opening day enrollment numbers included 60 students at the ALC from Thief River Falls, Roseau, Newfolden, Stephen, Plummer, Greenbush, Goodridge, Strandquist and Grygla—all attending classes in Thief River Falls. All students, including those at the satellite centers, are included this year because the local school district receives state aid for the students attending on a full-time equivalency basis.

Elementary enrollment (K-12) is up by 28 students from 1,025 last year to 1,053 today. In addition there are nine pre-school students at Knox elementary school and four trainable mentally handicapped students not included in grade enrollments at Mark Twain school.

Lincoln high school enrollment, including the 146 at the ALC, is 839. Last year the Lincoln total including 60 ALC students was 744. Allowing for the additional 86 students in the ALC, high school enrollment today increased by another nine students over last year's opening day.

Opening day enrollments provide year-to-year comparative numbers of general public interest but will likely vary from full-year enrollment figures. Delay of school opening until after the Labor Day holiday has reduced the number of students who have not attended on opening day due to summer's end activities.

Last year there were 185 children attending kindergarten on

City council will consider gambling issue

Thief River Falls city council has appointed two members of the council to a committee to find answers to questions about a proposed Gambling Casino in Thief River Falls.

At a meeting Tuesday, the council agreed with Community Development Director Don Stewart and appointed two of its members to a committee to study the issues around the proposed gambling casino. In his presentation Tuesday, Stewart said there were many questions that need to be answered. These questions, he said, should be answered prior to the September 17 meeting. Stewart said he would rather go into the meeting knowing the answers to the many questions being asked than wait until September 17 and be asked to approve a letter of support without knowing the answers.

The council agreed appointing Mayor Bob Carlson and the Vice Mayor, Alderman Robert Reeve, to the committee. Stewart said the committee will be composed of representatives from the Pennington county board of commissioners, City Attorney Paul Ihle, City Clerk Jerry Wegness and himself. They will meet with representatives of the council of the Red Lake band of Chippewa to answer all the questions. These answers may help the council decide how to proceed with the proposed gambling casino.

The preliminary levy and budget for 1992 was certified, as required by Truth and Taxation legislation, by the council Tuesday night. The council approved the maximum amount of levy increase permitted by the state.

Mayor Bob Carlson said approval of the 6.8 per cent increase in the levy does not mean the council can't choose to find $100,000 in budget cuts to eliminate the increase. He said, that he thought he was speaking for the

Dear Readers,

In the days that follow the death of a loved one, the emotional support of friends is needed. If a friend calls to ask how you are, the easiest answer is, "Everything is fine", when you know that just isn't so! Have the courage to be truthful and say, "I'm going through a very difficult time and I am very lonely. I need your companionship." There are times when we must reach out to those who sincerely want to help us.

Respectfully,

opening day. This year the first grade attendance was 196 and the kindergarten enrollment was 174. The 196 in first grade comprises the largest K-12 class in the district.

Enrollment increases last year and this year are reversing a trend of falling enrollments which had begun with the record enrollment of 3,295 set 18 years ago. In 1982 the decline was 176 students, the largest since the enrollment record was set. In 1983 the drop was another 99 students. Smallest decline during that 18-year period was a drop of seven students in 1984.

Enrollment by grades and schools is shown in the table published on Page 1 of today's Times.

entire council when he said they will do everything possible to reduce budget expenditures so they don't have to increase the levy amount.

City Finance Officer Roger DeLap pointed out that after September 1 the certified levy cannot be increased, only decreased prior to the final certification in late December. The council has agreed to hold a hearing to certify the budget and levy on December 3. The county will certify its budget at a hearing on December 10. School District 564 is expected to certify its budget on December 16.

Several planning commission recommendations were approved by the council, including a site plan change for the proposed convenience store and gas station at the corner of First and Pennington avenue.

After receiving approval for a site plan proposing the construction of a convenience store and gas station at 100 Pennington avenue last month, Weibolt Enterprises Inc. submitted an amended site plan. According to the amended site plan, the store will be slightly smaller than originally proposed and of a slightly different configuration. In addition, the site plan reduces the number of pump islands from three to two.

A zoning amendment request and variance request from Green Funeral Home, was approved by the city council. Green Funeral Home requested their property to be rezoned from C-4, downtown fringe district, to C-3, central business district. It is proposing to construct a building addition of approximately 800 square feet on the northeastern corner of the existing building on the property. Since the existing building exceeds the 5,000 square feet maximum gross floor area permitted in the C-4 district it needed to be rezoned to C-3 so that it could expand.

Based on findings and the recommendation of the planning commission, the council approved the zoning amendment, which also changed the zoning of the parking lot in front of Green Funeral Home to C-3. The council also agreed to a variance request for Green Funeral home, which allows a one foot variance to the 20 foot rear yard setback.

Orin Green of Green Funeral Home explained that they were enlarging the building by 800 square feet and adding a parking lot along the back side, and making the building handicapped accessible. He said he has moved out of the residence at the location and it will be all one building. As a result of the expansion, it will increase seating by about 95.

A proposed amendment to city code to provide for recreational camping vehicles was approved by the council following a recommendation from the planning commission. The amendment would allow the planning commission to conduct a hearing on any proposed use of public or privately owned recreational camping areas and provide for review and approval by the city council.

An endorsement and letters of support for housing projects were approved by the city council Tuesday. Norman Triebwasser, the architect for the Fargo dome and owner of several rental units across Minnesota, requested letters of endorsement and letters of support for housing projects. Triebwasser proposed to construct a single unit, one story, 24-unit elderly housing project in Pioneer court and Briarwood court. He is also proposing to construct two 12-unit student housing apartments on East Greenwood street. Triebwasser needed the endorsement and letters of support for a pre-application to the FmHA.

In other business, the council: approved payment for the pouring of a concrete slab for the Tourist Park Shelter; appointed Steven S. Byron as a volunteer firefighter to replace Glen Haugen effective September 1; denied a request to reinstall a stop sign on First street at Arnold avenue; referred a request to investigate the feasibility of lowering the speed limit along highway 1 in the area between the apartments and TC and NCC to the public safety committee; approved a permit to have beer in Oakland Park by Cyril Stensrud family reunion on August 21 from noon to 7 p.m. and by Cenex/Land O'Lakes for a picnic on August 30 from 4 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; and approved a request by the Technical College to use airport property for the auction of surplus school property on September 21.

Brochure aids evaluation

Products advertised as curing arthritis are widely available, but judging whether to use them can be difficult for many consumers, according to the Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

A free brochure from the foundation entitled "Arthritis: Unproven Remedies" contains information on products or treatments that have not been shown to be effective or safe in repeated scientific tests.

The brochure advises readers to suspect an unproven remedy if a product is promoted as a cure-all or treatment for all types of arthritis or if claims are made that the product is based on a secret formula.

The Arthritis Foundation estimates that unproven remedies for arthritis have been tried one or more times by most of the 37 million Americans with arthritis. Many such remedies, like copper bracelets, are relatively harmless. Others, like bee venom, have unknown effects. Still others, like snake venom and large doses of vitamins, have harmful effects.

One study shows that one in 10 people taking unproven arthritis remedies experiences harmful side effects, the Arthritis Foundation said.

To order the brochure, call toll-free 1-800-333-1380.

MN economic activity indicator shows growth

Minnesota's most comprehensive current measure of economic activity rose in June for the third month in a row, Commissioner R. Jane Brown of the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training announced.

The coincident index, which combines measures of employment, retail sales and manufacturing hours worked, rose to 139.3 in June -- an all-time high. This is a clear sign that the state's economy is on a rebound from the brief recession of late 1990 and early 1991.

All three components in the index were up from May. The index's previous high was 139.0 in September 1990, after which a six-month downturn began.

The number of jobs has increased noticeably, rising by nearly 8,000 in June after a jump of 6,500 in May. This two month gain surpasses the total lost during the recession.

The crucial cylinders of the economy are firing together: manufacturing output is picking up steam, retail sales keep increasing and building permits are up to a sizeable number.

School's Open... Where Did Summer Go?

Although the opening day of school for the 1991-92 year has been known for a long time, it takes the actual happening to bring home the reality that another summer season has officially gone by. The number of children who materialize along bus routes and on sidewalks leading to school on opening day makes a person wonder where they have been for the last three months.

Coincidentally with the starting of school classes seems to come the feeling of fall in the air. There is a chill in the clear morning air which brings thoughts of a killing frost not far away. A few leaves have already fallen and the color of the last of summer's flowers seems more vivid than before—as if they are putting all their energy into the last few days they have to bloom.

Spring is eagerly awaited each year as the end to the cold winter season, but if one can overlook the spectre of winter coming again, the bright, clear days of fall provide the best weather this part of Minnesota can enjoy. September and October can be the most enjoyable months of the entire year.

With children back in school and the start of extra-curricular activities again underway, it seems as though summer was just a long weekend in the school year. The break was enjoyable but we join the students, faculty and administration in looking forward to a good school year for our community's young people.

Just One Request

by David Hill

Keeping an open mind when it comes to gambling is a difficult problem. The issue is a highly charged one.

I spent all day Saturday trying to keep my mind open and listening to many people throughout Minnesota who are directly affected by gambling, such as residents of Mahnomen and Walker. I spent the day in Mahnomen, Walker and Cass Lake, interviewing people about their opinions regarding the type of gambling one finds in casinos. I came away with one conclusion — people have many opinions on gambling.

In this issue of The Times I have compiled comments from the people interviewed and encourage people to read them. In this opinion piece I have collected some of the more interesting comments and one final request.

One individual I interviewed said, "I would bet 50 to 1 that if those individuals protesting against the casino (Mahnomen) had jobs they wouldn't be protesting."

What an interesting comment. It points out that "opinion" is the most important issue. Secondly, although I think she failed to realize it, her comment points out that gambling has become rather pervasive in our society.

What I found during my search was also disappointing. One businessman in Walker said, I can't quantify what I believe. I can't offer any facts in dollars and cents when I say I'm against gambling because it's a moral issue. It's an issue everyone has to decide on their own.

Even though he was against gambling, he also said he had benefited — indirectly — from gambling.

The same gentleman said he was against the lottery when they asked how he felt about it. He said he doesn't feel sorry, not one bit sorry, for the charitable gambling institutions, who might complain they are losing money.

He said, and I agree, their whining would be the same as if another clothing store came to town and he complained that it would take away customers from his store. They opened Pandorras Box, he said, now they have to live with it. (I might add that I have as little sympathy for those involved in odds making, however small, bingo, even if it is played by a little old lady, and any other form of gambling.)

Gambling is a "Gold Mine Nightmare," said one resident of Walker. I believe he stated — very colorfully I might add — what many people are guessing might happen.

What I found probably won't help when it comes to making up your mind. Yet, it might give you fuel to support your opinions.

The last point I'll make in this editorial, is really a request — attend the hearing on September 17, and if you can't, write to your city councilman or county commissioner in care of the city hall or county court house, and let them know how you feel about the issue.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

In response to the proposed plans to allow operation of a casino in Thief River Falls, I would like to make public my opinion about such action using the Word of God—the Bible—as a guideline for my opinion. My opinion covers two main areas of concern: First, attaining money without working for it, and second the subsequent sinful posture the first point places the City of Thief River Falls in before Almighty God.

In regard to the first point, I believe the Bible makes it clear that all persons on this earth since the fall of Adam and Eve are destined to make a living by the sweat of their brows. Genesis 4:19 says, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, 'til thou return unto the ground...."(KJV). Before Adam and Eve committed the original sin all was bliss and work was fun. But after the fall, Godly prosperity can only be attained with the exertion of physical energies while applying one's skill to overcome obstacles for survival. This is otherwise known as work, or employment.

Indeed II Thessalonians 3:10 states, "....if any would not work, neither should he eat." (KJV) The operation of a casino violates this spiritual principel of work by the sweat of one's brow, because it allows people of the community to attain money through luck and chance rather than through applying the work principal. Because God set the principal in motion, deviation from it propagates an unrealistic outlook on life which is breeding ground for the "love of money." And one does not even have to know much about the Bible to know that "the love of money" is the source of all kinds of unethical practice.

Point two builds on point one. Unethical practice is not the nature of God. Therefore we can expect that God's blessings will abundantly flow to individuals, families, towns, cities, counties and countries who profile themselves before God as ethical. Indeed God does consider whole communities in His plan of blessing as evidenced in the account of Genesis 13:13 and Genesis 19:13 where God says of the city of Sodom, "....the men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly.....the cry of them is waxen great before the face of the Lord." (KJV) If one reads the whole passage one finds that God observed the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah and they were outside the boundaries of his blessing.

I urge all community members to say no to the operation of a casino in Thief River Falls, as it will inevitably posture the city to be in violation of the spiritual principles of work put in place on this earth by God. Up front, allowing the operation of a casino might look like increased opportunity for businesses and the employment market, but in the end it is a moving away from the position where God can bless the City with his plan of blessing.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my views publicly in the Thief River Falls Times.

Sincerely,
Peter Novellino

To The Editor:

I have a few personal comments about co-ops. As I was investigating Farmers Union Marketing and Processing (FUMPA) during my last term on the board, I met with the head of the Internal Revenue Service in Minneapolis. This agent informed me that many of the very large cooperatives have what he called "sham" or "shell" corporations to skim off money for special projects. This agent was not in the political position to do anything about this situation.

Because of my involvement with cooperatives, I see large cooperatives functioning like the large corporations they compete against. They are not functioning as the Kapper-Volstead Act said they should—which was to provide services and collective bargaining for farmer owners.

The Kapper-Volstead Act made it possible for cooperatives not to be subject to anti-trust laws and not to pay income tax in lieu of patronage refunds.

Large cooperatives have been organized to help farmers, not make monopolies and perpetuate management. The profits should be returned to the farmers. Because most farmers have to be very old or dead to share in these profits, I feel cooperatives should lose their income tax exempt status. When I was on the FUMPA board we informally talked about making FUMPA a corporation. This would have cost the cooperative $1.5 million in income tax, so we decided to remain a cooperative rather than to become a corporation.

Considering the huge amount of cooperative business done in the state of Minnesota, just think of the benefits to our personal income taxes (if cooperatives paid income taxes). I am sure the benefits if cooperatives paid income taxes would outweigh any patronage refunds.

I am not trying to pick on the smaller local cooperatives but rather the large conglomerate cooperatives that own many corporations. These conglomerate cooperatives are more interested in using the patronage refunds to establish cooperatives in foreign countries in the Soviet Union and Asia. They should be using their profits and patronage refunds to help the farmers who desperately need any help they can get.

FUMPA should no longer be a farm cooperative because it does most of its business with locker plants and packing companies.

I would like to use Garden Valley Telephone company and Red Lake Electric as examples of true cooperatives providing fine service to their members at a reasonable price while at the same time paying their patronage refunds.

Sincerely,
Dean Vatthauer

To The Editor:

I would like to make a few comments concerning an article in the Red Lake Falls Gazette dated August 7, 1991. The article dealt with the dead animal removal problem in northwestern Minnesota.

Before I start a little history is needed to be discussed. My father was on the regional Farmers Union Marketing and Processing board (FUMPA) for 11 years. This board controlled the Central Bi-Products rendering company. During this 11 years the board for FUMPA took a run-down company that used a lot of hand labor and made it one of the world's best rendering services using the most sophisticated machinery available.

When my father started, Central Bi-Products' net profit was approximately between $100,000 and $200,000 and the company was picking up dead animals free of charge despite efforts by management to end this practice. Eleven years later Central Bi-Products' net profit was approximately $3 million and the company was still picking up dead animals at no charge to the farmer.

There was informal talk by the management to the board that if Central Bi-Products quit picking up dead animals a problem would be created. This would cause the state to enact legislation to force farmers to pay for dead animal pick-up without any consideration to the profits being made on the dead animals by Central Bi-Products.

At the same time, profits of Central Bi-Products were being siphoned off to a corporation called Farmers Union Enterprises. This corporation was organized by the Farmers Union presidents of Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Montana. My father met with the head of the Internal Revenue Service in Minneapolis and found out that Farmers Union Enterprises was what the IRS termed a shell corporation. Instead of using profits to pay farmers for dead animals, profits were funneled into Farmers Union Enterprises by paying for dead animals that farmers unknowingly gave to Farmers Union Enterprises. These facts are backed up by actual board meeting minutes and company financial statements that my father has. Because of such mishandling of profits, my father resigned from the FUMPA board.

Gordon Scherbing told representatives of the 10 counties who met in Red Lake Falls that they cannot afford to pick up dead animals. It was found out through accurate sources that Central Bi-Product's net profit in the last fiscal year was approximately $5.5 million. I have not seen this financial statement, so if this figure is not correct the correct amount should be available to any co-op stockholder.

Why does Central Bi-Products say it can not afford to pick up dead animals? Mr. Scherbing indicated that the market for hides and meat scraps are at low levels. It is common knowledge that markets have highs and lows and if Central Bi-Products made $5.5 million on a depressed market, profits would be greater on a high market. There will always be a market for meat scraps because they are used by feed companies in pet foods and hog feeds because meat scraps offer different amino acids not available in plant protein products. Therefore I feel that Central Bi-Products should be able to offer dead animal pick-up service to northwestern Minnesota farmers at no charge.

I believe that this is just a ploy by Central Bi-Products to get the Minnesota state legislature to pass laws requiring farmers to pay for dead animal pick-up while at the same time Central Bi-Products reaps the profits. Most farmers have their backs against the wall as it is and they do not need to be paying for a service that should be provided for them. That was the idea when the co-op was formed—to solve the livestock producers' dead animal problem and to make a profit that should be, but most of the time is not, distributed to the producers.

This letter got to be longer than I wanted but I felt it was important for livestock producers to know what is going on with the dead animal problem.

Sincerely,
Brian Vatthauer

Speaking Of . . .

. . . Labor-Saving? I Wonder

I thought electric appliances and electronic gadgets were supposed to make life easier and save time. They don't. In fact, it seems that the more appliances and gadgets I get, the more complicated my life becomes.

Before I can use any of my time-saving gadgets, I have to put them together. This means I have to read the "INSTRUCTIONS." I hate reading "INSTRUCTIONS." "INSTRUCTIONS" are always printed in the most tiny print possible and use the most technical words, and not only that, but they often appear to have been written by someone who doesn't speak the English language at all.

Sometimes a person might pick up the instruction booklet and find they don't understand a word that is written there. This is a terrible shock to one's system. One begins to doubt one's sanity. Never fear. Some gadget makers evidently think they are saving themselves time and money by printing instructions in several different languages in one booklet. You might find yourself trying to put your new purchase together in French or German, but, take heart! English is usually hidden in there somewhere.

Too many of my gadgets have remote controls. Right now we have several little boxes in our TV room. I believe there is one for the channel selections, one for the volume and to turn the set on and off, another for the VCR, and several different remote gadgets that connect, somehow, to one of those television computer games. I find that I don't even go near that television set. With all of those wires snaking in and out of it, I don't even know how to turn it on any more.

Speaking of the VCR, to this day I don't know how to operate it. I tried to read the instructions, but I only got to page 6, "PROGRAMMING," before my brain overloaded. Now I just have the kids do whatever is necessary to get the thing working. I don't know what I will do when they leave home. I probably won't use the VCR at all.

Another problem with an older house and all these electric and electronic gadgets is electric cords. You people with newer houses and electric wall sockets every foot or so don't know what I mean, but you people with older houses do. Anyway, with two electric sockets per room, I have had to spend a fortune on large power strip plug-ins for all my gadgets. Those power strips lurk in every corner of my house with electric cords snaking in and out of them, looking like large, ugly, square spiders. They are not attractive, and I still worry about fires.

I have serious doubts about all those "time-saving" devices in my kitchen too. Oh, sure, they do their little particular jobs, such as chopping veggies and mixing up dough, faster than I can by hand, but it seems that I have to spend much more time putting together, washing up and reassembling whatever time-saving appliance I am going to use or have used than it is worth. It is much quicker to wash my hands and a knife or a spoon than it is to take apart one of these labor-saving appliances, wash each individual piece (and there are always plenty of pieces) and then reassemble the darn thing.

To be honest, there are many appliances and gadgets in my house that I never use. In fact, I find that I am avoiding some of the more complicated devices. Instead of watching the television in the TV room, I bought myself a little one for the living room. It doesn't have any remote control or any other fancy boxes hooked up to it. It just has little knobs on the front. I don't even try to use the VCR to tape shows I might like to watch at a later date. It isn't worth the effort. I usually chop my veggies by hand and mix up any dough with nothing more complicated than an electric mixer.

Isn't it strange, all these wonderful gadgets were supposed to make my life easier and give me more leisure time and, instead, take up so much time to learn to use and operate that all my time is spent avoiding them, even if it means doing things the "old fashioned" way.

Former land owner and retired businessman Norbert Kochmann said so many businesses and people have left town. Finally, this is something big coming into our town. He said he's looking at it positively.

Shawn Moote, an employee at Amoco in Mahnomen said, there's nothing else here for young people to keep them here. There are no jobs or jobs that only pay minimum wage. These jobs won't be minimum wage jobs. He believes this is good for Mahnomen.

Another business owner said he expects all Minnesota laws to change in the near future. He believes anyone should be allowed to operate a casino.

Walker:

"It's a Gold Mine Nightmare!" said one unnamed source.

On the whole, comments indicated that it's a well run operation. It started small but plans for a $10 million expansion have been unveiled.

Brad Walhof, city councilman and advertising manager of the Walker newspaper, said it was a top notch operation. It's clean and there are security people everywhere. He said if they even see someone beginning to get a little disorderly, they are removed from the premises. He said it's a place where people feel very safe. If there is any trouble, he said, "you're gone right now."

He said it has been an economic boon to the community. People from all over the area come in and gamble. When they get bored with just gambling they stop in town to see what else there is to do. They shop, eat and everything else. It definitely has a positive impact on the area.

Walhof noted that there have been some complaints. He said they run a smart operation and have begun to expand into other areas. The $10 million expansion planned includes a motel, convention center, restaurant and night club.

Another businessman said, "if you think you can compete, you're wrong." They don't pay real estate taxes, FICA, unemployment taxes or some other employer taxes. As a result some businessmen have become upset.

Walhof explained that the casino is located on reservation property and the band did not consult the community before beginning the operation. It might have helped had they asked for the city's opinion first.

"I don't know if it does any good," said the operator of a gift store. She said there's just so much money to spend. She hasn't noticed any more crime, not at her business anyway.

"There's been a lot of shoplifting since they opened," said the manager of the Best of Gifts and Giving. She said that when the casino opened she had more bad checks than any other time she has had the store.

One of the owners of Lundrigan's Clothing said there has been no direct impact on her store. She hasn't noticed any increase in business or decline. She doesn't believe people come to town to shop any more.

One of the workers at the store believes it hasn't helped the community of Walker at all. It has only been bad for the community, she said.

"Instead of coming in to buy a coat they go out and try to win it," said another employee. The same employee is worried that it is bringing in more crime to the area and because the casino will begin operating 24 hours a day soon, the police department will have to start working 24 hours a day.

She also said that it doesn't seem that people are coming to Walker for the community anymore. The community is losing it's identity as a small resort community, she said.

One resident said people don't understand that gambling is entertainment. Many people who frequent a restaurant and hotel where she works come in and are angry because they lost money. They get angry at her and she doesn't like it because it isn't her fault.

To his way of thinking, said the store owner, it's the wrong direction for Walker to be taking. Although he knows he has benefited indirectly, he said he can't quantify what he believes. He said he can't offer any facts when he says he's against gambling because it's a moral issue. It's an issue everyone has to decide on their own.

"Walker is a wonderful area. It is a small town with a lot going for it and it has done a good job in trading up in business to respond to the needs of the people who have been coming to Walker for years," said the owner.

He indicated that the town no longer knows how to respond to the people who come to Walker to gamble. It's a whole new crowd.

Even though he's against the casino, the store owner said he can't complain about how it's run or the people who keep it running. It's a good operation, he said. They know how to run a business.

The manager/operator of the Outdoorsman Cafe said she has noticed a bit more people. She said she hasn't noticed any more [illegible] happy. Because [illegible] however, [illegible] traffic light [illegible] the street [illegible]

[illegible] the owner of Walker [illegible] and Hardware [illegible] pays 600 people [illegible] all of the community, he said.

"It's not a matter of race," said one individual. "We've always had good relations with the Indians and we hope to continue to have good relations."

One problem a realtor from Leech Lake Realty found in the new casino involved housing. "We can't handle the huge influx of people that would be needed to run the expanded casino."

The same realtor said she noticed that people who already live in the town tried the casino but went back to their old clubs and places to drink and pull tabs." She also said she hasn't noticed any more crime.

"We probably won't be a 'small town' anymore. We're going to be more of a large town from now on," said the realtor.

A 24-year-old girl who lives one-quarter mile from the casino said about the only thing she has noticed is the increase in traffic on the highway. She said she goes to the casino about once a month and enjoys it as a form of entertainment.

(A Thief River Falls casino would be probably about the same size as the existing casino in Walker. The Cass Lake operation is much larger than the casino in Walker. It is not located in a town or close to any sizeable community. Early Saturday evening, the parking lot was full. Most of the license plates in the parking lot were from Minnesota. There were also some from Canada, North Dakota, Texas, Illinois, and other states. There were three buses in the parking lot.)

Public meetings to discuss proposed TC mergers set

Two consultants studying a proposed merger agreement between six Technical Colleges are in Thief River Falls Monday through Wednesday. The two consultants will visit all six colleges, and after visiting with staff and interested members of the public, prepare a report which will make recommendations regarding a merger between the colleges.

Elroy Burgeson of Granite Falls and Lowell Melbye of Wilmar, are visiting the Technical College in Thief River Falls this week. The two consultants will meet with interested members of the public Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday, the public can meet with the consultants between 2 and 3 p.m. in room 134. On Wednesday they will meet with the public between 1 and 3 p.m. in room 134.

Burgeson explained that the state legislature recently passed a law requiring any Technical school with less than 1,500 students to operate under a cooperative agreement with other schools so that there will be fewer reporting units.

The six technical schools in Northwestern Minnesota considering a merger include East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Moorhead, Detroit Lakes and Wadena. Burgeson said he believes the report will be completed by the end of October. The Technical College in Thief River Falls is the fourth college on his itinerary. From Thief River Falls the consultants will travel to Moorhead and from there to Detroit Lakes.
